LOFFMARK, BLACK SHIFTED

Skillings Appointed To Cabinet

Premier Emotional At Ceremony

With lips quivering and blinking back tears, Premier Bennett Thursday afternoon watched his personal friend and bridge partner, Waldo Skillings, of Victoria, take the oath as the province's new minister of industrial development, trade and commerce.

It was part of a provincial cabinet shuffle involving three ministers.

Ralph Loffmark was moved from the trade and industry assignment and sworn in as minister of health and hospital insurance.

He replaces Wesley Black who took over the highways department portfolio which Mr. Bennett held himself since March 21 when Phil Gaglardi resigned the post to become a minister without portfolio.

After the brief ceremony in Government House, Mr. Bennett told reporters he will make more cabinet changes after a "little general election" later this year.

He said he expects "two, three or four more" MLAs to follow Randolph Harding (NDP — Revelstoke-Slocan) into the June 25 federal election race.

Added to the vacancy created by Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane's elevation to the bench this week, the openings would mean there "will be a number of by-elections this summer, the premier said.

He would not identify which month the votes would be held but said he intended to make further cabinet changes after they are over.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, in Nanaimo, commented that Mr. Bennett must know who the potential new dropouts will be and suggested they will be Esquimalt Socred MLA and national president Herb Bruch and Mr. Gaglardi.

Commenting on the cabinet shuffle, he said it represented no change because "Mr. Skillings has been an ex-officio member of cabinet for some time as a close personal friend of the premier."

Liberal Leader Ray Perrault, in Vancouver, said he hoped the further changes this summer would at least introduce new blood into the cabinet and added that the biggest question is whether Mr. Loffmark will bring needed improvements in the health field.

Highlight of the swearing-in conducted by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, was the surprise appointment of Mr. Skillings.

The 61-year-old Socred whip's appointment makes him the 16th minister in the cabinet and the second from Victoria. The cabinet is now the largest in B.C.'s history.

He has been a running mate of Public Works Minister W. N. Chant in Victoria in 1960, 1963 and 1966.

Mr. Bennett beamed when the other two men took the oaths of their new offices but he almost shed tears as Mr. Skillings was sworn in.

Almost aggressively, he defended the latter's appointment when talking to reporters.

"Mr. Skilling is a man of great experience on municipal governments, on school boards, in business and he's been elected (MLA) three times," he said.

"Perhaps because he's a close friend of mine he's been held back," the premier added. "He

U.S. Explodes Big H-Bomb Under Desert

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — An experimental hydrogen bomb, most powerful tested in the United States, exploded under a desert mesa today and sent shock waves rolling for hundreds of miles.

There were no reports of damage or vented radiation from the underground blast, despite more than a week of protests from scientists and others that the shot was potentially dangerous.

The shot, delayed an hour until 10 a.m. EST due to fears that if there were radiation leaks wind might carry contaminants off the test site, was felt lightly if at all in major cities of the West.

In Las Vegas tall buildings swayed, as in an earthquake. Chandeliers in a hotel swung. Motion was clocked for 90 sec-

POSTAL UNIONS WANT BOARD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Council of Postal Unions has made formal application to the public service staff relations board for establishment of a conciliation board.

A board spokesman confirmed in an interview today that the council—representing about 22,000 union members—applied for conciliation late Thursday afternoon.

'Stop Or Risk War'

Times News Services

Sharp fighting broke out today between Israeli and Jordanian troops across the Jordan River. Israeli Defence Minister Gen. Moshe Dayan warned Jordan his country would carry the war to Jordanian territory to settle the matter once and for all if Arab guerrilla attacks continued.

It was the sharpest Israeli warning since the June war ended with an uneasy cease-fire broken frequently by Israeli-Egyptian clashes along the Suez canal and in recent days by tank, mortar and machinegun duels across the Jordan River. There were 10 such clashes this week.

USED TANKS

(Jordanian military spokesmen said the Israelis opened fire with medium machineguns on Jordanian positions south of the Sea of Galilee and that Israeli tanks then rumbled onto the scene and the machinegun and mortar barrages began again.)

Previous Israeli warnings have been followed by massive Israeli retalitory attacks. Today Dayan said if the Arab guerrilla attacks continue in the Jordan and Beisan Valleys Jordan will "have to pay the price" and the Jordan Valley will become a battlefield.

The latest guerrilla attacks came Thursday night and Israel reported its forces killed six Arabs in a fight north of Elath at the southern end of the country. A spokesman said the fight broke out near Beer-ora, 30 miles north of Elath.

TALKS BATTLE

Meanwhile, President Nasser called upon Egyptians to mobilize for decisive battle against Israel to erase and avenge the defeats of last summer.

He declared Egypt will not negotiate with Israel for a solution of the Middle East crisis as Israelis have been demanding.

He said this would be tantamount to surrender to Israeli ambitions for an eventual empire stretching from the Euphrates to the Nile.

Nasser several times asserted that the United States has been giving Israel full support with armaments, funds and diplomatic backing within the United Nations.

He drew applause when he paid tribute to political and military assistance Egypt has received and is receiving from the Soviet Union.

NEAR TAHSIS

Five-Mile Oil Slick Along West Coast

TAHSIS (CP) — A five-mile long slick of heavy bunker oil has spewed from the tanks of a Dutch freighter which sank near this community Jan. 4.

D. L. Abernethy, manager of Tahsis Company mill here, said Thursday the oil stretches from Bligh Island, where the freighter grounded and sank on a reef, to Gore Island in Zuciarte channel.

He said the 7,594-ton freighter Schiedyk slipped off its perch on the reef and went down in about 600 feet of water.

The oil slick "appears to be breaking up in some coves but the little bays on Bligh Island are thick with the oil.

"The ship had been visible from the air at low tide with the keel showing above water," he said. "now there is nothing showing of the ship."

There was no immediate report on the effect on birds and wildlife.

J. V. Christensen, president of Tahsis Company, said most of the oil had been removed from the hulk except an unknown amount in an inaccessible part of the ship.

Mr. Abernethy said two tugs were attempting to sweep the oil out to sea while another two vessels are spreading emulsifier on it to combat pollution.

W. R. Hourston, director of the federal fisheries department's Pacific region, said a department boat is in the area to keep track of the oil.

"We are not happy about the situation but there does not seem much that we can do now," he said.

Mr. Abernethy said a raft of logs from Gold River to the Tahsis Mill had to be turned back because the oil would have made them useless for pulp.

The mill has enough logs stockpiled to keep it operating for some time.

Guns Found Aboard Junk

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese police today ordered all boats and vehicles entering Saigon searched for arms and explosives after thwarting a Viet Cong attempt to smuggle guns into the capital on a river junk.

American infantry, meanwhile, fought a series of small battles Thursday around Saigon. U.S. B-52 bombers pounded North Vietnamese positions in the A Shau Valley, in the northern part of the country, again and again.

Help Stragglers

MANILA (UPI) — Red Cross workers today called for gas masks to help evacuate stragglers threatened by fierce volcanic eruptions from Mount Mayon. Some 30,000 families already have been moved from 35 villages in the volcano's danger zone but some had not left. The masks were needed for protection from the thick smoke and fine ash in the air.

APPOINTMENT of George W. Ball, left, as United States ambassador to the United Nations was announced Thursday by President Johnson. Ball, 58, succeeds Arthur Goldberg, who is resigning to return to private life. Goldberg denied that policy differences were behind his quitting. Ball is known as a moderate on Vietnam. Take Petition To Parliament

LONDON (AP) — Thousands of London dockers went on strike today and started a march on Parliament in Britain's growing racial storm.

Strikers shouted down a Roman Catholic priest and an Anglican clergyman who were introduced by a Communist union leader in an attempt to persuade them to go back to work. Scores of ships were left idle.

At Tilbury, the port's deepwater section handling liners for the Far East and Australasia, only 65 men reported for work out of the usual 2,000. All work stopped on 12 liners.

Up river at the Royal Group, a dock gate meeting of 2,000 voted to quit work and started assembling at Tower Hill for the march on Westminster.

The men howled down leftists who led last year's four-month dock strike—from which the port is only now recovering—and chanted "disgusting" at the two clergymen.

POWELL SUPPORTERS

Only three men voted against the strike resolution, which affirmed dockers' support for last weekend's speech of Enoch Powell demanding a ban on colored immigration. Powell's speech earned him immediate dismissal from the inner councils of the Opposition Conservative party.

The strikers said they would take to Parliament a petition signed by 3,000 dockers and ships' crew demanding an immediate immigration ban and protesting the government's Race Relations Bill.

This bill, which won approval in principle in the Commons Tuesday, extends to housing and employment a previous act's bar on discrimination in public places such as theatres and restaurants.

Any individual who claims he has been turned down for a job or as a tenant or house buyer because of color will be able to take his complaint to a tribunal and seek damages.

PRIVILEGED MINORITY

Opponents of the bill charge that it makes colored immigrants a privileged minority and that the previous act's penalties against incitement conflict with traditional freedom of speech.

When the marchers arrived at the House of Commons they were split into groups and allowed to enter the House 30 at a time to talk to MPs.

Marchers waiting outside chanted "Keep Britain white" and sang Bye-Bye Blackbird.

Down in the East End dockland striking longshoremen crowded into cafes and pubs.

Outside the Surrey commercial dock, longshoreman Harry Butler sat back, mouthed a few obscenities about colored immigrants and said he was out in support of "Knocker."

"Knocker" is the dockland nickname for Powell.

"Mind you," Butler confessed, "I'm not quite keen enough to go tramping half way across London.

'But Knocker has only said

B.C. Gets Another Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Jack Davis, 51-year-old Vancouver engineer-economist and Liberal MP for Coast-Capilano, today was appointed to the federal cabinet as minister without portfolio.

His special duties are to be announced "in the near future."

Mr. Davis' name has been mentioned recurrently in speculation about cabinet appointments since he first entered the Commons in 1962.

But his promotion today was regarded as a response to criticism of the makeup of Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet list announced last Saturday when he took office.

The so-called "caretaker" cabinet included only one member from British Columbia Northern Affairs Minister Laing — and only one other from west of Ontario—Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet.

Prime Minister Trudeau attended the swearing-in ceremony at noon today at Government House.

Mr. Davis is the seventh minister without portfolio in the cabinet. Six ministers hold double portfolios.

MOST FROM QUEBEC

Eleven of the 25-member cabinet are from Quebec, eight from Ontario, two from British Columbia and one each from Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Manitoba.

Thirteen of the 23 portfolios are held by Quebec ministers. The eight Ontario ministers have six portfolios among them.

MISS BLODGETT SUPPORTED IN BULGE 'IMAGE' BATTLE

LARKSPUR, Calif. (AP) — Elizabeth R. Blodgett, 41-year-old physical education teacher, prepared to battle for her job today as students and friends rallied to her "overweight" cause.

Miss Blodgett weighs in at 220 pounds and her high school principal, Donald Kreps, contends she must be dismissed because she doesn't "fit the image" for her line of work.

Miss Blodgett has been an instructor at Redwood high school for 12 years and she has retained a lawyer for a hearing next Monday at which an effort will be made to end her tenure.

Standing five feet, seven inches, Miss Blodgett—who holds a master's degree in physical education from San Francisco State College—weighed 170 pounds when she joined the faculty.

Then her weight increased, topped 253 last January when she visited a doctor who, she said, found a thyroid condition.

Since then, Miss Blodgett said, she's been shedding two pounds a week.

Support for Miss Blodgett has come from 89 girls who signed a petition in her behalf, and a number of parents who have had glowing words of praise.

DECIMAL SYSTEM GOING TO SEA TOO

Royal Navy Drops Fathoms From Its Charts

LONDON (AP) — The Royal Navy decided today to abolish the fathom.

The admiralty concluded the world is in the decimal age. The next deep-sea charts it issues will give the oceans' depths in metres instead of fathoms.

It's seemingly part of Britain's shift to decimals, including coinage, by 1971. The first decimal pennies appeared this week as a sort of trial for more than 50,000,000 people who have been counting in sixpences, shillings, half crowns and crowns for ever so long.

The navy planners also believe they'll sell a lot more charts in metres than in fathoms. Last year, the Admiralty sold nearly 2,000,000 charts—in fathoms.

The fathom goes back to ancient Greece, where it represented the distance between the hands of a man standing with his arms outstretched. That came down finally to an even six feet, which now makes the fathom 1,8288 metres.

The shift to metres means work for manufacturers of depth sounding equipment. It also involves drills between the man calling the depths and the man at the chart to make certain they're using the same unit. Or else there'll be the horrid screech of steel on rock.

Small coastal vessels always have used feet and inches rather than fathoms in order to be more accurate, so charts for them will continue as of old.

RULING 'WILL DO LOT OF HARM'

Nomination Voided; New Meeting May 10

Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal Association will hold a second nomination meeting "as soon as possible, probably May 10," president James Gorst said this morning after his nomination had been voided by the provincial party headquarters.

He was nominated as the riding's federal Liberal candidate only Monday during a stormy meeting which several claimed was unconstitutional because it was called at 21 days' notice, as provided in the association's charter, instead of the 60 days required by the provincial rules.

B.C. president Lawrence Jolivet announced that another nomination meeting had been ordered by a meeting in Vancouver Thursday night of provincial directors to deal with a formal complaint.

Mr. Gorst, who attended the directors' meeting, this morning said he would make no comment on the decision until he has conferred with his executive and supporters "and assessed my position."

But he said he would proceed with planning a second nomination meeting as soon as possible.

He suggested May 10 would be a likely date because it would take time to obtain a hall and print notices.

"We have to give 10 days notice too, now that a federal election has been called," he said.

"It's a sort of Alice-in-Wonderland situation," he added wryly. "One day you're supposed to give 60 days notice and the next day it's 10."

Mr. Jolivet said that the headquarters decision "in no way" questions the suitability of Mr. Gorst but was made on the basis of the timing technicality.

UNFORTUNATE SITUATION

"The well-known saying 'justice must not just be done but must also appear to be done' applies in this case," said the provincial president. "The directors feel this unfortunate situation can be completely cleared up by another nomination meeting."

He said Mr. Gorst had been assured of party support if he wins the nomination again. He was not opposed at the Monday meeting.

The directors' decision was attacked bitterly by Leonard Skelton, second vice-president of the Esquimalt-Saanich association.

He said it amounted to blackballing the association's candidate and would do a "lot of harm" to local Liberals.

"This is nothing more than a powerhouse play against a working man, an ordinary person who is very interested in the affairs of this country," said Mr. Skelton.

CHILDISH LETTER

He said the formal complaint, made by J. B. Cumming, R. B. Hutchison and F. H. Boulter, was "a most childish letter" couched in legal phraseology citing the provincial requirement of 60-day notice.

He added that Mr. Cumming was one of the signatories of the local constitution which allowed 21 days' notice.

In other local election campaign developments:

George Chatterton, Conservative candidate for re-election to the Esquimalt-Saanich seat, announced his campaign office has been established at 3200 Douglas, westside and just north of Tolmie.

Esquimalt-Saanich Social Credit federal association elected H. F. Williams president Thursday night and announced a nomination convention will be held at 8 p.m. May 10 in Lake Hill Women's Institute Hall.

Eric Charman, Conservative candidate for Victoria, announced his campaign office will open Tuesday in the former Empress Motors at Fort and Quadra.

And Victoria returning officer David Wilson said both phones have been busy steadily in his office at 1321 Quadra with persons seeking electoral jobs.

what we've all been thinking for years. It's either them or us—and I say it's us."

Another demonstrator, 43-year-old Dave Anderson, said:

"The coloreds come over here for only one reason—to sponge off the life we've built up here over hundreds of years of working our guts out.

"Their first words on arriving here are 'where's the national assistance.' Well, why should we stand for that?"

A West Indian office worker from Tilbury dock looked nervously around as he passed a group of strikers standing at a street corner.

"I thought these men were my friends," he said. "Now I can hardly look at them. . . ."

Meanwhile, Conservative MP Sir Cyril Osborne said he will ask the government to investigate loopholes in British immigration laws.

The home office already is investigating the situation at London airport where 39 immigration officers signed a "We back Powell" petition drawing attention to colored immigrants who are getting into the country on forged passports and papers.

Powell, 56-year-old former Tory defence spokesman, Thursday night called off a scheduled speaking visit to Cambridge University "to avoid embarrassment."

University authorities feared there would almost certainly have been protest demonstrations for and against Powell which might have got out of hand.

Ian Mikardo, a Laborite member of Parliament representing a dockland area of London, was hissed, booed and shouted down when he entered the Commons lobby to address the group.

George Gowers, 55, one of the group, said "he came out to see us and said he would not support us or help us. He called us a bunch of fascists. He was hissed and booed."

Mikardo, who is Jewish, said "I called one man a fascist. This was after he pointed at me and said you'll get nothing out of him. He's a Jew. They were shouting and screaming obscenities."

But the longshoremen cheered Sir Gerald Nabarro, a Conservative legislator famous for his luxuriant whiskers, who has supported Powell's stand in the current racial furore.

The longshoremen sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and handed Nabarro the petition with 5,000 signatures calling for an end to "the blind policy of unlimited immigration."

The big London suburban borough of Ealing, which has 18 per cent of colored immigrants in its school population, appealed to the government to discourage more immigrants from moving into its area. It warned that its schools cannot cope with the influx of children who had to be taught English.

But student opponents of racial discrimination called for a protest march with banners flying next Sunday to Powell's London home. But Powell will not be at home. He flew to Canada today on a private trip to participate in a conference at Mont Tremblant, Que.

might have been a minister before otherwise."

The only other minister at the ceremony was Education and Labor Minister Leslie Peterson but Mr. Bennett said he just turned up as a spectator.

The shuffle puts Mr. Loffmark, 48, at the head of a department under severe public and political attack and with spending estimates for this year totalling $168.4 million.

He first was elected in 1963 and the following year was made head of trade and industry, a portfolio which is authorized to spend only $5.1 million this year.

Mr. Black, 57, moves into the $129.5 million highways department at a time when its duties are considered substantially less onerous than the health portfolio which he took over only 16 months ago.

Shortly after he succeeded Eric Martin, who quit the health ministry and public life due to failing health, Mr. Black himself underwent a spinal operation from which he still is recovering.

He retains the provincial secretary's portfolio which he has held since 1952 as a charter member of the Bennett administration.

In past years, he has taken over and relinquished the municipal affairs and social welfare ministries.

He was parliamentary secretary to former prime minister Pearson from 1963 until early 1966, when he was made parliamentary secretary to Energy Minister Pepin.

Montreal Lottery Said to Be Illegal

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Jean Drapeau's lottery to gain tax revenue for Montreal was called illegal Thursday night by Prof. Desmond Morton of Osgoode Hall Law School.

Prof. Morton, one of three members of a panel discussing lotteries, said that although the Montreal scheme is illegal the federal and provincial governments have not taken steps to stop it.

"When we allow disrespect for the law in one area it brings down the respect for the law in other areas," he said. "The way to change the law is not by flagrantly abusing it."

The panel opposed lotteries to raise money for hospitals or education.

U.S. Visit Planned By Thieu

LONG XUYEN, Vietnam (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu today said he is willing to accept a Vietnam war cease-fire that contains guarantees against the Communists taking advantage of the situation.

Thieu also told newsmen that he will fly to Washington late in May or early in June to "talk war and peace with President Johnson."

Thieu said he also plans to meet all U.S. presidential candidates during his first visit to the country.

The president said he would be willing to accept the cease-fire if the guarantees insured the Communist guerrillas would not use it to grab control of more hamlets.

Thieu said one condition for an allied cease-fire decision would be having enough troops to "seal" the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam and the nation's other borders.

North Vietnam sends much of its arms and men to South Vietnam across the DMZ and also uses the Ho Chi Minh trial routes running through Laos and Cambodia.

He also warned against a total halt to U.S. bombings of North Vietnam.

EXPECTED to retire is veteran member of Parliament for Winnipeg South Centre, Gordon Churchill, 69. The former Tory minister of trade and commerce was first elected to the House in 1951.

'NO CHANGE' IN TALKS STALL

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The U.S. and North Vietnam remained deadlocked over a choice of site for preliminary peace talks despite a brief flurry of hopes raised by a new message from Hanoi Friday.

Officials today said the North Vietnamese message, delivered orally in the Laotian capital of Vientiane, "did not respond" to the last U.S. note to Hanoi dispatched Monday.

Although they refused to disclose contents of the North Vietnamese note, they said it dealt only with a "peripheral matter" and could not be construed as a reply

President Johnson, during a brief press conference at the White House, said he had no more information to pass on about the effort to agree with Hanoi on a peace talks site.

"We are exactly where we were several days ago," one source commented.

The U.S. has offered the North Vietnamese their choice of 15 possible locations in Europe and Asia. Hanoi has countered by proposing the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh or Warsaw, Poland, both of which the U.S. regards as unsuitable.

GEORGE BALL REPLACES GOLDBERG

LBJ Sends Viet 'Dove' to UN

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has chosen George W. Ball, a strong advocate of a negotiated Vietnam war settlement, to succeed Arthur Goldberg as ambassador to the United Nations.

Ball, 58, is a former high state department official. His appointment to the post Goldberg quit was viewed in the capital as fresh evidence that Johnson has decided to make a determined effort during his last nine months in office to negotiate an end to the Vietnam war.

Ball has made his criticisms of U.S. policy known particularly since resigning as undersecretary of state in October, 1966. Thus his willingness to return to government surprised Washington circles as much as did Johnson's decision to ask him back.

Reached Thursday evening by telephone in Mont Tremblant, Que., where he is attending a conference of an independent group concerned with Atlantic community problems, Ball said Johnson asked him to serve during the remaining months of the president's term "and this is what I am going to do."

Johnson announced Thursday at a news conference that Goldberg, 59, had resigned and would be replaced by Ball. The president said the change probably would become effective in early June after Goldberg handles "certain matters now under way" at the United Nations.

Goldberg will handle the American argument for UN acceptance of a treaty proposed by the U.S., Russia, and Britain to outlaw the spread of nuclear weapons.

At a New York news conference following the president's announcement, Goldberg said he had worked in the cause of Vietnam peace during his 33 months as UN ambassador. He added:

"I have resigned in the belief that I can best further these objectives in private life," he said. While acknowledging there had been Vietnam policy differences within the administration, he said that had not motivated his decision to resign.

There have been reports in Washington that he was disappointed at not being assigned to Johnson's diplomatic team for any Vietnam peace negotiations.

When Ball's appointment was announced he was flying to Montreal to attend a meeting in Mont Tremblant of the Bilderberg Conference, comprised of Western European and American public figures who meet periodically to discuss Atlantic problems.

Robbed of $9,511

VANCOUVER (CP) — A hotel employee on the way from a bank to her place of employment was stopped at gunpoint on a street Thursday and robbed of $9,511 she carried in a handbag. Police said the holdup occurred outside the hotel where Barbara Lansing, about 20, is employed.

onds. Police reported a storm of calls inquiring how serious the shock was. "We also," an officer said, "got calls after the blast asking when it was going to happen."

Seismologists reckoned the shock had a magnitude of 6.5 on the Richter earthquake scale, which rates those at 7 or more as major. A 6.5 shock is strong enough to cause damage if it occurs close to populated areas.

BIGGEST YET

The blast was rated as having the force of about 1,000,000 tons of TNT, slightly larger than any previous test here.

The device being tested was an experimental hydrogen bomb in a chamber, 3,800 feet under Pahute Mesa in a lonely desert area.

The United Auto Workers appealed Thursday to President Johnson for a postponement to evaluate hazards. Vice-President Humphrey's office, various congressmen and the governor of Nevada got similar requests.

The Federation of American Scientists—a group of 2,200 physicists and other scientists —called in Washington, D.C., for an indefinite suspension of all U.S. nuclear testing.

Howard Hughes, who has invested millions in Nevada hotels and casinos, asked for a 90-day delay. Aides said there was fear the blast might contaminate water or air or cause quakes.

The AEC replied that it already has spent $11,000,000 on studies and deemed the test safe. It said no off site damage or radiation leaks were expected and that there was no evidence that such a blast could cause a quake.

'DON'T PERFORM ABORTIONS'

LONDON (AP) — Abortion becomes legal in Britain Saturday, and John Cardinal Heenan warned the country's 5,500 Roman Catholic doctors today they should not perform any.

The Archbishop of Westminster said:

"Direct killing of the innocent whether born or unborn is against the law of God. That is the principle upon which Catholic teaching is based."

He also instructed Roman Catholic medical workers, including an estimated 20,000 nurses, not to help in abortions.

The new law allows women to get abortions for physical, mental and social reasons and also if their children are likely to be born defective.

Peace Without Peacefulness

THE SUSPICION IS BEING tragically reinforced that if any peace talks result in the near future from the current propaganda-manoeuvring for a site on which to hold preliminary meetings, they may be destined to become merely endless bouts of face-saving thrust-and-parry. The climate that is being established in the present phase gives little indication of a real determination to negotiate a settlement of the war.

The mechanics of the in-fighting to find agreement on a location suggest a trial of strength rather than a co-operative movement toward the peace table. It appears as though the trend of the jungle fighting will have more influence on the course of the preliminary diplomatic sparring than will any mutual desire to come to negotiated terms.

The suggestion of Paris as the scene of talks seems a reasonable one, particularly in view of France's recognition of the Peking government, its complete withdrawal from Southeast Asian claims, and the physical facilities for handling a meeting involving world-wide communications. Geneva would seem equally acceptable. But if the Communists are in truth—as has been suggested—using the current exchanges merely as a test of strength, then logical proposals will get nowhere for the time being.

If American acceptance of Warsaw were to be construed as a measure of the mood in which the United States would approach the conference table—anxious to make peace, willing to concede further points in order to get a settlement, unwilling to let even a preliminary loss of face stand in the way of stopping the fighting—then the North Vietnamese may be willing to string out this phase of nerve-war to the breaking point.

The United States, on the other hand, may be playing the same game, with the added consideration that the Saigon government must be impressed with American toughness and resistance to North Vietnamese pressures. It all adds up to a somewhat preposterous charade while both sides prepare to intensify the fighting on the battlefront.

It may be that the climate is not yet prepared for peace talks, that the attrition of men and wealth must proceed further along its tragic course before negotiations can begin. If that is so, then the peace will not be a triumph of reason but merely an effect of destruction; it will be a peace of exhaustion rather than of intelligent decision, and perhaps will be all the more uncertain because of that.

The peace that came to the Middle East a few months ago was due to the almost total destruction of the war-making capacity of one side. The danger is that such a peace may not long survive the rebuilding of that war-making potential. It is peace by force, not by conviction and mutual will. Such a settlement in Vietnam, where there has been almost continuous warfare for a quarter of a century, would not likely prove conclusive.

For and Against the Bill

DID THE UNITED STATES Senate finally pass President Johnson's long-sought request for a tax increase at a time when the extra funds may no longer be so necessary and the desire to cool down the economy not so imperative? This is the question facing the House of Representatives, to which the Senate passed on the tax measure.

House critics of the bill, which would raise $15.6 billions through a 10 per cent surtax and would cut $6 billions from government spending, are now saying that it would be an economic blunder. It would, they claim, increase unemployment by one million persons within a year, threaten recession throughout the world as well as at home, force up prices through increased costs, discourage investment and increase the dollar drain through declining profitability. The critics in the House are talking politics, perhaps, more than economics. They are all up for reelection this year and voting in favor of tax increases doesn't often increase popularity with constituents.

Politics aside, however, the legislators will undoubtedly want to relate the tax measure to the war in Vietnam even though it is certainly arguable that a switch-over from a quasi-wartime to a peacetime economy will inevitably be slow and uncertain as hopes are raised and lowered by long-dawn-out negotiations. Treasury Department officials are still urging that taxes be increased. From their point of view, it is imperative to convince the international bankers that the dollar will be kept strong. After all, even if the level of arms spending is decreased, the budget deficit for this fiscal year will be an estimated $20 to $25 billions.

Economists, too, will be pointing out that while slackening of defence production could theoretically reduce inflationary pressures, those pressures are today at a possibly dangerously high level. Hopes for a Vietnam settlement could release a strong surge of pent-up demand—both actual and psychological—for deferred consumer goods and services. On the labor front high wage increases have been won in recent settlements and are being demanded in contracts yet to be negotiated.

What the picture adds up to is that the strains on the American economy—and in the international monetary field—produced by the Vietnam war will be a long time subsiding even if there is progress made toward a peaceful settlement.

A Reminder From Ecuador

THIS WEEK'S REPORT BY THE Ecuadorean navy that it had arrested and detained a Canadian fishing boat, the Atlantic Jag, on poaching charges, focusses attention once more on the long delay in fixing baselines from which Canada will measure its 12-mile fishing limits. Details of the Ecuadorean seizure are lacking, but that country claims jurisdiction over fisheries extending 200 miles from its coast —a claim it shares with several other South American nations. Canada's 12-mile limit is modest by comparison, but while Ecuador makes arrests, this country continues to debate, or to shelve discussion on baselines.

The problem here arises from Canada's desire to avoid friction with the United States over determining the geographical co-ordinates from which those lines will be drawn: point-to-point according to the precedent set for a relatively small area off Newfoundland.

Application of the principle on the British Columbia coast would exclude most foreign fishermen from valuable fisheries. Although provision has been made in the negotiations with the United States to allow Americans historic rights to fish in areas to which they have previously enjoyed access, the United States is not reassured. This attitude of our big neighbor is understandable, since "historic rights," as Canadians see them, would be gradually phased out.

In the meantime, Canada can note that a fish boat of one of its nationals has been arrested and held by Ecuador, a country with a population about one-fifth of ours, for poaching in what the South American nation considers its waters. This is comparable to the arrest and detention of United States fish boats in other South American waters. The South Americans apparently make their territorial laws stick.

". . . Well, actually, none of us has ever really FLOWN one . . ."

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

Off and Running—in the Dark

THE POLITICIANS are off and running in our fourth general election within six years. Things have changed so much since 1965 that the old form charts will be of very little assistance on this occasion. For example, the theme of the last election, developed on countless platforms by Mr. Pearson, was the imperative need for a return to majority government. The present prime minister, who may not have been much impressed with the 1965 voter response, treats this subject philosophically. The people, he says, are entitled to elect the type of government they prefer and, whether it be majority or minority, he is prepared to govern. It will be ironic if this approach produces the result which eluded Mr. Pearson.

Western

In a statement issued immediately after dissolution, Mr. Trudeau lists various reasons for appealing to the people at the present time. The most important, presumably, is that an immediate election will dispel the present atmosphere of uncertainty and thus make for greater economic stability. (However, the prime minister also emphasized at his press conference that in his new position he should have a mandate from the people and not merely one from the Liberal party.)

Optimistic

There is a rather odd point here. According to the statement, "a stable political situation is necessary for economic stability and will enable the government to deal effectively with changes in domestic and world economic conditions." This, of course, was Mr. Pearson's argument; he equated a stable political situation with majority government. We have had neither political nor economic stability and Mr. Trudeau is optimistic if he expects either without a majority in the House of Commons.

But the argument for ending the long period of uncertainty is a strong one; much more persuasive than some other reasons for an election advanced in a statement which may have been issued in some haste. Thus Mr. Trudeau notes that, since the last election, almost a million citizens have become eligible to vote. While this is true, our population base is now such that we can expect these large increments every two or three years. The figures scarcely constitute an argument for a specific election although they might be used to justify more frequent elections. Most people will feel, however, that we have done fairly well in this regard in the 1960s.

There is also the undeniable and very important fact that the present Parliament does not reflect redistribution. This, of course, is the government's fault. It was precisely for this reason that most newspapers did their best in 1965 to dissuade Mr. Pearson from the election urged upon him by Mr. Walter Gordon.

Less Controversial

In one sense the 1968 election is less controversial than its predecessor. Mr. Stanfield officially welcomes it. His criticism is directed at Mr. Trudeau's posture. Having opted for the election, the prime minister goes to the country with no record, no policy and no proof of his ability to govern the country — and, of course, with a transitional cabinet. There is the usual political exaggeration in this: certainly Mr. Trudeau's constitutional views are much better known then those of Mr. Stanfield. But even with this allowance, the criticism has sting.

Mr. Trudeau dealt lightly with the possible objection that his predecessor, on behalf of all members of the cabinet had given assurances to Mr. Douglas in regard to the drug bill. It would, he explained, have been item number one if the government had proceeded with business and is a post-election priority. Mr. Pearson's actual statement seemed more specific and there may be objections from the NDP that the new prime minister has skimmed too easily through his Hansard reading.

On the evidence of the preliminary statements of the two leaders, the country may be treated for a change to a high level political campaign. Mr. Trudeau, who sounded serious and sometimes tough at his press conference, said that he was not seeking a Liberal victory on what is called "Trudeausim." His intention is to discuss issues. Mr. Stanfield, looking equally stern, said that any attempt by his followers to take advantage of an anti-French backlash "would be very severely discouraged by me." He is also anxious to discuss issues.

This is admirable but issues must be developed if people are to make intelligent choices. Mr. Trudeau mentioned several "issues" in his statement and at the press conference. But as matters stand, they are merely subject heads. "As examples, I could mention the need to reform Parliament and the public administration, to revise the relations between federal and provincial governments, to recognize and implement linguistic and other human rights, to reduce regional economic disparity, and to review our foreign policy in the light of changing international conditions." Everyone recognizes these needs. The question is: what are the specific proposals of the new government for meeting them?

Mr. Stanfield placed rather more emphasis on pressing economic problems, repeating his charges of incompetence and mismanagement. When he came to prescriptions, however (except perhaps, in recommending a new approach to medicare) he dealt largely in generalities. Indeed, his remarks sounded at times like recitations of the goals of the Economic Council of Canada. But how would he achieve these goals? Would he in fact counter inflation with tough policies when he has already protested against the uncivilized character of Mr. Sharp's mild restraints?

Personality Contrast

If a high level campaign means nothing more than competition in stratospheric generalities, there is considerable risk that the election may degenerate into a popularity contest between the "swinger" and the "plain looking guy who . . . must be trying to tell the truth." Certainly the contrast of personalities promises to be very striking. The electorate will be much better served, however, by a more candid and serious exposition by both leaders. We are starting in the dark; we know little at this moment of the prime minister's "comprehensive program of reform." It is up to Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Stanfield to illuminate the campaign with meaningful statements so that issues may be defined and the country afforded a decent opportunity to draw its own contrasts between the specific policy proposals of the major parties.

The New Persecution

New York Times

Just twenty-five years ago the uprising in the Warsaw ghetto began, when several thousand Jews in courage and despair said "No" to the Nazi keepers of the charnel house. The resistants knew from the beginning that it was a hopeless struggle, that Nazi superiority in numbers and arms would prevail, and that the gas chambers—or worse—were the certain outcome. Nevertheless the fighters of the ghetto fought, and fought well, for weeks and in some cases even for months. Before Hitler achieved his goal of making Warsaw Judenrein, one of the great heroic sagas of man had been written in blood and tears.

All during the agony of the Warsaw ghetto, the people of the city that encircled it lived more or less normally; there was no general uprising or other major effort to aid those so desperately fighting the Nazis, virtually with bare hands. Not all Poles were passive, of course, nor were all Jews heroes. There were numbers of non-Jewish Poles who lost their lives or risked them to help the doomed thousands in the ghetto. There were even a few Jews who betrayed their own people. But these were the exceptions—on both sides.

By one of history's ironies, a quarter of a century after these terrible events the tiny handful of Jews remaining in Poland, less than 30,000 of the more than three million before the war, are going through a new agony and a new persecution. The Nazis built a physical wall to contain and isolate the Jews; Poland's Communist rulers have used a fictitious image to achieve the same result. The charge of "Zionism" is now directed largely at assimilated, de-Judaized, and Communist persons of Jewish origin who had become so Polonized that they could and did remain in Poland, trying to ignore the ghosts of the past that haunt that land.

Future generations in a free and more enlightened Poland will doubtless remember both the passivity of their ancestors in 1943 and their verbal pogrom of 1968 with shame, regret and incredulity.

As soon as the deal between B. F. Graham Lumber Co. and the Seattle and New Mexico capitalists, who have bought the plant and stock, is completed, a commencement is likely to be made with the building of the mill at Esquimalt.

Cost of the new mill is estimated at $100,000 and it will be built on the site secured some time ago by the company at Thetis Cove. Capacity of the mill will be 100,000 feet per day.

Warning on Middle East

By RICHARD PURSER
from Washington

FORMER Prime Minister Pearson gave a valedictory for his many American fans in a U.S. network television interview on Sunday, the day after he relinquished office to Prime Minister Trudeau. Mr. Pearson is greatly admired among knowledgeable Americans, who look to his contributions to international relations rather than to the domestic troubles that beset him while he was prime minister.

Purser

He is invariably referred to here as the man behind the United Nations Emergency Force, which was set up following the Arab-Israeli war of 1956. This was the effort that brought him the Nobel Peace Prize.

In his television broadcast, Mr. Pearson included a few remarks about the Middle East. He noted that there was a general failure to take proper advantage of the crises of 1956 and 1967. No genuine peacekeeping forces, equipped with real power to keep the peace, were created on either occasion. Little progress was being made today, and it did not appear that there will be another ten-year gap before the next outbreak.

In hindsight, it is clear that the United Nations should have been more insistent on maintaining the original partition plan of 1948, for an Arab state in Palestine, a Jewish state in Palestine, and an international city of Jerusalem. Lacking resolution of the basic problem, an explosion is inevitable.

Timely

Mr. Pearson's remarks were timely. It has been quite clear around the state department during the past week that diplomatic desk officers have had a succession of unpleasant memos about the Middle East sitting in their "in" trays.

At a time like this, when Canada is worried about its economy, national unity, and the hope for a stable government, and the United States is worried about its economy, its politics, its race relations, and its foreign policy, it is uncharitable to predict still further areas of difficulty. But the relative tranquility in the past several months has been misleading, and it is just as well to prepare for the worst. The Middle East situation is heading straight for collapse and a new crisis.

Late last November, Gunnar Jarring of Sweden was appointed as a United Nations intermediary to trot back and forth between Israel and the Arab capitals in pursuit of ways out of the situation created by last year's June war. This was widely hailed at the time as a way of taking the dispute out of the arena of pubic invective and into the chambers of quiet diplomacy.

So it was. But in the five months that have passed, quiet diplomacy has not done its work. The Israelis have shown no indication of relinquishing conquered Arab territories for anything less than direct negotiations with the Arabs followed by a mutually agreed peace treaty. And the Arabs have shown no indication of negotiating with the Israelis or even accepting the existence of Israel as a Jewish state among Arab lands.

There never was any meeting ground between the Arab and Israeli positions, and there is none now. President Nasser of Egypt last Thursday delivered a Churchillian speech to a rural mass audience. He spoke of a "course stained with blood and sweat" before victory, and of a "long, bitter and difficult" struggle against Israel. This absence of false heroics was rather out of keeping with the traditions of Arab rhetoric, which tends to equate the undone with the achieved, the hope with the fact, and power with its absence. "Everyone is perhaps running out of patience," Mr. Nasser said. He added:

Nasser Statement

"We are facing one of the most critical and difficult circumstances ever faced by an Arab nation. Hence, we have to control ourselves. We have to be patient, at the same time building our political and military edifice."

If the Arabs, as represented by Mr. Nasser, are getting more realistic, it does not mean that they are becoming resigned to the existence of Israel. It means only that they are becoming resigned to the fact that it will take time, unity and preparation to eliminate Israel.

The feeling here, as regards any hope for a peaceful solution to the Middle East's problems, is pessimistic. Mr. Jarring's mission is regarded as on its last legs. Mr. Jarring repeatedly visits Israel, only to tell Arabs afterwards that Israel will not withdraw from occupied territories prior to negotiations. But the Arabs will discuss nothing prior to Israeli withdrawal.

In the same United Nations resolution that paved the way for the appointment of Mr. Jarring last November, Israel was called upon to withdraw its forces and settle the refugee problem, and the Arabs were called upon to recognize permanent frontiers of Israel (and thus Israel itself), and freedom of shipping in the Suez Canal and the Straits of Tiran.

The Arabs seek unilateral Israeli implementation of the parts of the resolution applicable to Israel; the Israelis seek package negotiations.

There is no meeting ground, there are no signs of give and take. The Israelis insist that there shall be a Jewish state in the Middle East, and Israel's Arab neighbors insist that there shall not. This feeling was strong when this writer visited the Arab states surrounding Israel less than four years ago, and diplomatic sources in Washington suggest that today it is stronger still.

How 'Frere Untel' Looks at Quebec After His Exile

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

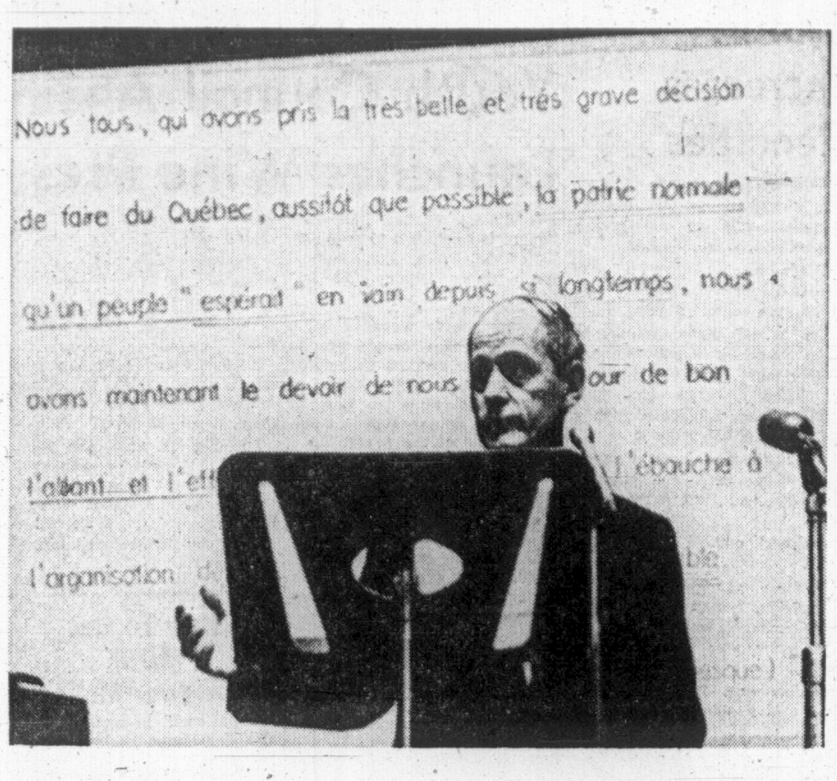
(First of Two Articles)

QUEBEC—Eight years ago Frere Untel (Brother Anonymous) wrote 12 letters that shook Quebec.

"The axe—we must work with the axe!" was the message of the Roman Catholic teaching brother, demanding revolutionary reforms in education, language, religious bureaucracy and personal freedom.

A fantastic response from high and low astonished nobody more than the young brother, who sometimes ironically termed himself "the little blue rabbit". His work, expanded into a book, "Les Insolences du Frere Untel" (The Impertinences of Brother Anonymous), sold 122,000 copies at a record pace.

Then came European exile, but Brother Jean Paul Desbiens—anonymity had long been cast aside—returned as a hero and prophet of Quebec's Quiet Revolution. He took a place as an official in the new educational system he had helped so much to bring about.



Nous tous, qui avons pris la très belle et très grave décision de faire du Québec, aussitôt que possible, la patrie normale qu'un peuple "espérait" en vain depuis si longtemps, nous avons maintenant le devoir de nous our de bon

A sovereign Quebec with economic ties to Canada through a common market arrangement is the goal of Rene Levesque, shown above at the weekend rally in Montreal which began the transformation of various separatist organizations into a single political party. Like Mr. Levesque, Brother Jean Paul Desbiens, whose experiences and views are described in the story at left, was one of the early pioneers of Quebec's "Quiet Revolution". Unlike the separatist leader he still hopes there is a place for his province within Confederation.

Now this passionately articulate son of the French-Canadian soil, doctor of philosophy and "radically common man," is appalled by another danger. "We're in danger of losing our country—the freest country in the world," he told a reporter in tones of anger and almost unbelief.

The accession to the prime ministry of Pierre Elliott Trudeau is nothing less than Canada's "last test," in the view of Brother Desbiens.

Failure of Mr. Trudeau and his team to stir the imagination of Canadians would plunge him into pessimism but, he emphasized, "I have full confidence in Trudeau and his ability to find new solutions for new problems."

Three Wise Men

The tall, intense teacher-administrator is no band-wagon-jumper. He made an uncanny observation three years ago when Mr. Trudeau, Jean Marchand and Gerald Pelletier, dubbed "the three wise men," left the provincial scene and entered federal politics.

"With you three in Ottawa, our options will become clarified," Brother Desbiens then told his three friends. "We are making the definitive test to see if Canada is viable. If you fail, we can turn squarely down the road to independence, without remorse and with clear conscience."

Brother Desbiens, 41, has spoken mainly to his fellow French-Canadians in his two books and other public statements. And they are scorchers, though filled with sometimes rough, sometimes tender affection.

Have Failed

But Brother Desbiens, member since boyhood of the Marist Congregation, also has a profound criticism of his English-language fellow-countrymen—that they, in effect, have failed to be Canadians.

Though manifestly not an average man, or average anything, Brother Desbiens, son of an illiterate lumberjack, regards himself as typically French-Canadian, not French, to the core.

It is not only by looking around him but by looking deeply into his own reactions, feelings and aspirations that he forms his ideas about the future of Canada.

He emerges as a nationalist who is opposed to separatism—ready to fight it—but who at the same time is only too clearly able to see a situation where he would say goodbye to Canada and go along with a breakaway Quebec.

"I'm a nationalist and I mean by that that I was born a Quebecois and will die a Quebecois," he said.

In the introduction to the English edition of his book, Brother Desbiens wrote more than two years ago of a Canada inhabited by two "non-contemporary peoples." He continued:

"What will become of it and its single maple leaf? You ought to be pondering the question, you people of English Canada. The danger is that you will forget really to give it a thought, while we will have made our choice on our own."

In his interview, Brother Desbiens said he is more than ever convinced that the English-Canadian response has been insufficient to French-Canadian aspirations and devotion to their land.

He referred to the 1930s period of R. B. Bennett, the first prime minister he can recall. English-speaking people at that time were indifferent to Canadianism.

FRERE DESBIENS
. . . Trudeau 'last test'

"I guess—I'm not sure, I'm not a sociologist—they were British," said the cleric. "We were Canadians.

"Since that time, a few of them are Canadians, a few are indifferent or American, but we are more and more Quebecers and less and less Canadian."

Brother Desbiens recalled, in illustration, that during his 1961-63 European stay he invariably introduced himself as a French-Canadian but now "I've taken the habit of saying I'm Quebecois."

"This simply means I don't want to miss the boat. When you have, as I have, the ambition to play a kind of public role, you have to be careful not to cut yourself off from the root of your immediate environment.

"It would be nothing, a matter of no relevance, to me to have an audience in Toronto and Winnipeg if I lost my audience here in Quebec.

No Separatist

"So I'm no separatist. I'm still a Canadian. But if I see that the whole nation, my nation, is going to take a separatist option, well, I will go with them. I intend to do all I can to prevent this happening."

Quebec has enjoyed a "radical educational and religious revolution" since Brother Desbiens burst anonymously upon the scene in the 1959-60 school year. He wrote with a freshness of language, an impish, irrepressible, self-mocking humor and with the wisdom of a man who in six years as a tubercular invalid had learned to look on life with an unblinking stare.

"When I think, if I think at all, I think of liberty, but when I want to act, I do what I'm told to do," he wrote bitterly.

He sent a personal letter to Andre Laurendeau, then editor of Le Devoir and since co-chairman of the famed royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

Shielded Him

Mr. Laurendeau published it, inserting the signature Frere Untel to shield the writer, then teaching at Chicoutimi. His religious name was Pierre Jerome but he later reverted to his family name, Desbiens, when church practice in such matters changed.

"It was not a plan—I didn't say this year I will write 12 letters," he recalled. "It was a sort of dialogue between the first letter and the reaction."

It was an editorial by Mr. Laurendeau describing the speech of French-Canadian students as "joual talk" that set Brother Desbiens off. Joual, the name given to the vulgar form of Quebec French, he said, had become virtually a way of life:

"The thing and the name are alike, both hateful. The word joual is a summary description of what it is like to talk joual, to say joual instead of cheval, horse. It is to talk as horses would talk. . . ."

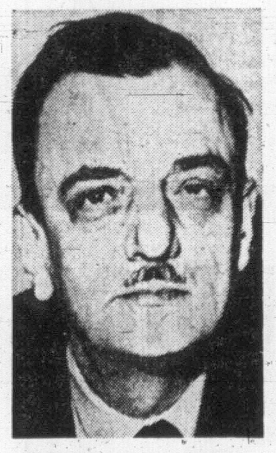
Soon Frere Untel was hitting harder:

"Nothing that is oppressive is Christian. Christianity is essentially a liberating force. One of these days French-Canadians will discover that liberation. . . . Of the three lusts which all men know, the one that scourges mankind most harshly is the third, the one of which nothing is said, the one never denounced from the pulpit, the spirit of domination."

Most Liberal

Brother Desbiens, who now is programs director of Quebec's colleges of general and professional training, feels the province has evolved into the most liberal society in Canada. President de Gaulle's words last year were an affront.

"Personally I was very humiliated by this incident," he said. "I don't need de Gaulle to come and tell me I am free. Pouff! Bull! I know I am. And if I am not more free, it is not the fault of the English. I am not free to fly because I have no wings."



ANDRE LAURENDEAU
. . . published letter

In his autobiography, For Pity's Sake, Brother Desbiens derides the grenade-makers, the would-be bomb-throwers and the constitution-makers, saying it is time to define "clearly the practical means of reaching our goal."

"The means boil down to one thing only, the acquisition of competence. . . . Dignity isn't a constitution locked up in an English safe."

Brother Desbiens is down-to-earth in his thoughts on Canada:

A Challenge

"I have a kind of intellectual pleasure thinking of this country from coast to coast. It was a challenge to build Canada against geography, you know, east-west, rather than north-south.

"This challenge was honored, respected. It is inspiring to see the challenge honored.

"At Montreal Central Station the other day I heard an announcement. "The train from Vancouver will arrive at 5:10 on track 20." Well, I had a kind of thrill to hear that. Perhaps it is not serious, significant.

"But myself, for one, I had this kind of psychological, not very serious pleasure and proudness to hear that — a train from Vancouver, and Vancouver is the same country."

He cited a Montreal example also as a symbol "of the difficulty and also the possibility of one Canada."

"The Montreal Board of Trade and the Chambre de Commerce de District de Montreal now live together in a new building, opened this year.

Duplication

"Everything is duplicated — a French administration, an English administration, etcetera. They told me they are not able to work together on a single project. Each project has to be taken in hand by one or the other chairman, to speak symbolically. The English forget to make French texts. Yet the English had the idea first to put the two together.

"They look like different worlds. I asked them, starting from this — can we have one country? Some said yes, some no. No sociologists, no historians there, you know. No ideology. Business is business.

"I think it is a good symbol. The French-Canadians there are not at all discouraged. One edifice. One decorator. Different decorations. Business, pragmatic, North American, both sides."

Singing of Tree Toads A Harbinger of Spring

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Dear Dr. Carl: One warm spring morning the tree-toads were singing on the edge of the woods off Martindale Road. Were they old adults or toads approaching their first spring? Do all of them lay their eggs in water?"—G.B.

Ordinarily at this time of year all adult tree-toads in our area congregate in temporary pools in order to breed and the males celebrate the occasion by singing in chorus. If the pond is a large one and its amphibian population correspondingly high the sound produced can be almost deafening and can carry a considerable distance. When the listener is not too close the effect is comparatively melodious and it is usually most welcome as it is so closely associated with spring.

Carl

However, I gather that the singing referred to by our correspondent was that of individuals, not a chorus, and was in fact the call note usually used by tree-toads when resting in shrubbery out of the water. This is quite a different sound to that produced by courting males; it is a more relaxed, grating note uttered at irregular intervals and giving the impression that the singer is content with the world. It is the sound produced by adult males in late summer and early fall after the hectic breeding season is well over.

I would guess, then, that the soloists in question were non-breeding individuals, possibly males not yet old enough to join the ranks of the pond singers. It is assumed that our local tree-toads do not breed until their second spring but they might very well be large enough to call during their first year of life. Even though these animals are abundant and fairly well known much yet remains to be learned concerning the details of their life history.

As for breeding habits in general, our common tree-toad, the northwestern toad, and the various kinds of frogs found in this area all lay their eggs in water. Thus the adult members of these groups are usually found in or around water in the spring.

Using fresh water as a nursery for the young is a basic characteristic of amphibians since they are essentially water animals. Some of the more highly evolved forms, however, have become less dependant upon water for existence by "inventing" other ways of caring for the eggs and young.

For example, the male mid-wife toad of Europe carries the eggs entwined in strings of jelly around his hind legs for some weeks. Eventually the tadpoles hatch when the toad enters water but by this time they are well-developed. Some frogs of Central and South America carry their eggs in a pouch on the back where they pass through the larval stage and from which they finally emerge as froglets without entering water at all.

Such devices are useful where temporary pools of water may be scarce or where predation is a serious factor. Such is not the case in most areas on this continent consequently all our frog and toad species spawn in water as their ancestors have since early times in earth's history.

Doctors Need Education In Democratic Process

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

(Mr. Fisher, a former NDP MP, lectures in Canadian government at Carleton University. Mr. Crowe is associate professor of history at Atkinson College, York University.)

Dr. H. D. Dalgleish, president of the Canadian Medical Association, in an address in Vancouver, has held out the prospect of a national doctors' strike against medicare. Here we go again.

Fisher

He said: "What else are we going to do? We're not unionized."

It would be difficult to compress more misconceptions into two short sentences. The first logical inference one can draw from them is that if you have unions you don't have strikes. And conversely, where strikes occur there are no unions. Canadians are not noted for their knowledge of labor matters, but can there be many among us who are so uninformed?

The second inference is that the medical associations do not have most of the characteristics of trade unions. In fact they are very similar to tightly-organized craft unions which have closed-shop arrangements.

Crowe

This point was extremely well-put in an editorial in The Globe and Mail, July 11, 1962, at the time of the Saskatchewan doctors' strike: "From the birth of this nation medical associations have been a law unto themselves. They have absolute control over the recruiting, training, licensing and practising of doctors. Theirs has been the most autonomous, all powerful union in the country.

"Their powers have extended not only over members of the profession but, through the nature of the profession itself, into the lives of most of us.

"When the laity has raised infrequent objections to such control, the profession has always replied that only medical men could understand medical problems — an insult to all good, non-medical brains in the country."

The third inference in Dr. Dalgleish's two sentences is that he wants the medical association to be "unionized" — that is to have all the important attributes of a labor union. Now the one feature which is lacking is an employer-employee relationship with someone who is hiring the doctors. But this surely is precisely the opposite from what has been agitating the medical profession.

The fourth logical inference to be drawn from these remarks is that Dr. Dalgleish is under the impression that in industrial relations strikes take place after a law has been passed. We have news for him. Laws are passed to prevent strikes — and they are obeyed by unions. This has happened almost every two years with special enactments to keep railway workers on the job. The Dalgleish advice to railway workers is, "Don't withdraw from the service until the Parliament of Canada passes an act like the Continuation of the Operation of the Railways Act, and then strike in defiance of the law."

When you reflect that it was the Canadian Medical Association which was originally responsible for having the Hall Royal Commission on Health Services set up, and that its submission to that Commission was one of the best the Commission received, how do you explain the fact that the spokesmen of the medical profession persist in doing such damage to them selves?

Our press clippings of the Saskatchewan doctors' strike are loaded with nonsense statements by the two principal spokesmen for the medical profession, Doctors Dalgleish and Barootes. Now, we know a large number of literate, informed doctors — some of them ardent opponents of medicare, most rather lukewarm and indifferent opponents. Why does the profession not speak through people like this?

It is possible the answer lies in the nature of the training which a doctor must undergo. A young man going into medicine has years of long hours of highly technical training ahead of him, at most a few hours of elementary liberal education. And once in practice there is little time for self-education.

Despite these seemingly impossible problems of timetabling a more rounded education, surely something must be done, at least for future members of the profession, to impart some of the basic concepts of a democratic society and of the need for due processes of law.

If labor unions were to do what the doctors did in Saskatchewan and what Dr. Dalgleish is now proposing, there would be utter anarchy in this country. Anarchy would beget oppression and the two would foster uncontrollable violence, upheaval, and the destruction of civilized institutions.

We assume — although we would like to be entirely reassured — that this is not what the Canadian Medical Association is prepared to contemplate. We would like to go back to its submission to the Hall Commission and its proposal of other top priorities for our society along with a modified medicare — with respect to pollution, income replacement for those who are ill — and the like.

That is the level upon which meaningful exchanges could take place between those who are in the profession and those who are involved actively in the political process. It is the legislative forum, with all the corridors of power in which consent is given and secured, and decisions reached. And it is possible that the profession in some matters might have recourse to the judicial forum.

But once the threat of a strike against society itself is raised, then those who believe in democratic institutions and in a society based up on due process of law have a single objective, a single duty: to defend those institutions and to preserve that society.

Hospital Down 'But Not Out'

Setback 'Only Temporary' Says St. Joseph's Board

By PETE LOUDON

St. Joseph's Hospital is down but far from out, the annual meeting was told Thursday.

Several of the reports submitted by executive members referred to the current $45,330 deficit and the expenses not met by B.C. Hospital Insurance Service repayments.

But at the same time, they gave this message to staff and patients:

This is a temporary setback. The hospital is going to withstand "dilution of patient care" and carry on serving the community with the same spirit of dedication evidenced over the past 91 years.

Chariman of the board of management, Fred E. Norris, though absent because of illness, set the tone when he said in his report:

"This year, faced with a definite inflationary spiral, that drove all costs up sharply and the incidence of a more acutely-ill patient load from admission to discharge, and in spite of a generous year and rate by BCHIS, we ended the year with another serious operating deficit.

"Our administrative and functional officers are making a determined effort to close this gap between budget allowances and actual costs.

"Every aspect of utilization of staff and facilities is being scrutinized to effect economies in an effort to avoid any dilution of the quality of patient care for which our hospital is so respected."

Reduce Costs to Meet Crisis

Mr. Norris, who has indicated he will not seek re-election next month, was honored with a motion of gratitude by the meeting.

Chairman of finance, R. J. Nation, reported that the "financial crisis" is being met by a cost-reduction campaign until, "in the opinion of the adminsitration, most areas of the hospital are operating at minimum cost."

About increasing revenues, he said the hospital is in contact with BCHIS in an effort "to keep them constantly aware of our financial problems and needs."

"Our financial situation is so critical that were it nor for our ability to obtain substantial sums of short term money from our bank and for the willingness of our suppliers to grant us generous terms of credit, we simply could not carry on."

The frank admission of difficulty only underlined problems apparent in recent weeks when the administration asked staff doctors to reduce their demands on nurses for paperwork and on the emergency ward for treamtments which might be given in doctors' offices.

Two Nurses Look After 22 Rooms

The poverty of the hospital and the resultant shortage of staff was also cited in an inquest Wednesday into the death of a patient who caught fire in a ward. Evidence showed that 22 rooms, (35 patients) were under supervision of only two nurses on night shift.

The report of assistant director Pat Blewett stated that there are now 860 employees in the hospital. In 1967 the lay staff was granted a 17.3 per cent wage increase and in the 1968 negotiations a further unstated increase is still waiting union membership acceptance.

He said nurses' negotiations are also under way and their union has requested an increase in the starting rate from $390 to $600 a month.

Assistant medical director Dr. J. A. D. Thompson noted that regional hospital planning now is under way "to avoid duplication of expensive equipment and service" by the major acute hospitals.

"It has become apparent that there is a limit to what we as a community can afford in the field of health, to what the taxpayer is willing to pay . . ."

Dr. Thompson said various groups have suggested a wider utilization of hospital facilities in view of current admission waiting lists. (Seven-day operation of operating rooms each week, has been proposed.)

"This is idealistic. There must be realization on the part of those advocating these changes that this would mean increased staffing and greatly increased cost."

Chairman of the medical staff executive committee G. A. May reported on the recent meeting of staff doctors who moved a protest against cutbacks in hospital staff and services. He pointed out that the doctors are firmly behind the administration in its requests to BCHIS for further assistance in meeting operation costs.

'Name of This Game Is Politics'

He did not read a portion of his printed speech which added, "In case anyone is in doubt about it, the name of this game is POLITICS." He wrote in the unread portion, that when channels of appeal to government fail, "the case Must be presented to all the people in the community."

Executive director of the hospital, Dr. E. G. Q. Van Tilburg added a warning:

"With constant overcrowding, the quickening general demand for services, the lack of adequate facilities, the minimum capital expenditures available for new equipment, the increased operating costs . . . there is continuous stress on administration and staff.

"These limitations are the greatest threat to the immediate and ultimate success of the hospital's endeavors.

Former Victoria alderman Mike Griffin, a member of the board of management, added an appeal to members of the hospital staff who "might be getting apprehensive" in view of recent press reports of hospital fianancial difficulties.

Quoting Mr. Norris, he asked for staff support, promising, "We have a good hospital and will continue to lead the field" and will overcome present problems.

KEPT alive for three days by a machine, Robert Snyder, 13, of Garden Cove, Calif., died Thursday in hospital. Earlier his parents had pleaded with doctors to let the youth die. He was pinned face down by a cave-in in a tunnel and suffered oxygen starvation of his brain. Doctors said after the youth was admitted that except for his heart beat, the boy was dead.

New Policy Reducing Dropouts

Stricter admission policies at St. Joseph's School of Nursing have reduced the number of dropouts from the training course.

The annual meeting of the hospital was told Thursday that in one year the attrition rate was reduced from 35.1 per cent to 10.8 per cent.

"We believe that this reflects a change in admission policies," reported Miss E. L. Knighton, assistant director of the school of nursing.

She said there are at present 136 students at the school.

Other highlights from departental annual reports:

Operating revenue for the year ended last Dec. 31 was $5,710,402 and the operating deficit was $224,536 which resulted in a deficit in working capital of $45,330.

There were 13,875 patients admitted in 1967 and 10,222 operations performed, 20,880 emergencies treated, 248,370 meals served, seven internes trained and six X-ray technicians graduated.

140 Retarded To Compete At Bowling

Saturday is going to be a big day for an enthusiastic group of bowlers.

It's the playoff tournament for 140 retarded children.

They're coming from all over the Island, as far north as Campbell River, to join Victoria youngsters at the Capital City Bowling, Yates St.

The tournament is sponsored by the Vancouver Island Association for the Retarded.

Local playoffs begin at 10 a.m. with 104 children and young adults from Up-Island joining the group at 1 p.m.

The Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded will entertain the bowlers at the Elford Street Centre.

Trophies will be presented around 5:30 with each child receiving a crest for participating in the tournament.

Library Increases Penalties

The Victoria Public Library has imposed stiffer overdue penalties—and so far nobody has officially complained.

Fines in Victoria have reached five cents per day to a maximum of two dollars.

On a national comparison, eight libraries across Canada charge more. The record is held by three libraries—Moosejaw, Windsor and Etobicoke with a maximum of five dollars.

After these comes Calgary with $3.50. Next are Halifax, Hamilton and Port Arthur with $2.50.

An odd one—Winnipeg with $2.16.

Victoria at $2 is in with Edmonton, London, New Westminster and Vancouver.

North York and Regina charge a maximum of $1.50, Medicine Hat, $1.25, Charlottetown and Fredericton, $1.

Also in the $1 bracket are Lethbridge, Peterborough, Prince Albert, Fort St. John, Toronto, Sudbury and Sault St. Marie.

In Vancouver recently an amnesty was declared, bringing in books on loan for more than 50 years.

Victoria Library spokesman John Lort said "Amnesty has been discussed at several board meetings, but nothing has been done about it so far."

"We manage to keep a fairly close check on our books."

AT HAPPENING TONIGHT

Youth Council Again Launches Wine Press

A Bastion Square happening tonight is scheduled to re-launch the Wine Press, controversial youth paper which died last September.

Young people were to begin selling the first issue of the sheet which takes both serious and tongue-in-cheek looks at society and aims a joke at Alderman Robert Baird, traditional critic of the paper.

The issue avoids four-letter words which caused a storm of controversy last summer.

Victoria Youth Council president Charles Barber said the aim is to get people to consider the issues raised in the paper "without complications."

The paper will be controversial because of the issues it raises, he said.

The first word of the first editorial in the paper is "Revolution!" and is followed by the sentence, "This society is sick."

Editors Ron Martin and Nick Bristow call for "no more war, in any way, against anyone; basic social change."

The dig at Alderman Baird takes the form of a contest in which entrants must undertake "an act of oppression" and the winner will spend a week "taking over Alderman Baird's assumed role as God. . . ."

STUDENT DEMAND MET

NEW YORK (AP)—Columbia University bowed today to a militant student protest that had disrupted campus life for three days and said it would halt construction of a controversial gymnasium until further notice.

The reversal came in an announcement by university vice-president David B. Truman before a cheering crowd of 150 white and Negro onlookers gathered on the steps of Low Memorial Library.

Truman also said the entire university would be closed until Monday to permit further talks among the administration, faculty and Mayor John V. Lindsay.

'WON'T STOP AT GABON'

Quebec Helping Africans

PARIS (Reuters) — Quebec Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal said today his government was interested in co-operation agreements with all French-speaking African states.

He said such agreements would be on a different level to those arranged by the federal Canadian government and there would not be any competition between them.

Cardinal, who is attending a conference of education ministers from French-speaking states, had talks here Tuesday with President Albert Bongo of Gabon.

Asked whether Gabon would have priority in any overseas agreements planned by Quebec, Cardinal said, "We shall not stop at Gabon."

He said his government was pursuing a policy of "co-operation" rather than of "aid" and any agreements "need not upset the federal government in Ottawa."

"We do not put ourselves on the same ground," he said.

"In our eyes, in fact, it involves exchanges between ministries concerned with national education. These may vary from simple exchanges of information to exchanges of students and professors," he said.

"Our action is based on a different level to that of the federal government and there is no competition between them."

Students Form Union

HAMILTON (CP) — High school students here have formed a union they hope will give them a bigger voice in their education. About 130 students from nine city and area schools attended the first public meeting of the Hgh School Union of Students for Hamilton (HUSH) Wednesday night. A Grade 11 student said they hope to influence how their courses are taught.

Quebec Flag Flies High In Paris

PARIS (Reuters) — Presidential sources said today there was no political significance in the prominent display of the Quebc flag at an official reception given Thursday for French-speaking ministers meeting at an education conference here.

At the reception, attended by Quebec Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal and 17 education ministers from African states, reporters were surprised to see the Quebec flag fluttering over the entrance of the African affairs department.

But officials today firmly denied any political or diplomatic design in the arrangement. They said the incident could well have been caused by too much zeal on the part of a subordinate official.

It is understood President de Gaulle had given instructions that no special honors were to be paid to the Quebec minister on this occasion, and these instructions have been noticeably observed.

The minister arrived here quietly last Friday and was met at the airport by one French education official.

Members of the Quebec delegation seemed pleased by the unexpected flag recognition. It showed, they thought, that the French government maintained a warm spot in its heart for Quebec.

Canadian embassy officials here declined to comment on the affair.

"It is up to the federal government to be upset first," they said. "We take the lead from them."

Three Injured In Separate Accidents

Three persons were taken to hospital Wednesday after two separate car accidents.

All were treated for minor injuries and released.

Mrs. Isobel Davis, 56, of 1041 Lodge, was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital after a car driven south on Quadra by Maurice Davis collided with a car driven east on Bay by Thomas Kirsop, 3215 Shelbourne, at 12:15 p.m.

At 4:45 p.m., a head-on collision on the Sooke Road near 17-Mile-House sent Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Slater, 2852 Admirals, to St. Joseph's Hospital.

No Pay Increase . . . At This Time

Victoria city council Thursday voted four to two against an aldermanic pay raise.

But in voting against Ald. Percy Frampton's bid for a pay hike from $2,500 a year to $3,000 the opposition indicated it was taking a first step which could put Victoria in the big time as far as aldermanic honorariums go.

Only Aldermen Robert Baird and Ald. Frampton were in favor of the boost both claiming that the time spent on council business deserves a higher cash return.

Aldermen Ian Stewart and Cicil Parrott led the objectors but for different reasons.

"I didn't come on council for the money I could get out of it," said Ald. Parrott. "I came on council to serve the city. This year we are trying to cut back on expenditures and save the taxpayer money. This isn't the time to give ourselves an increase."

Ald. Stewart said he opposed the $500-a-year raise because he felt the entire matter of aldermanic and mayor's indemnities should be reviewed before an increase is asked.

He indicated that during such a study he will recommend substantial increases for both mayor and aldermen.

Ald. Clarkson spoke in favor of the raise in pay but did an about-face on the vote registering with the "nays."

Ald. Clyde Savage, when it appeared that council might be evenly divided on the issue, quipped that possibly the matter should go to conciliation.

"If you do you'll get more," quipped Mayor Hugh Stephen.

"That's why I suggrsted it," answered Ald. Savage.

Before taking the vote, with four aldermen speaking against the raise and three definitely in favor with the eighth alderman uncommitted, Mayor Stephen warned council that in the event of a tied vote he would cast a negative vote.

"This does not necessarily state my views on the issue," he said. "But I feel that if a motion hasn't the strength to carry it is my duty to vote against it."

Aldermen Wilson, Parrott, Stewart, Ramsay, Savage and Clarkson voted against the motion, Aldermen Frampton and Baird were in favor.

'Children Must Feel Included'

Panelist Claims Pupils Need Same Things From Life as Adults

By DON VIPOND

Schools are places people come to live, not just to learn, a University of Victoria professor argued Thursday night.

Children want the ame things from life as adults, said Dr. R. Vance Peavy. Among them is to be included and when schools exclude facets of life they are asking for trouble.

The professor from Uvic's education faculty was one of six panelists at an invitational conference exploring the best use of human resources in the community.

Close to 200 people at Belmont High School joined in discussion groups after hearing from the panelists.

Adults dominate the lives of children, said Prof. Peavy. He said he thanked God to see some of the changes in the university life of our time shaking this situation.

"Children are planted in the soil of adults and we need to be plowed up every now and again."

Other panel members were Victor Belknap, assistant superintendent of child welfare; Dr. J. S. Bland, a psychiatrist and co-ordinator of mental retardation services; Dr. Thomas Bailey, medical health officer for the Metropolitan Board of Health; Victor Rickard, assistant director of vocational training and John Meredith, assistant superintendent of education in charge of instruction.

The provincial education system recognizes the need to involve other disciplines such as health and welfare agencies, said Mr. Meredith.

But the fundamental task of the public school is to promote learning. It is not a custodial or a therapeutic agency.

He warned of the danger of "fragmentation" of the child by agencies isolating a problem from the whole person. Each agency needs to understand the function of the others and they need to work as a team.

The educator faces a frightening task, said Mr. Belknap. That is educating the child to live in tomorrow's society when nobody knows just what it will be like.

Society has grossly underestimated the ability of the retarded to learn, said Dr. Bland. Looking at them from an economic viewpoint, he said most can be taught to produce close to what it costs to keep them but this generally calls for a sheltered workshop environment.

The retarded youngster has the same need for individual attention as other children, something which has been overlooked in recent years.

Medical advances have offset what used to be a high mortality among severely retarded, he said. And more research will make their assimilation into the community easier.

Mr. Rickard detailed the numerous avenues for people to tap their latent resources through adult education.

The essential question, he said, is to what degree adults realize fulfilment in life.

Dr. Bailey speculated on ways future society may come to terms with the real health issues.

Perhaps some day the government will pay people a bonus to keep healthy. Healthy people, he pointed out, can pay more taxes.

And while the baby bonus remained, perhaps the government should also pay bonuses to women for not having children.

Every safety device should be mandatory in every car and highways should be designed so they are foolproof.

And if scientists can't whale the tar out of cigarettes, maybe governments should whale the tar out of smokers through taxes, he suggested.

Taxes could be increased on alcohol to the point where it squeezed the alcohol, not the blood from their veins.

For women, he suggested "a smear campaign" to battle cancer.

Such policies might lead society closer to real enjoyment of health, he said.

Fined for Hit, Run

A woman who fled the scene of an accident March 1 was fined a total of $140 on Thursday.

Police said Patricia French, 1454 Begbie, left after her car struck a vehicle parked behind the Halfway House pub.

She was fined $100 for leaving the scene and $40 for careless driving.

POSSIBLE Liberal candidate in the June 25 election is James Richardson of Winnipeg, head of the multimillion-dollar family financial empire. Mr. Richardson, 46, is board chairman and chief executive officer of James Richardson and Sons Ltd.

'Y' Gym Show Impressive; On Again Tonight

Over 100 YM-YWCA members combined their talents Thursday night in an impressive two-hour gym show.

A display of tumbling by the YMCA gym team highlighted the show. Team coach Gordon Gannon led the squad in handsprings, mid-air somersaults and diving rolls.

In a later segment, the team returned to demonstrate work on the parallel bars, rings and high bar.

The wrestling team climaxed its display with an import from Tibet called the "Tibetan Grink." Together with his opponent, the Grink parodied modern wrestling.

Featured in the show are the girls' and boys' gym classes, women's and men's fitness groups and the girls' dance group.

The show continues tonight at 7:30.

CARELESS DRIVERS

Fined in central court Thursday for careless driving were:

Thomas McCaig, 1731 Denman, accident on Gordon Head Road, Feb. 25, $50; Eraldo Sartori, 316 Kamloops, accident at Shelbourne and Ruby March 7, $35; Dale Wilson, 4145 Hawkes, same accident at Shelbourne and Ruby, $35; James Witter, 5343 Alderly, high speed driving on Douglas March 14, $35.

Teachers Can Develop Own Material for System

Two Victoria audiences Thursday got a peek into the classroom of the future.

That is where some day may be found an elaborate and impressive sight-and-sound technique being demonstrated by the Kodak company.

Using three slide projectors and a movie projector simultaneously to illustrate a taped commentary, the program called "Concepts in Communication" is designed to show the versatility of the combination as a teaching aid.

The 40-minute presentation was made to a luncheon meeting of Rotarians at the Empress Hotel Thursday and to a group of educators and others at the McPherson Playhouse Thursday evening.

The still and motion picture sequences utilize three adjacent screens, sometimes one at a time, sometimes all together.

They tell a story of how sound and visual aids were effectively used to get the attention and then teach a fifth grader.

The story points out that there is fierce competition in a small boy's word among interesting activities and school is only one of them and not always interesting.

Heart of the new communications combination is a sonic programmer in the tape recorder unit. It delivers inaudible sonic tones which trigger the right projector at the right time.

All told about $1,800 worth of equipment is involved and it can all be carried in the back of a car.

The combination is the only one of its kind in Canada, says Bill Little, Kodak's motion picture and education markets representative.

When he completes his west coast demonstration tour he will take the unit to Moncton to begin a tour in the east.

Such a combination of slides, film and taped voice is a tool the teacher can control and readily develop her own material for, says Mr. Little.

He thinks it will lead to a new kind of teaching film because it demonstrates how easily teachers can use their own sound track to go with the variety of educational films available.

And with millions of eight-millimetre movie outfits being sold, he predicts low cost movies will do to school films what paperbacks have done to the book business.

He is convinced the day when children will be borrowing education films from school libraries is just around the corner.

Rice Tea Time For Viet Aid

Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians will hold a rice tea in Centennial United Church Saturday at 3 p.m.

Dr. A. Inglis, chairman of the group, and Mrs. Sheila Young, chairman of the children's committee, will address the meeting.

The CAVC group has already sent medical supplies, school equipment, bedding, clothing and money to the value of $50,000 to Red Cross societies in Vietnam.

New Coal Deal Expected Soon

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Next of the massive long-term coking coal contracts with Japan is expected to be undertaken by McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd., which has holdings in northwestern Alberta.

Its Smoky River property is calculated to provide 45 million tons over a 15-year period, the coal said to be of superior quality, but upon which a final agreement is hanging because of failure to reach a satisfactory price.

Kent

It is estimated the property—some 200 miles northwest of Edmonton—could yield up to 500 million tons.

Negotiations with both Japanese and North American interests have been going on for about a year.

Further south, the Luscar coalfield will yield 15 million tons for the Japanese steel industry.

Agreement was reached with Nippon Kokan Kaisha, and Luscar Ltd., of Edmonton, acting with its partner, Consolidation Coal Corp., of Pittsburgh, and will be worth $200 million (U.S.).

First of the major contracts (for $160 million) was signed last year between Japanese interests and Coleman Collieries Ltd.

This was followed by the biggest to date—the $650 million, 15-year-contract between Kaiser Coal (former Crows Nest Industries Ltd. property) and Japanese steel makers.

Transportation of Luscar coal to seaboard will be by Canadian National Railways unit trains.

The fact that a profitable agreement can be reached with interests having coal substantially further from deepsea shipping than certain B.C. coal deposits raises the question of why north-central B.C. coal has not been developed.

Part of the answer lies in the fact that rail transportation already exists in the case of Alberta contracts, and in some cases much of the pre-production work is well established.

With B.C. deposits in the Prince George area and the Groundhog Mountain area, which are known to be substantial, the quality must be ascertained, the economics of mining worked out, and means of getting the coal to existing transport routes, thence to tidewater, must be constructed.

With Japanese interest in western Canadian coal at a high level, exploration and development work has reached a peak, and as it is well-known that Japanese capacity for foreign-produced coking coal will continue to grow, it can be expected that more contracts for Canadian coal will follow.

Consolidated Skeena Mines Ltd. is the second B.C. company to acquire Coppermine River property in recent weeks, following Rodstrom Yellowknife Mines Ltd.

This Northwest Territories copper area has been attracting attention for about a year, and several of the larger exploration companies are involved in holdings or development programs.

The river itself, discovered by Samuel Hearne in the latter part of the 18th century, winds some 525 miles to the village of Coppermine on Coronation Gulf of the Beaufort Sea, opposite Victoria Island.

Copper deposits have been known from antiquity, but exploitation has been hampered by the economics of mining in such a remote region of the north.

F. A. McGonigle, president of Con-Skeena, said the company has paid $6,000 for 96 claims adjoining a large group held by P. C. E. Explorations Ltd. and covering part of a section with high grade deposits disclosed by other interests.

He said consultants advise an initial prospecting and geophysical program be done for $51,700.

A Toronto-based company, Coppermine River Ltd., was formed last year to carry out preliminary exploration work on some of more than 1,500 claims.

Others involved in the undertaking are P. C. E. Explorations, Conwest Explorations, Consolidated Proprietary Mines Holdings, Pan American Canada Oil, and Newconex Canadian Exploration, with 20 per cent each.

$500 MILLION PLANE ORDER BY UNITED

CHICAGO (AP)—United Air Lines announced Thursday it is spending nearly $500,000,000 on 30 jet air buses, with a capacity of 266 passengers each and a cruising speed of 600 m.p.h.

Another 30 of th eMcDonnell Douglas DC-10s are on option, George E. Keck, UAL president, told stockholders at their annual meeting.

Delivery of the DC-10s, each costing about $15,500,000, will begin in August, 1971, Keck said.

U.S. Reports Trade Deficit For March

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The United States had its first trade deficit in more than five years last month as exports fell by 11.5 per cent and imports rose only slightly, the commerce department said today.

The deficit was $157,700,000 compared with trade surplus the previous month of $171,200,000 and $169,300,000 in January.

The last time the U.S. recorded a monthly trade deficit was in January, 1963, when it totalled $101,000,000, largely because of a longshoreman's strike.

The department's figures showed that the seasonally adjusted annual rate of the U.S. trade surplus in the first three months of this year was $731,000,000. In 1967, the trade surplus was $4,126,000,000,000.

'More Efficient, Streamlined Operation'

"Pressures for cost-saving in federal government departments have resulted in more efficient, streamlined operation, an Ottawa civil servant said in Victoria Thursday.

Gordon Stead, deputy minister of the marine branch of the department of transport, was addressing a meeting of local heads of federal departments at the Dominion Hotel.

He said the wealth of detailed information and the need for more efficient ways of communicating it had forced changes in the department's structure.

One of six government departments now reorganizing on the recommendations of the Glassco royal commission on civil service efficiency, the DOT is moving to a regional setup, he said.

"People are now taking an interest in whether their money is used efficiently . . . we have a special need to carry out our trust efficiently," Mr. Stead said.

The department is doing a job that cannot be done by private groups and has a virtual monopoly in the services it offers, he added.

"We can't identify the customer and can't catch him—we do (the job of navigation control) as a public service because the public requires it.

"The people who pay for these services have no option," he said.

"We're in a mood to be more analytical now — we've had financial pressure on us.

"It doesn't hurt us once in a while to get squeezed, to make us think these things through."

The regionalized chain of control and communication will channel the lines of command and put more power in the hands of regional managers.

Policy guidelines will come from the centre in Ottawa, but local authorities will make decisions with the facts at hand.

With five or six regions across the country, local authorities now commonly in regular touch with Ottawa will communicate through the regional managers. This will limit the number of persons reporting directly to Ottawa and define a specific area and source of authority, Mr. Stead said.

By training managers and setting guidelines for their jobs the department is making the entire operation more efficient.

"We have to have definite guidelines so people know what they are to do and what their standard of performance is."

Defined lines of communication will enable the department centre in Ottawa to get information within hours, rather than days or weeks, he said.

Civil servants attending the meeting were members of the Victoria inter-departmental group connected with the federal institute of management. The group meets monthly to discuss managerial problems and requirements.

Texas Gulf Triples Dividend

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Directors of Texas Gulf Sulpher Co tripled the quarterly dividend rate Thursday shortly after stockholders approved a three-for-one stock split.

The company announced here that a dividend of 30 cents a share will be payable June 15 to stockholders of record May 6 immediately prior to the effectiveness of the stock split. The company has paid a quarterly dividend of 10 cents a share in recent years.

Texas Gulf President Claude O. Stephens noted that the U.S. price of sulphur increased $3 to $42 a long ton in early March.

He said the Kidd Creek Mine near Timmins, Ont., began producing zinc copper and lead concentrates with a high silver content Nov. 16, 1966.

SHOUTING YOUTH LEAPS ON TO HOUSE FLOOR

LONDON (AP)—An unidentified young man leaped 30 feet into the House of Commons Thursday night from the public gallery as members of Parliament debated a rent bill.

He yelled "you bastards" as he vaulted over the railing.

He landed on his feet with a crash, a few feet from Parliament's startled sergeant-at-arms and collapsed on the floor.

Attendants rushed forward and escorted him out of the chamber. He did not appear to be seriously hurt.

There was no immediate indication of why he jumped.

B.C. Denies Mines Taxed Too Heavily

Premier Bennett and Mines Minister Donald Brothers today denied the provincial government is taxing mines too heavily.

"Of course he's wrong," said the premier in reply to Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. president Dr. H. J. Fraser, of Toronto.

Dr. Fraser told shareholders at the company's annual meeting that B.C. tax policy had "reverted to the same philosophy which drove mining out of the province before."

He cited the increase from 10 to 15 per cent in assessment under the Mining Tax Act and other changes that effectively double the rate of taxation for new mining endeavors in the formative years.

And he referred to an estimated 1968 school tax of $294,000 which would have to be paid by the company to Queen Charlotte School District for its iron-copper mining complex, industrial layout, deep-sea shipping dock, community buildings such as hotel, apartments, houses, store, hospital and school located at Tasu.

$11,000 PER CHILD

The three-room school has 27 pupils, and on that basis the tax amounts to about $11,000 per child, Dr. Fraser said.

The mine and community are operated by Wesfrob Mines Ltd., wholly owned subsidiary of Falconbridge.

Dr. Fraser said considerable money had been spent on housing, recreation, school and medical facilities for the isolated mine and community on the west coast of Moresby Island, whose total pre-production cost was about $40 million.

"It is rather discouraging when a province seizes on this situation as another form of indirect taxation," he said.

Premier Bennett said mining companies receive a federal allowance for provincial taxes paid.

Mr. Brothers said school taxes are "a cost of operation."

He added: "I think plans are for the provincial government to pay a portion of the cost. I intend to look into it.

"It is not our intention to penalize new industry coming into B.C."

The premier also said, "Our resources belong to the people and I expect development to continue and expand. Our people are entitled to a fair return from our resources. Every person is entitled to a dividend. Our taxation is very fair."

Gold Crisis Cost U.S. $2,200,000,000 in Reserves

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. lost about $2,200,000,000 of its gold reserves to foreign buyers during the gold crisis which reached its frenzied peak about a month ago.

This was the accounting the treasury department disclosed Thursday of U.S. gold losses which dropped the supply to its lowest level in 32 years by the end of March—$10,703,000,000.

There were indications of further losses this month in sales to foreign governments but exact figures won't be available for another month.

No formal announcement was made by the department, which merely included the figures in its monthly bulletin.

The over-all gold loss reached a monthly record during March at $1,197,000,000, the bulk of it to cover wild buying on the London gold market before the flow of government gold to speculators was halted in mid-March.

Devaluation of the British pound Nov. 18 started the rush to buy gold and eventually led to a breakup of the London gold pool—the group of seven nations which provided enough gold from their reserves to meet the demand for the metal on the London market.

The purpose was to hold the price at $35 an ounce.

Here's how the Treasury broke down the U.S. gold drain:

—A total net loss of $2,262,000,000 for December through March. This included all gold lost since devaluation as part of the gold pool.

—Domestic sales of slightly more than $63,000,000 during the same period including about $14,100,000 in March, the last month for sales to private American industrial users.

This left net sales to foreign buyers at roughly $2,200,000,000.

The net figures also included two major purchases by the United States from Canada during the period—$100,000,000 last December and $50,000,000 last month.

An agreement among the gold pool partners last month fixed a two-price system—one of $35 an ounce among governments and a higher price set by supply and demand on the free market.

Export Financing Hiked by Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government quadrupled its export financing to $94,000,000 in 1967 through loans of the Export Credits Insurance Corp.

Ten major financing agreements were set up, including contracts to build a $38,500,000 nuclear power plant in India and to sell telecommunications equipment to Israel, Mexico, the Philippines, and Turkey.

In 1966 the crown corporation arranged to finance five contracts worth $24,000,000.

For seven years the government has offered long-term financing for exports of capital equipment and related engineering and technical services. Contracts must be worth $1,000,000 or more, with a Canadian content of at least 80 per cent.

A $45,000,000 fund is available. So far 45 agreements have been signed to cover contract values totalling $387,000,000, and $246,000,000 has actually been paid out

The corporation's 1967 annual report, released Thursday, asked Canadian exporters to seek the export backing available under its terms.

The seven exporters who will be prime contractors for the projects arranged in 1967 employ more than 50,000 persons. They will in turn place orders for equipment and services totalling $78,000,000 with 2,000 other Canadian companies.

In the corporation's main area of activity, it offered insurance against default of payment on exports worth $238,000,000 in 1967. This compared with $208,000,000 in 1966.

Following a net surplus of $313,560 on its 1966 operations, the corporation encountered a net loss of $867,135 in 1967. A total of $1,708,446 was paid on claims, more than double the 1966 figure.

The closure notice has been given by P. L. Ayers, president of Swift Canadian Co. Ltd., which purchased Union Packing in1946.

GOOD GUY IMAGE

Doors Opened Wide For 'Canadianci'

By MORGAN MacGREGOR

Wether we deserve it or not Canadians have an international image of being "good guys."

This was most obvious in Cuba where all doors opened to us because we were "Canadianci."

MacGregor

In one instance we were strolling along a boulevard and thought we would take a look inside the courtyard of a school.

A prefect asked where we were from and the next thing we knew we were being taken on a full tour.

Children came forward and sang songs or recited. We were introduced to each teacher and the children stood and clapped as we left the various classrooms.

In another instance we went into a heavily-guarded television station to look around. A family situation serial was being televised and we expected to sit in the studio audience.

But one of the announcers insisted we sit up on the stage alongside the cameras.

The anti-American feeling is almost vicious, principally because otheir involvement in the Vietnam war. The Cubans happily overlooked the fact that Canada is also implicated in this war . . . primarily through its sale of arms to U.S.

Canada is able to maintain its image because it did not support the American blockade of Cuba and continues to sell wheat, farm machinery, medical supplies as well as purebred cattle which are used in their extensive artificial insemination program.

We did find one American living there, Leslie Ferguson, an ex-carnival worker who left the States years ago to escape persecution because he was an active member of the Communist Party.

He's in his late 60s, very tall with a long white beard.

He claims his left eye was knocked out by a police stick during a peace demonstration in the U.S.

He lives in a windowless, depressing room with his little dog, Bitche. Ferguson is disillusioned with the regime in Cuba and has applied to return to the U.S. His business, as a street musician, has been "frozen" by the government.

Once a citizen makes application to leave the country he and his family are sent to an agricultural commune to work until their turn comes to leave. This could take anywhere from two months to two years for acceptance into the States.

As Ferguson is too old for this work he receives monthly support from the Cuban Immigration department as well as the Swiss Embassy which represents U.S. interests in Cuba.

Ferguson is a true hustler. He goes out between 11 and 12 each evening to a cafeteria where only fish is served. If the patrons have left anything on their plates he asks if he can have it "for the dog."

Last Of Series

The scraps are rolled in old newspaper and he takes them back to his room where he boils them for 10 minutes to kill the "leprosy" or "tuberculosis."

His vegetables are picked from garbage cans and he walks five blocks for water. He dines fastidiously.

Dr. Richardson and I took him out to dinner one night and expected him to gobble up his meal. Instead it was we who were gobbling while he ate slowly and with great care. Before ordering he examined the menu by adjusting a thick lens, encircled in orange plastic, to his good eye.

This appendage was held in place with a length of catgut wrapped around his head.

Ferguson walks the streets of Havana with an elegant, casual lope. No apology for his appearance . . . despite the home-made tam, thread-bare suit jacket, shapeless pants and ragged running shoes tied with a series of different color laces.

He's very much at home in the world, expects good service from headwaiters and always offers a courtly elbow to ladies when crossing the street.

The Cubans find him amusing and call him "The Loco Americana in Cuba."

Perhaps it's this same sense of humor which saves Cuban communism from seeming utterly dreary.

Their eventual plan is to do away with the need for money. Everything will be provided for by the state . . . homes, food clothes.

"The Cubans are terribly naive," commented a visiting Italian journalist, Alberto Rhonchi, author of four books on communism and ideologies.

"Do they really believe they have created a new man who functions by moral, political and collective incentives?

"The Russians have discovered recently that once their people's initial revolutionary enthusiasm wore off they had to revert to material incentives in order to stimulate the farmers to meet their agricultural quotas.

"The Cubans are relying heavily on student power to keep up the momentum but this is a very dangerous precedent. Student power is emotional and fickle."

"Perhaps we are making mistakes," said Renee Cardosa, one of the press attaches who was assigned as my guide.

"But a man has to believe he can create a new, beautiful society.

"We shape this society by trial and error as we move forward. If we're wrong in certain things we try another method. But don't deny us the hope that man can reach for perfection."

CONSERVATIONISTS:

Why Is B.C. Balking On Coast Green Belt?

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The federal government is prepared to include the scenic Port Renfrew-Bamfield coastal green belt — the route of the old West Coast Trail — in its proposed national marine park on Vancouver Island.

The disclosure was made by Seymour Archibold, V.I. regional commissioner of Boy Scouts, in a panel discussion Thursday on the "Value of Trails and Open Spaces to a Community."

"But the holdup is with the provincial government," he said. "We don't know why and by wohm — we think by one man."

The coastal belt preservation and re-opening of the old trail were the main topics discussed at the meeting sponsored by the Greater Victoira Community Planning Association.

Other speakers included Dr. R. C. McMinn, biologist at the University of Victoria, and Victoria Times editor Brian Tobin.

LAING IN FAVOR

Mr. Archibold said Northern Development Minister Arthur Laing favors including the coastal belt in half-mile deep, 50-mile long marine park.

"But nothing can be done until the provincial government sets aside the green belt as a park and makes it available to the national parks branch," he said.

He is concerned, he said, at the lack of action.

"If something is not done soon we may lose one of the most beautiful natural coastal areas in British Columbia," he said.

ALIENATED

As an example, he pointed out, since the road was built from Sooke to Jordan River and later extended to Port Renfrew, the entire waterfront paralleling the road has been alienated.

"The govenemnt is 10 years behind the times in the matter of setting aside wilderness parks and developing trails," he said.

He was supported by a member of the audience who said Ontario is developing a beautiful 500-mile trail to connect with a trail in Quebec.

Bruce Scott, formerly of Bamfiled, who has been fighting to preserve the coastal area for 30 years, said senior B.C. government officials favor the west coast park scheme.

Brian Tobin said the government had done a "pretty good job" in establishing picnic camp sites throughout the province.

"But where they have fallen down is in the preservation and creation of wilderness parks."

He said the B.C. Park Act is weak and there is no guarantee the larger provincial parks will not be exploited for uses other than recreation or would even remain in the park system.

As population pressures increase, wilderness areas will disappear "unless we are willing to protect this type of habitat."

DECLINING

Already, he noted, provincial camp sites are beginning to show signs of wear and tear due to heavy influx of visitors. Small trees are being chopped down and the beauty of the sites gradually declining.

"Preservation of wilderness areas should not only concern us, but also the plunder of parks by ourselves," he said.

Naturalist Freeman King said Thetis Lake Park should be expanded to take in Mill Hill and a trail extended from there to Skirt Ridge and Goldstream Park, and eventually around Mount Finlayson.

"I have noticed in the past few years a big increase in the number of people who walk or hike as a form of recreation," he said. "The regional park board will need more open spaces in the near future."

Chairman of the meeting, Jim Buchanan, said if the government spent one-tenth of one per cent of the money it spends on highways, it would pay for trails from one end of the island to the other.

It was noted that cost to re-open the west coast trail would be $8,000 — a fraction of the provincial parks budget.

Maintenance of trails could be carried out by Boy Scouts and outdoor groups, Mr. Archbold said.

City parks superintendent Herbert Warren deplored the lack of government action to preserve Sombrio trail and beach, half way between Jordan River and Port Renfrew.

"It is a beautiful trail and will soon disapper due to logging operations," he said.

TRUSTEES ASK WATCH

DUNCAN — If the 30 female clerical employees of Cowichan school district decide on a strike vote, the board has asked Labor Minister Peterson to ensure the balloting is government-supervised.

The board this week rejected as "unrealistic" a conciliation board award of 15.29 per cent to 18 full-time office employees.

A 5.7 per cent wages award to the 12 part-time employees was agreed to by the board and Cowichan Local 606 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The board's offer to the full-time staff was 8.85 per cent plus the existing benefits of a 35-hour week, MSA, superannuation, group life insurance, annual vacations and cumulative sick leave.

Cowichan local has not made any decision yet regarding a strike.

'You Have To Show People'

DUNCAN — City and municipal councils will be asked to get working plans before preparing a bylaw for recreational development at Pioneer Park.

The recommendation to obtain working drawings even at a cost of $9,000 (one and a quarter per cent of the total estimated cost of $800,000) was passed unanimously by the joint recreation commissions Thursday evening.

Commissioner Patrick Rogers told the meeting: "You have to show people the goods if you hope to sell them."

'RIDICULOUS'

Mrs. Erica Cooper of South Cowichan Recreation Commission said: "It's ridiculous to spend $9,000 before a bylaw is passed."

But Mr. Rogers contended a bylaw would never pass unless the people have accurate forecasts of the probable increase in the mill rate.

He said the recommendation would put both councils on the spot and force them to show they are really behind the recreation bylaw.

Eureka Mill To Re-Open?

NANAIMO — A group of Japanese businessmen visiting B.C. has expressed interest in re-opening the Eureka Sawmill, John Dunham, Nanaimo port manager, said Thursday.

He said the team, representing the C. Itoh Company of Seattle and Japan, wants to use harbor commission land and Canadian Pacific Railway timber.

The Eureka mill, which employed 120 men, closed earlier this year.

Airport Open Until Midnight

CAMPBELL RIVER—Municipal council here will operate its airport up to midnight during the summer months.

Council Wednesday approved the hiring of an extra man needed to maintain the airport.

GO AHEAD TAME ONE!

you'll have a fast friend for life

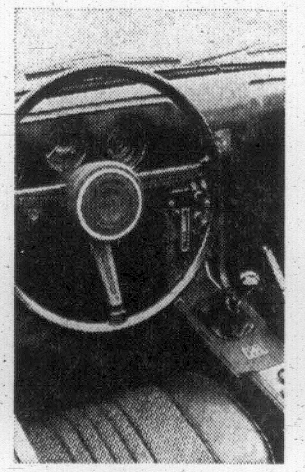
The Datsun 1600 Sports Convertible is incredibly well-bred. It will purr politely about town forever without a hint of aggressiveness. Or go snarling down a back straight on its way to beating anything in its class. (It won titles all last season at tracks like Westwood, Mosport and Daytona.) It takes its cue from you.

The 1600 has real stamina. The brilliantly engineered, 96 HP overhead valve engine doesn't just perform superbly for the first few thousand miles. When we talk about 100,000 mile reliability, we mean it. Fitted with dual carbs, the plant will move the car 0-60 in 12.1 seconds, and all day at its top speed of 105 m.p.h. Braking is rated as very good by the experts. The front disc/rear drum combination operates from two master cylinders for safety.

And how's this for standard equipment? Collapsible steering column; five bearing crankshaft; four-speed, full synchromesh box; 300 watt alternator with regulator; tachometer; trip recorder; fog lights; racing wheel; radio; clock; two-speed wipers; great heater/defroster; ammeter and oil pressure gauge.

So why settle for less than a thoroughbred. Drive this Datsun 1600 . . . then decide. There's nothing like it at the price.

$3148 (Suggested Retail Price P.O.E.). Fibreglass hard-top optional.



DATSUN

a good idea - made better

The Datsun 2000 Sports Convertible is much more than a smart, quick sports car. It is a high performance racing machine. We don't recommend it to inexperienced drivers or, generally, as a woman's car. Even though it is one of the most safe and forgiving tigers on the road, it needs a cool, firm hand and trained reflexes. The 2000 looks similar to the 1600 Sports Convertible. It has the same fine standard equipment, plus roll bar and head rests. But under the hood is 150 HP with overhead cam and Solex carbs. Can you imagine the power to weight ratio?

Another feature is an impeccable 5-speed box. You can cut it into overdrive fifth gear at between 70 and 115 m.p.h. Top speed out of the showroom is 125 m.p.h. As we said, it's a racing machine. One thing you'll notice is the positive feel at high speed. It settles on the track as if it were part of it. The back end never gets light.

A few performance figures. The Datsun 2000 does the SS¼ in 16.0 seconds and 0-50 in 6.4 seconds. It has consistently beaten the best European cars, many of which cost thousands more to buy. So if you want to get up and really go, tame a Datsun 2000 Sports Convertible. You'll become fast friends in the first five minutes.

$3570 (Suggested Retail Price P.O.E.). Fibreglass hard-top optional.

Tandem Out to Prove 'Second' as Good as 'First'

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Hewett

Now that the floats are back in Cadboro Bay, most of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club sailing fleet has reconvened there for the summer season.

And no sooner is the last newly varnished mast stepped than the first of the early summer races begins.

May 1 kicks off the Wednesday night series racing for all one-design class and cruising division boats.

And when evening racing begins, Swiftsure is never very far behind.

Theo De La Mare is among those who will be campaigning his boat with an eye to entering the Juan de Fuca, or "Little Swiftsure," Race to Clallam Bay on June 1.

But unlike his competition, Theo has already established one record. In 1966 (the year of the "Big Blow") he piloted his 35-foot Tandem 1 to a first-over-the-line finish (and second overall), in the fastest Little Swiftsure ever recorded. Sixteen hours to cover a sixty-eight mile course.

The next two months will mark the first real racing test for Theo's new boat, Tandem II, which was commissioned last summer.

Tandem II is the prototype for the Spencer 31, which was designed in 1966 by well-known B.C. naval architect John Brandlmayr. (The Tandem I, a Spencer 35, was a 1960 Brandlmayr design. She is now in West Vancouver).

The 31-footer has a 24-foot water line, nine foot beam, draws five feet, and carries 441 square feet of sail. Her underwater profile features the modern concept of streamlined spade rudder and fin keel. She carries a CCA rating of 27.5.

Saturday's Gulf of Georgia Predicted Log Race is the ninth running for the annual event, which alternates its starts between the mainland and the island.

Saturday's tides will give a lift for the boats out of Vancouver Harbor; at Porlier Pass they will fight the current; and they will be lifted again through Dodds Narrows, near the finish line.

Points for this race, which is opened for the second year to Yankee skippers, will apply toward the "Skipper of the Year" Trophy.

SHORT TACKS: There will soon be another Spencer 31 in Victoria. Peter White is finishing the wooden "plug" ... Tandem's crew for Juan de Fuca and the May 11 overnight race to Crescent Rock will include Ian Smith, Ian Stewart, Dr. Bob Grundison, and Gordie Nickells. For Wednesday night series racing Margery de la Mare, Alan Batey, Brian Woodward and Marilyn de Frane will replace the three Thunderbird skippers, who will be helming their own boats. Grundison and Nickells were along on the 1966 Juan de Fuca victory ... Vancouver Island skippers in the Georgia Gulf Race also compete for the Canoe Cove Trophy for the best Island entry, won last year by CCY's Dr. H. D. Middleton in his 32-footer Datopa ... Sandy Smith rounds out the crew of RVY's entry, 46-footer Doken, owned by Jim Beattie ... Capital City Yacht Club floats are now in place in the Blue Heron Bay clubsite.

Top boat in the RVYC Cruising Classes Winter Series sailed out of Sidney is Fred Gardiner's 29-foot Shih Yen. She won both the first and second series, which also gives her the overall trophy ... Previous winners were Theo de la Mere's Tandem I in 1966, and Saga, skippered by Ned Ashe in 1967 ... Every Gulf of Georgia racing cruiser will have at least one, if not two or three, highly competent navigators on board. Not all Swiftsure boats can make that claim. When the fog closed in last year, over half the fleet groped unsuccessfully, failing to find the Swiftsure "Lightship" Mark ... Turkey Head skipper Dick Readshaw won the Colony Cup Sunday with less than a year's racing experience to his credit ... His crew, John Dewey, races an Enterprise during the summer months.

PARENT-TEACHER GROUP RAPS FINANCE FORMULA

BURNABY, B.C. (CP)—The 21,000-member British Columbia Parent-Teacher Federation has added its voice to opposition to the provincial government's new education finance formula.

This follows similar action by teachers' and trustees' organizations.

Warned president Mrs. A. B. Thompson of Victoria:

"The new basic grants may work out all right this year, but what about later years?" What she termed the "starvation of education" would come around 1971, she said.

A resolution approved by the federation conference voiced dissatisfaction with concentration of power in the hands of the education minister under Bill 86. It also objected to a provision allowing 5 per cent of the taxpayers to call for a referendum if a school board wishes to spend more than 10 per cent above its previous budget.

Expo Official Jailed For Taking Kickbacks

MONTREAL (CP) — Raymond Prefontaine, former supervisor of bookings for Logexpo, was sentenced Thursday to three years in penitentiary after being found guilty of conspiracy, accepting kickbacks and breach of trust while working for the Expo 67 accommodation agency.

Prefontaine, in his 50s, was sentenced to one year on the conspiracy charge, one year for accepting kickbacks and three for breach of trust, all sentences to be served concurrently.

Judge Jacques Anctil of Sessions Court said the accused had shown complete disregard for the public interest.

Prefontaine resigned his post before Expo opened in April, 1967.

During his trial Prefontaine admitted offering reservations to several motel operators for a price several weeks before quitting his job with the world's fair housing organization.

Hawks No Longer Doves As Hull Blasting Again

DeJordy Also Stands Out As Chicago Extends Set

CHICAGO (CP) — The doves reverted to hawks Thursday night and today Chicago Black Hawks are looking at a record that has stood in Stanley Cup playoffs since 1942.

MORE SPORT PAGES 15, 16

The Hawks beat Montreal Canadiens 2-1 Thursday night after three consecutive defeats. The victory kept their chances alive in the best-of-seven series.

Not since Toronto Maple Leafs turned the trick during the Second World War against Detroit Red Wings has a team lost the first three games in the playoffs and taken the next four.

The Canadiens won the first three games by 9-2, 4-1 and 4-2 margins before Thursday's loss. The fifth game of the series is scheduled for Montreal Sunday at 11 p.m. PDT with a sixth game, if necessary, back here next Tuesday.

The biggest Hawk of all—left-winger Bobby Hull—scored both Chicago goals although the victory was an all-round team effort. Veteran Montreal centre Henri Richard scored for the losers.

Before the contest, Chicago coach Billy Reay had called for a superlative goaltending job from Denis DeJordy, and he got just that.

However the game could be a costly one for both clubs.

Montreal goaltender Gump Worsley suffered a sprained neck at 8:57 of the first period when Bobby Hull crashed into him when he scored the first goal. Worsley was replaced by rookie Rogatien Vachon.

Worsley was removed from the ice on a stretcher and taken to hospital for x-rays and examination. He was to remain there overnight.

Chicago's veteran right winger Eric Nesterenko suffered a shoulder separation in the first period.

Hull, who ended up in the net with the injured Worsley on the scoring play, said he and the goaltender "criss-crossed on the play" as Worsley attempted to out-guess him.

'Just Play One Game at a Time . . .'

Montreal coach Toe Blake didn't appear to be overly despondent by the loss and the chance to sweep the series.

"You know I said all along that this was too good a hockey club to lose four straight," Blake said. "We were just lucky to make it 3-0 before they got going."

And the Hawks were going Thursday night—right from the opening faceoff.

After appearing docile in the first three games, they backchecked, forechecked and generally out-hustled the Canadiens.

"I think we got a few less chances around the net than in the other three games," Blake said. "But they were checking so tight that even when we got a man in the clear he was dragging a Chicago player along."

Strangely enough, Reay wasn't enthused with the victory.

"We got a great team effort," he said. "But we got that last Tuesday night and they beat us. We'll just go along playing one game at a time."

Richard said the Montrealers were not shooting as well Thursday night as in previous games.

"We weren't shooting as accurately as before and of course we started out too slow. Maybe we were just too confident."

Chicago dressed left winger Wayne Maki, brother of Chico, for the first time in the series and got good mileage out of the youngster.

Veteran Chicago winger Doug Mohns congratulated Wayne after the game and said the Chicago club needed that kind of game from younger players. The Hawks outshot the Canadiens 34-29.

Stars Benefit As Millie Toils To Prove Point

ST. LOUIS (CP) — A veteran minor leaguer, a former Montreal Canadien and a fair-haired boy from Kitchener, Ont., have given St. Louis the Blues and made manager-coach Wren Blair, of Minnesota North Stars, a happy man.

MILAN MARCETTA . . . working hard

Milan Marcetta, a Toronto Maple Leaf reject, centred Dave Balon and Bill Goldsworthy Thursday night, and the line scored four goals to give Minnesota a 5-1 win over St. Louis Blues and a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semifinals.

"Millie (Marcetta) has been working hard out there because he realizes he has to push himself to play in the National Hockey League," Blair said. "He was a great minor leaguer and he's working to prove he can be a good NHL player."

Marcetta and Balon each scored a goal, and Goldsworthy had two. Jean-Paul Parise scored the other Minnesota goal. Goldsworthy also drew a pair of assists.

Dickie Moore, with his fourth goal of the playoffs and his 43rd in Stanley Cup competition, scored for St. Louis in the second period.

Fourth game of the series will be played here Saturday night at 6 p.m. PST with the fifth game in the Blues' arena Monday. The sixth game, if necessary, will be played in Minneapolis May 1, and the seventh here May 3.

Only Three Shots . . . Three Goals!

"Balon and Goldsworthy clicked at the same time, and they are helping Millie help himself," Blair said.

"We had a bad first period, but came out with three goals on three shots."

The North Stars led 3-0 at the end of the first period and 4-1 after 40 minutes. The Blues might just as well have gone to the dressing room late in the second period when Goldsworthy scored his second goal at the 16:33 mark.

"This was the big one," Goldsworthy said in the dressing room. "It guarantees we go back to Minneapolis, but St. Louis is a better club than you saw out there tonight."

Scotty Bowman, coach of the Blues, agreed.

"We didn't deserve to win," he said. "I knew when we arrived at the rink, we weren't ready.

"The guys were not up for the game, they were too carefree."

Standout Penalty-Killing Display

Balon, the former Montrealer, played his best game of the playoffs. He picked up two assists and when Marcetta and Andre Boudrias took successive penalties in the second, Balon put on a one-man penalty-killing display before 13,334 St. Louis fans.

"I told him (Balon) to go out there and chase the puck wherever it went," said Blair. "He worked like hell."

Goaltender Glenn Hall of St. Louis blocked 16 shots in the game behind a lax defence while Cesare Maniago stopped 30 shots in the Minnesota net.

CESARE SHARP

"Maniago was great when we needed him, especially in the third period when we were outshot 12-6," said Blair.

Noel Picard of St. Louis replaced injured defenceman Al Arbour, but had trouble in his own end. Arbour suffered a severe charley horse in Minneapolis Monday night, and is not expected to be back for the rest of the series.

The game degenerated into a fight for survival in the last 10 minutes of the third period as Picard and the Plager brothers of St. Louis charged everyone in sight.

Bob and Barclay Plager on the Blues' defence even managed to get into a scrap with brother Bill who plays for the North Stars.

"You always play harder against your brother," Bob Plager said.

"You always hit as hard as you can against him. You don't want him bragging during the summer."

More than hockey skill is demonstrated in Chicago dressing-room as Bobby Hull helps clubmate with tie after sparking Black Hawks to 2-1 triumph over Montreal Canadiens in fourth game of Stanley Cup semi-final playoff. Hull scored both Chicago goals, helped kill penalties and was involved in collision that put Montreal goalie Gump Worsley out of action. You may not recognize fellow getting Hull tie treatment. Mark Cox, the British amateur who Wednesday eliminated Pancho Gonzales, of Los Angeles, ousted Roy Emerson, of Australia, 6-0, 6-1, 7-5 Thursday for his second victory over a professional in two days of open tennis play.

The sensational victory took the 24-year-old left-hander into the semi-finals of the British hard court open championships at Bournemouth.

A crowd of 2,000 unbelieving fans watched Cox blow Emerson off the court in the first two sets. The first lasted only 13 minutes and the professional scored only nine points.

Cox, full of confidence following his victory over Gonzales, varied his game from shot to shot, and Emerson couldn't cope with them.

At Vernon, Estevan Bruins tonight play their second game in the western Memorial Cup junior hockey finals—but not because fiery general manager Scotty Munro wants it that way.

Complaining that the series against underdog Penticton Broncos could make his rugged juniors turn soft, Munro launched an attack on the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association playoff setup.

"There has to be two leagues, double A or major, whatever you want to call it and a lower league on the standard you have in B.C. at the moment," Munro said.

"I'm mad about the fact that my club is being held back and forced to play this lower standard with the chance it will do for us more harm by making us soft. . ."

His Bruins defeated Broncos 3-0 in the first game of the best-of-seven series Wednesday. But Munro said his club "played terrible" and should have emerged as victors by a far higher margin.

"Hockey here is a long way behind and I am not being smart when I say this . . . I have junior B teams that can play as well as Penticton or teams like the Fort William club."

Munro, a frequent critic of the CAHA, said: "These two teams belong in two different leagues. . .The CAHA are wrong in conducting the present playoff system the way they do."

He added the rider that "I don't say Penticton can't beat us but if they do, they won't have a chance against one of those Eastern clubs; they play for real."

VOLLMER SCORES ACE IN TRAINING TOURNEY

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver rapped a 185-yard hole-in-one Thursday, first in the history of the PGA Player Training Tournament. He finished the first round five strokes back of the leaders.

Fellow-Canadian Lawrence O'Hearn of Dartmouth, N.S., and Bob Dickson of Tulsa, Okla., shared the lead with 68s.

Dickson won the U.S. amateur and the British amateur last year.

Vollmer's ace came on the 16th hole. Vollmer finished the day bunched in an eight-man field at 73, one over par.

Just one stroke back of O'Hearn and Dickson was a three-way tie between John Shackelford, Michael Hill and George Thorpe.

Eighty-two players started the seven-day tournament after completing three days of classroom work leading to certification of 15 players for the rest of the PGA tour this season.

GARY PROVES IT

Golf's a Breeze When Putts Fall

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—A tough course and difficult playing conditions don't worry the golf tour half as much as balky putters.

In fact, Gary Player says there's just no need to even talk about high winds that do things with your ball when your putting is on the beam.

He illustrated his point by the four-under-par 66 that showed he was leading the $100,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic by one stroke going into the second round.

He got solid backing in giving putting the major emphasis by four fellows who were just behind him.

SHARE LEAD

Miller Barber, Harold Henning and Jack Montgomery all shot 67 and each told about how their putters put them over the 7,086-yard Preston Trail course, swept by winds ranging up to 30 miles an hour.

Player said he was putting "fantastically" as he recorded "my best round of the year." Henning needed only 28 putts, Barber rolled in 18, 30 and 35 birdie putts in his 32 strokes on the greens and Montgomery canned a pair of 50-footers.

Lionel Hebert fired a 68 for fifth place and told about a chip of 60 feet.

ISLAND CHAMPIONSHIP . . . . . . SATURDAY FEATURE

Sandown Gets Classiest Field

What is probably the classiest field in the history of Island racing will contest the Vancouver Island championship Saturday at Sandown Park.

To be run over six furlongs, the event has drawn seven thoroughbreds representing five interests.

Probable favorite will be the four-year-old Jeffaway, an $8,000 claim and a winner of a $15,000 claiming event at Santa Anita earlier this year.

Jeffaway is owned by the Small Oaks stable of Eddie Popham and Terry Garner. Coupled with Jeffaway will be the speedy Jubilarian, also trained by Sonny O'Connell.

Another strong entry is that of owner Dave Diamond, who has entered Feudal Lord and Imperial Silk. Both are California claims, Imperial Silk for $15,000.

Fleet Shade, owned by Frank MacMahon, and trained by Vance Longden, is yet another strong contender who comes north from California.

The locally trained Handsome Chief and Easel's Pride, winner of the Colonist Handicap, round out the list.

The purse for $2,200, richest in Sandown history.

In addition, racing officials have announced that three of the top jockeys in the northwest will be on hand. They are Joe Baze, Rogelio Trejos and Denis Tierney. Baze and Trejos have been riding in California. Tierney has recently recovered from an injury.

Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes will be in attendance and will present a silver platter to the winning owner.

In regard to a report that the Monday racing card may not fill, a spokesman said "No difficulty is anticipated at this time and we expect the card to be filled when entries are taken Saturday morning.

DAVIES 'LOOKING FORWARD' . . . . . . TO MATCH WITH WAKEHAM

Work Polishes Game, Play Eases Worry

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Back in February, veteran tour player Jerry Barber stood up to address a few hundred young professionals who came to Los Angeles to attend a Professional Golfers' Association merchandising clinic.

Barber was quite blunt, to the point.

"How many of you want to be players?" he asked.

After the show of hands, he then asked:

"How many hours do you think you should practise in order to become a good golfer?"

"If you're not prepared to spend at least five or six hours a day practising, then forget about playing. It takes a lot of hard work. . ."

Colwood assistant Earl Davies was one of the faces in the Los Angeles crowd.

There must have been some significance in the Barber bit because Davies "still can hear" the veteran's words and the Colwood belter is still "alive" in the Times Vancouver Island Open golf championships.

Sunday, at Colwood, Davies faces medallist and two-time champion Bill Wakeham in a 36-hole semi-final. Another pair of professionals, defending-champion Vaughan Trapp and Laurie Carroll, meet in the other semi.

The 18-hole route marches start at 9:46 and 1:46. Handicap semis start at 9:30 and 1:30.

The fact that Davies has reached the semi-finals makes the Los Angeles trip seem worthwhile.

"It wasn't the kind of school that turns out players," Davies said Thursday. "It was a merchandising clinic, but I still think it helped my game. When you listen to dedicated pros like Barber, Jimmy Thompson and Paul Runyan, it has to help. . . ."

The 24-year-old Duncan-reared golfer admits he has "no tournament experience" but is making his best mark in district circles. Another reason for that, he says, is "more play."

"My game improved greatly as soon as I started to play in the Inter-Club matches, the monthly medals and the button matches."

The district events also have helped Davies attain a mental maturity.

"A year or two ago, I might have worried about playing Wakeham. But I beat him in the two button matches we had during the winter. . . .

"I'm looking forward to Sunday. . . ."

WORKOUT SUNDAY

Three New Pilots In Senior Baseball

Chased out of Royal Athletic Park by a program to provide new grass, teams in the Senior Amateur Baseball League will play this season at Layritz Park.

Preparation of the field at Layritz is almost completed and it is expected that four teams will be campaigning for league honors although officials have announced there is a possibility the entry of a Cowichan club will make it a five-team circuit.

WORKOUT SUNDAY

All players interested in performing in the senior league this season are urged to turn out Sunday at 2 p.m. for a workout session at Topaz Park. Since allocation of players to teams is planned, officials stress that Sunday's session is a "must" for prospective players.

There will be a big change in the managers' ranks this year, with Les Brice of Greaves Movers the only holdover pilot.

Mike McAvoy is slated to handle the reins for Transport Workers while the other two squads will be managed by George Fuller and Barry Cosier.

Rifle League On Firing Line

Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association will act as host for a Vancouver Island Shooting League classified rifle match Sunday at the Esquimalt Lagoon range.

The three-position shoot over the 200-yard distance will start at 10 a.m.

Approximately 80 competitors will vie for honors, including entries from two mainland clubs.

Rollins a Governor

DRUMHELLER, Alta. (CP)—Al Rollins of Calgary, former Chicago and Toronto goalkeeper, has been elected governor of the Alberta Senior Hockey League.

Conigliaro Comeback Plans Hanging in Air

BOSTON (AP) — Tony Conigliaro's hopes of a possible baseball comeback as a pitcher are up in the air at the moment.

Conigliaro told reporters this week that doctors have warned him not to undergo any heavy physical activity at this time because it might detach the retina of his injured left eye. He indicated that this put a question mark on his thoughts of trying to return to baseball as a pitcher.

But the Boston Red Sox outfielder's father, Sal, said at his Swampscott home that he didn't believe this necessarily ruled out the possibility for the future.

"Naturally he wasn't thinking of pitching this year anyway," the elder Conigliaro said. "But what constitute's 'heavy physical activity?' He was still able to work out for a good hour just today at Fenway Park throwing to (Red Sox pitching coach) Darrell Johnson."

Tony was injured last Aug. 18 when hit high on the cheekbone by a pitch by Jack Hamilton of California Angels.

The slugging outfielder missed the rest of the season and attempted a comeback this spring. But his eyesight deteriorated and he finally had to give up the attempt.

Mack Loop Opens Season on Sunday

Connie Mack Baseball League teams will launch their new season with three games Sunday at Windsor Park. Opening ceremonies are scheduled for 3 p.m.

Preceeding the ceremonies, at 12:30 p.m., Victoria Optimists play Cosmopolitans. Tillicum Athletics go against Painters at 3:30 and at 6, Evening Optimists go to bat with Central Saanich.

Troubled Stanky Strolls But Jenkins Racing Along

By Associated Press

The White Sox still haven't won any baseball games this season, and the slump is keeping Chicago manager Eddie Stanky in terrific shape.

Stanky spent 20 minutes walking briskly from foul line to foul line in Minnesota's Metropolitan Stadium Thursday, swinging a leaded bat and mulling over his club's latest loss—a 3-2 toughie against the Twins.

He started his post-game stroll routine last Saturday when the Sox dropped their seventh straight. Now the streak is up to 10 for winless Chicago, and Stanky is still walking.

In Thursday's only other game, Chicago Cubs whipped Atlanta Braves 5-2 as Ron Santo poked a pair of home runs. All other major league teams had the day off.

HITS BUNCHED

It was the kind off loss that required long meditation. Chicago ace Gary Peters allowed just three hits—but all of them in a row in the third inning when the Twins got all their runs.

And what made it even tougher for Stanky to swallow was that an old team-mate from his New York Giant days was the hero for the Twins.

Rubber-armed Al Worthington came out of the bullpen and saved Jim Perry's victory. Worthington loaded the bases with none out in the seventh on two singles and a walk, then struck out Pete Ward, Tommy Davis and Russ Snyder.

Chicago left 11 runners on base and one manager in the outfield.

Santo's two homers drove in three runs and supported Ferguson Jenkins's seven-hitter. Jenkins, a native of Chatham, Ont., remains undefeated with his third straight win and gave up his first walk of the year. He's completed three of four games he started.

Atlanta's only runs came on homers by Bob Tillman and Felipe Alou.

Santo connected with the bases empty in the fourth against Ken Johnson and then sparked a three-run rally with his second shot in the eighth.

Jenkins, who won 15 games in Wrigley Field last year, earned his first home victory of the season.

IN INTERNATIONAL

Anzac Pacers Best

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Ben Slutsky has come up with another winner in harness racing.

Cardinal King, a five-year-old from New Zealand, is the latest likely champion for the master of Nevele Acres at Ellenville, N.Y. He already owns Nevele Pride, the Harness Horse-of-the-Year for 1967, for whom he recently turned down an offer of $2,000,000.

Cardinal King won the $50,000 International Pace at Yonkers Raceway in impressive style Thursday night.

Cardinal King, for whom Slutsky paid $40,000 early this year, displayed an explosive finish as he drew out in the stretch and beat the favored First Lee of Australia by 1¾ lengths.

BAY ENTRY

Cardinal King raced as an entry with the aged 12-year-old Cardigan Bay of New Zealand, harness racing's top winner with $950,571. The entry went off the second choice at 6-5 with the crowd of 23,686. First Lee was the 4-5 favorite at post time.

Cardigan Bay finished next to last in the seven-horse field.

Southern Song, made it a 1-2-3 finish for the Anzac horses by finishing third. Honest Story and Song Cycle, the two U.S. entries, came in fourth and fifth.

Cardinal King and First Lee likely will meet again next Thursday in the $50,000 Good Time Pace, second leg of Yonkers' $150,000 International series. The $50,000 National Championship Pace on May 9 is the final leg in the series.

FISHING REPORT

Browns Busy In Cowichan

Salmon fishermen have been hampered this week by winds and cool weather but most of those who have been out on the water have reported fair to good success.

Some of the best returns have been reported from Pedder Bay, where fishing pressure has been light. Keith Doak brought back a 23-pounder, Pete Patterson docked with 10 and 12-pounders and steady Henry Rollin boated another limit. Salmon appeared to be staying around Race Rocks and Bentinck Island.

Fishing has been fairly good in the Goldstream section of Saanich Inlet, where Tom Ward topped a good catch with a 10-pounder. Hottest spots in this area have been around Goldstream Island and The Narrows.

At the other end of the Inlet, Al Bennett hooked a 21:05-pounder at the entrance to Tod Inlet and Len Gordon connected with salmon in Cole Bay. Several springs are being taken at medium depth and blues are still available in the area off Willis Point, Senanus Island and Indian Bay along with springs up to 12 pounds, like the three brought back by Roy Smith and his partner.

Springs up to 20 pounds are hitting lures off Oak Bay with some of the larger fish apparently feeding close to the bottom in The Gap. Other productive spots have been Discovery Light, Fiddle Reef, and the Chain Islands.

Jack Seedhouse boated a 20-pounder and lost a couple of big ones, Walt Campbell weighed in a 15-pound spring and Bert Higgs took a 15:06-pounder on light tackle Wednesday.

Trout fishing has been slow in lakes and streams south of Duncan although trolled flies have been taking fair numbers of fish in Shawnigan and Dougan's Lakes. Anglers are beginning to hit more trout in up-Island waters as the spring steelhead run nears an end.

In the Duncan area, trout have come in from Fuller's Lake and the far end of Cowichan Lake off Shaw Creek. Cutthroat trout are active in the bottom end of the Koksilah River, which is still holding some steelheads.

Brown trout have been busy feeders in the upper end of Cowichan River close to the shingle mill. This mill is two miles east of the village proper and may be reached by a clear footpath. From the mill to the river the trail is marked with tape.

Some of the smaller walk-in lakes are starting to produce as the water warms up.

Steelhead results in the Cowichan have been good the past week although a few kelts have shown up. Best rig now seems to be worms and not roe. Some have been taken on small silver spoons that simulate minnows.

Brannan Lake in the Nanaimo area is producing good trout as is the first of the Nanaimo Lakes.

Steelhead are good in the Nanaimo River, where Tom McCormick picked up four recently on flies. Kelts are beginning to increase in numbers.

In the Courtenay-Campbell River area big cutthroat have shown in Lower Campbell Lake, trolling with yellow flatfish.

Some trout have been taken off the booms on the lower end of Comox Lake and Lower Quinsam Lake still remains a good bet for the spring fisherman.

The Salmon and Campbell Rivers are still producing steelheads, but though kelts are in greater quantities.

Summer Games Given The Green(back) Light

OTTAWA (CP) — The formal agreement to stage the 1st Canadian Summer Games in Halifax and Dartmouth, N.S., in 1969 has been signed here, Health Minister MacEachen announced Thursday.

The signing confirmed the federal government's plans to pay the operating expenses up to a maximum of $838,000 and one-third the cost of facilities, to a maximum of $300,000.

The games, a sort of national Olympics, are expected to attract 2,400 athletes from all 10 provinces and the two northern territories to compete in a number of Olympic summer sports. The dates are Aug. 19-30, 1969.

Mr. MacEachen signed the formal agreement for the federal government. Signing on behalf of the 1969 Canada Games Society was its president, Halifax broadcaster Finlay MacDonald.

The province of Nova Scotia and the two host cities are sharing in the financing of the games.

The main stadium is to be built on the campus of St. Mary's University, Halifax.

The 1st Canadian Winter Games were held in Quebec City in February, 1967.

Junior Circuit Plans Stymied

CHICAGO (AP)—The American League, which made tracks over the National League in expanding to 12 teams for 1969, now is slowed down in those tracks.

The Nationals were miffed when the Americans voted last winter without mutual consultation to admit Seattle and retreaded Kansas City to membership next season.

It forced the Nationals to advance their expansion plans, originally targeted for not later than 1971, to 1969 also. They now are pondering the selection of two new cities from among San Diego, Milwaukee, Dallas-Fort Worth, Buffalo and Montreal.

The Nationals will meet in mid-May presumably to vote on the two new franchises.

Until this is done, the Americans consider themselves stymied in their decision to split their league in two six-team divisions next year with playoffs to determine the circuit's pennant winner and World Series representative.

At an American League owners meeting Thursday, President Joe Cronin said that the brass wants divisional play in 1969 but scheduling action has been delayed pending the National's move.

The probable AL division setup would have the East consisting of New York, Washington, Boston, Baltimore, Cleveland and Kansas City; and the West of Anaheim, Oakland, Seattle, Minnesota, Detroit and Chicago.

"If you ask me, the native's story about a huge bird is complete rot!"

Experts Interested In a Drop of Water

Twenty-three government officials from across Canada began an annual meeting here Thursday as part of a worldwide fascination with a simple drop of water.

Headed by Maj.-Gen. H. A. Young of Ottawa, they are members of the Canadian national committee involved with the International Hydrological Decade launched by the United Nations three years ago.

IHD is a basic research project into the nature and properties of H2O engaging the attention of 97 countries interested in understanding how best to manage the resource in a water-thirsty world.

"It is fundamentally a study of the cycle of water," said Gen. Young. "We want to know what happens to a drop of rain from the time it falls until it falls again."

Although a pure research project, the information the world's scientists collect about that drop of water likely will have a practical impact in such areas as hydro development, irrigation, pollution control, weather modification and forecasting.

For B.C., the practical results might include the basis for developing techniques of irrigating the dry interior plateau with ground water trapped in mountain slope basins as well as determining the effect that glaciers have on weather, water supply and floods.

It could also lead to useful information in planning future hydro-electric installations and help environmental engineers to decide what effect on nature at large will result from turning a large wilderness area into an urban community.

The committee's meeting, first one held in B.C., will run through to tonight and will include a field trip Saturday to the University of B.C. Research Forest at Haney where one of Canada's 187 IHD studies is under way.

'A Great Canadian'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lieutenant-Governor George R. Pearkes of British Columbia was presented Thursday with a National Human Relations award by the Pacific Region of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews.

"He is a great Canadian, a man whom many Canadians will try to emulate," said Dr. Richard Jones, national president of the council. "He has demonstrated the ideals for which we stand."

Lt.-Gov. Pearkes, 80, will retire in June. The former Conservative defence minister and Victoria Cross winner became Lieutenant-Governor in October, 1960.

The citation paid tribute to his efforts in promoting national and international understanding, for symbolizing fair play, graciousness and human dignity.

PRETTY GAL

Deborah Ann Bryant of Kansas City was rated in the top 10 in the Miss Teen-age America Pageant in 1963 — and then went on to win the Miss America title in 1966.

PROTESTS FIVE-MONTH DETENTION OF WITNESS

Dief Visits 'Humble, Poor Person' in Jail

MONTREAL (CP) — "As long as I have breath left in me and a humble, poor person is denied justice, I will defend him," former prime minister John Diefenbaker told reporters Thursday.

Mr. Diefenbaker had just emerged from Montreal's Bordeaux jail where he had spent an hour talking with 20-year-old Henry Berube, held in prison for the last five months as a material witness at a non-capital murder trial.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the five-month detention cannot be justified in any way.

Berube was declared a material witness under a rarely-used Criminal Code article when it was brought to the attention of the presiding judge that the witness intended to leave town.

Berube is to testify at the trial of Michael Jenkins, who faces a charge of non-capital murder in the Oct. 12 rifle-slaying of McGill University philosophy professor James Ross.

Berube's bail was set at $5,000.

Mr. Diefenbaker said there was no foundation to the allegation that Berube was planning to leave town, and "there he sits in repulsive detention because he is too poor."

In Quebec, Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand said he does not intend to intervene in the Berube case.

"Mr. Berube is a witness in a murder case," he said in an interview. "He was detained legally and by an order of the court. The case is before the court."

Licence Lack Proves Costly

A Vancouver man was fined $50 Thursday for driving while his right to obtain a licence was suspended.

Police said they observed Martin Reeve, 21, driving at Yates and Blanshard Wednesday night.

NO WAY TO TREAT A LADY
Victoria Premiere
Odeon Theatre

Rod Steiger won the best actor award in what was adjudged the best film of 1967, In the Heat of the Night.

This time, in contrast to his earlier role as the frustrated police chief, he dons a variety of disguises as a psychotic criminal who wantonly liquidates a succession of lonely women.

It is all rather reminiscent of Charlie Chaplin's Monsieur Verdoux (1949), but without the genius of Chaplin and without the depth of feeling Steiger gave to his lonely, Mississippi police chief.

Nonetheless, he is brilliantly versatile as a lachrymose drug queen, an absurdly Teutonic janitor, a jaunty Irish priest and a high-spirited hairdresser.

The fault seems to be in the story and the direction, which waver uncertainly between farce and high tragedy, and one or two comedy episodes which seem in doubtful taste.

In his various disguises, Steiger baffles both police and public with a series of ingenious slayings, and brazenly needles Detective George Segal over the phone as to his inability to find the slayer.

It seems that Steiger's mother, a once famous actress, is a clue to his mental condition. And detective Segal also has a mother problem—a dominating Jewish woman who nags him about not bettering himself, not getting married and not eating properly.

The psychological problems of the two men are involved in the story's development, while dainty Lee Remick supplies the feminine appeal as the detective's girl friend and an important witness in one of Steiger's murders.

'Festival Highlights' Concert Features the Tops in Talent

By BERYL PROUDMAN

A well-rounded program which will delight everybody has beeen chosen for tonight's 'Festival Highlights' at McPherson Playhouse.

Starting at 8 the concert is the showcase for some of the highest achievements in the Greater Victoria Music Festival's first week.

A dedicated committee has spent long hours selecting an entertaining program.

As usual there is no dearth of talent.

During the last four days we have heard exciting, brilliant, appealing and moving performances in organ, piano, vocal, accordion, guitar and speech arts classes.

For every performer chosen to appear in tonight's gala concert, many had to be overlooked.

The program finally drawn up is rich in variety and musical talent.

St. Mary's Church Boys Ensemble will open the program which includes The Amity Singers and the CBC award-winning women of The Don Kyle Singers.

Winning pianists Stephen Calder, Jocelyn Abbott and Frances Crampton will play before the exciting contest for the coveted City of Victoria Medallion is run to determine whether Cheryl Boris or Camille Inkman proves the most talented student pianist.

Jennifer Angus will represent junior vocal contestants while Laura Groos represents older students. For greater variety Norm Smith will play the piano accordion, Dennis Olsen will play the classical guitar and Rosalind Scott will represent speech arts in a dramatic monologue.

The first half of the program will close with the Grade A competition for the B.C. Electric Rose Bowl for which Norma Selwood, Barbara Ebell, Carla Levinson and George Roberts will compete, and early in the second half, awards will be presented to many of the contestants who have striven so hard and achieved so much during a hectic week of music-making.

Throughout this week, experienced adjudicators have guided the festival away from destructive, hostile, mark-grabbing one-upmanship sessions, into healthier, more profitable channels.

Each class has been regarded as a theatre for performing, for testing skills, for assessing and re-learning what is faulty in a performance; as a forum in which competitors experience the joy of reaching an audience or find out why they failed to do so.

Without exception, adjudicators dealt first with important matters of assessment and improvement, and only then of the less serious matter of distribution of marks.

Though we are not yet mature enough to dispense with marks and competitive positions, we have appreciated the careful analyses, and noted suggested improvements.

Piano students will remember that tracing vocal lines brings the fullest understanding of Bach's music. Many students who have been permitted to redeem a muffed first performance by a second attempt have learned that festivals are for presenting the best performance possible, not for one-chance hit-or-miss endeavors.

From Trevor Anthony, contestants learned that facial expression, posture of the body and a wish to share a song with the audience, intelligence, understanding and musical interpretation are as important as perfectly articulated words and flawless intonation.

All centres in which classes have been held have been singularly free of tension and hostility. Nervousness there has certainly been but the rooms have been filled with appreciative laughter and smiling happiness that have made this first week truly festive.

Police Love Prevails

TORONTO (CP) — Love has triumphed in Metropolitan Toronto's police force. A policeman now may marry a policewoman without one having to leave the force. Intra-department marriages were approved Thursday by the police commission following several years of complaints by policemen.

B.C. INDIAN COUNCIL

Hiring Practices Under Criticism

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the British Columbia Indian Advisory Council said Thursday that the proposed new federal Indian act should be drafted to deal with Indians on three levels.

They suggested at a press conference that one level of the act deal with Indians well advanced into white society, one with those in transition and one with those in remote and backward areas.

Members, representing six major regions of B.C. and the Yukon, agreed that the greatest need of B.C. Indians is steady work — the only way in which slum conditions on reserves could be ended.

Guy Williams, president of the Native Brotherhood of B.C., accused employers of discriminating against Indians and said local Indians often find U.S. hiring practices more fair.

"One of my own sons had to go to California to find a job, even though there were openings here for which he was fully qualified. The U.S. may have its Negro problem but here there is an Indian problem."

Richard Malloway of Sardis, described most Indians as "shy people." He said that if they are hurt or insulted by an employer or job agency "they just give up trying."

HEARINGS DUE

The federal Indian Affairs Department has scheduled public hearings across Canada on revisions to the act. The first will be at Prince George, May 6-8.

Mr. Williams criticized the idea of holding hearings during the federal election campaign, saying there are "too many political hopefuls" who will promise anything.

"They'll promise the Indians the moon if they think it'll get them a few votes. This is apt to make the Indians' problems a political football."

'White Society Callous'

SWIFT CURRENT (CP) — Mrs. Mary Ann Lavallee, spokesman for Canadian Indians, told the Provincial Council of Women Wednesday that conditions on Indian reservations are comparable to the deplorable social conditions which precipitated riots in Watts and Detroit.

She said that the callous indifference of white society has built an impenetrable wall around the reserves.

"They have taken for granted that the Indian Affairs Branch could be mother, father, brother, sister and God to the Indian people. How terribly wrong.

"Poverty and frustration walk hand and hand on the reserves."

She labelled the four greatest needs of the Indian today as legislation to make Indian child welfare a provincial responsibility, pre-natal care for the Indian woman, a voice and active participation for the Indian on school and hospital boards and a program of alcohol education among Indians.

ON ORDERS OF PRIEST

Indian Shacktown Razed

FORT ST. JAMES (CP) — Chief Nicholas Prince of the Nescolie Indian band Thursday protested the razing of 15 Indian shacks on the outskirts of this northern B.C. community.

The shacks, located on Roman Catholic church property, were bulldozed into heaps of lumber and burned Wednesday on orders from Rev. Gerald Holmes.

Chief Prince said the shack town was used by Stuart-Trembleur and Takla Indian bands who squatted on the land after moving there from reserves 30 to 40 miles away.

He said several families lost possessions in the razing and one family with three children was forced to move into a friend's woodshed after its home was destroyed.

The chief said five or six of the shacks were locked and contained stoves, washing machines, furniture and food belonging to families that were absent when the wrecking machines moved in.

Father Holmes said the squatters had decent homes on their reserves and only moved into town "to be near the beer parlor."

"These people were living in the worst possible squalor and deprivation and they were told as long as six years ago that they would have to move out."

Father Holmes said the destruction of the shack town, which he described as a breeding ground for disease, drinking and violence, was sanctioned by health authorities. One shack was left standing to temporarily house a family with several young children.

Chief Prince said the families moved into the shack-town to be nearer to work, welfare and medical care services and criticized the priest for not warning people to collect their belongings.

"I think someone should have had the decency to do at least that much," he said. "Some of the people were sitting on the side of the road like a bunch of refugees."

AIDES DOUBT POPE WILL VISIT CANADA

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Vatican sources were doubtful today that Pope Paul would accept an invitation to visit Canada next month.

They said that even his reported plans to go to South America in the fall still were tentative and depended partly upon his health.

Most Rev. Alexander Carter, bishop of Saulte Ste. Marie and president of the Canadian Catholic Conference, told reporters in Ottawa Thursday the Pope had been invited to Montreal for a meeting of a Canadian conference on poverty, May 26 to 29.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, APRIL 26, 1968—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

With no Expo to divert holiday traffic eastward this summer, the signs point to a bumper tourist crop for Vancouver Island. Such an influx would be all to the good, especially in a year when our economy appears to have developed a slight sag. Visitors spend, and if they feel they've received full value, the chances are that they will return to spend again.

If they go home disappointed, the result is word-of-mouth bad advertising that no amount of high-colored propaganda on our part can overcome.

With the competition for the tourist dollar nothing less than savage, this is a risk that not even an Island so well-endowed as ours can afford to take. What baffles me is why we go right on taking it.

I do not suggest a flunky approach. After all, this is our turf, and as year-round residents, we know the tourist to be largely a seasonal phenomenon.

But in your own travels, have you ever found yourself in a city where you were required to search for an open restaurant on a national holiday? I hope before the first of July hordes pile off the ferries, that silliness has been brought to an end.

Victoria has much to offer in addition to her setting and her far-famed — if amiably phoney "Bit of Old England" atmosphere. But there are certain lacks, and I think they need filling.

One of them is a family ticket or pass that will let visiting parents and their children make the rounds of our local attractions for a reasonable sum.

Another lack — and how this has gone unfilled so long, I have no idea — is a briskly-scheduled bus transport to Butchart Gardens. Everyone who comes here wants to see those gardens, and each year, the plaint is the same:

"I haven't a car, I want to go out there without a lot of waiting around, and I don't intend to take a taxi that distance. Isn't there any regular service?"

The visitor will also search in vain for a golfing brochure that tells him where he can play, what the rates are, and when is ladies' day. Surely the clubs that take in out-of-town golfers could get together on this one!

We also badly need more tourist accommodation. This city and its immediate environs aren't keeping up with the demand. Last summer — which, as you may recall, was not the best of seasons — the Visitors Bureau sometimes worked till 10 at night or later, searching out private homes to accommodate the overflow.

The greatest need, however, is for trailer parks. They should be large, modern, and close in, and we don't have them. The chances are that we won't, either, until we have cleared up our pollution mess, and installed an adequate sewer system in the fringe areas where such parks belong.

This lack isn't confined to Victoria. Vancouver Island has been caught drowsing by the boom in trailer and truck camper travel. We don't have enough private oases to accommodate the home-on-wheels crowd. Areas in some provincial parks have been worked over for trailer use, but these don't come anywhere near filling the demand.

This is one for the provincial authority: It should be acted on promptly.

We have a lot here that pleases the tourist, but we do need to look to our assets. One of these is our much-vaunted salmon fishing, an attraction that packs the resorts each summer.

It's waning, and unless both federal and provincial governments move strongly to protect it, it may be forced into a permanent decline. Ironically, Lake Michigan, where coho plantings have taken hold with fantastic success, is now a fishermen's hotspot . . . and don't think the tourist-wise state of Michigan isn't cashing in on the fact.

This Island has always taken its very valuable tourist trade for granted. I'm not sure how much longer we can afford to indulge ourselves in this dangerous complacency.

Arm in arm, Tom and Lyn Hancock close their eyes on the world.

Pity the Cougar! Victim of Smear, He's Really a Dear

By DON VIPOND

When it comes to woodland friends, Lyn Hancock has a chum named Tom who's terrific!

Although he's only 15 months old, Tom weighs 150 pounds. He's happiest when he's snoozing, preferably while cuddling his mistress. That way he's in a good spot to lick her face when he wakes up.

Could this be the fearsome cougar, the spitting, snarling villain of many a backwoods legend?

SMEAR CAMPAIGN

But, she claims, Tom and almost all of his kind are victims of a smeal campaign of tall tales which over the years have built the image of cougars as wicked wildcats.

It isn't so, says Mrs. Hancock, and Tom is living proof.

One of five kittens given to the Hancocks, Tom spends his weekdays in a Duncan zoo. Two of the others went to Australia and two to California.

Tom is so fond of Mrs. Hancock he'll even stop eating to welcome her when she comes to visit. In the animal world, that's a high compliment indeed.

Sometimes the sleek and contented eat joins them for weekend outings. Then he's the soul of gentleness, keen on drowsing in the sun, cool on swimming in the saltchuck although he has taken brief dips.

'HE'S WRONG'

All of which leads Mrs. Hancock to take execption to a comment of Times columnist Arthur Mayse who wrote recently that all cougars "have vile tempers."

There are many American owners of pet cougars who would join her in quarreling over that, she says.

Rogue cougars are the rare ones, she says, and tells of a friend on a mainland hunting trip last year who sat down to rest. It was 15 minutes before he spotted a cougar resting amiably in the bushes alongside him.

When newspapers sensationalize the rare exploits of an abnormal cougar, they tar the entire tribe of timid and secretive animals with the same brush.

T'ain't right or fair, says Mrs. Hancock.

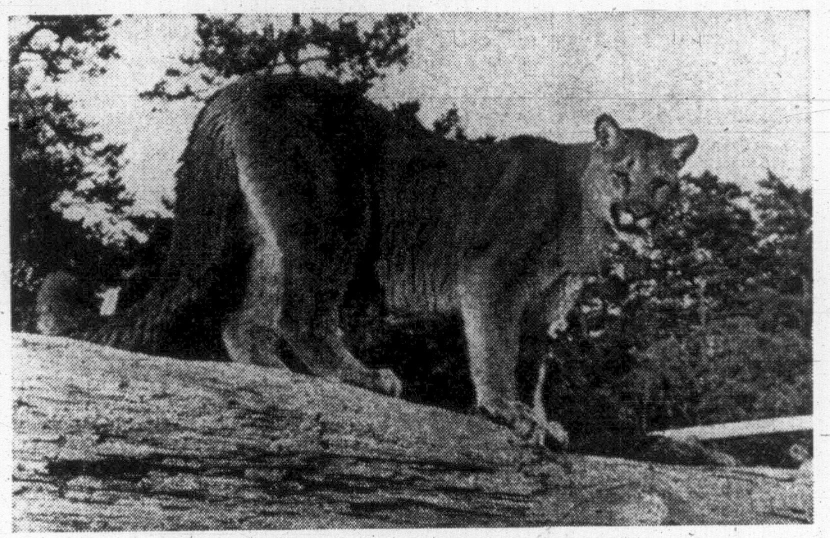
'DRAMATIZED'

In an article he wrote for Canadian Audubon entitled The Cougar on Vancouver Island he said:

"The public is led to believe that the cougar is an insatiable monster, prowling the forests seeking man and beast to maim and kill. At such times the few authentic records of attacks on man are enlarged upon, distorted and dramatized. Thus a myth builds up vilifying one of our most colorful and often beneficial mammals."

Within any population of large animals, domestic or otherwise, there exists a small percentage of dangerous individuals, wrote the respected biologist.

The cougar is no more dangerous to man than are dogs, range cattle or goats, for example.



He'll pause for traditional pose but he prefers to snooze.

WATER IS TOO WET so Tom just crouches and stares. Maybe he's really fishing.

Final Contract Let On Museum Complex

STUDY ASKED ON INCREASED BUSINESS TAX

Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors today were asked to support an in-depth study of Victoria business tax before it is increased to pay for convention promotion.

The proposal was put forward by chamber president William Armstrong at a regular directors' meeting. It followed a brief statement that supported in principle a proposed business tax boost made to city council two weeks ago.

Mr. Armstrong said that although the chamber is fully for a convention facility and agrees that advance promotion is necessary, directors have not had a chance to study the brief asking for a higher business tax submitted by former alderman Geoffrey Edgelow.

$2.2 Million Job To Burns-Dutton

By JOHN MIKA

The final contract for the Centennial museum-archives complex was announced today — assuring its completion no more than two years late.

And it will be finished almost exactly a decade after Premier Bennett first announced, on December 10, 1959, that a new museum and archives would be built next to the Legislative Buildings after the Law Courts were completed.

Public works department announced that the lowest of five bidders, Burns and Dutton Construction (1962) Ltd., has been awarded a $2,242,000 contract to complete the 11-storey curatorial building, the one-storey archives building and the landscaping.

It was estimated the work would be finished in about 14 months.

Final cost of the project — to which the federal government contributed $2.5 million as a centennial gift to B.C. — is expected to be just under $8 million, double the original estimate Mr. Bennett gave when he formally announced a go-ahead for the project May 16, 1963.

Current work on the main museum exhibit building is expected to be completed in about two months by Farmer Construction.

SLOW MOTION

Victorians have watched the slow-motion start-stop construction program since Premier Bennett touched off the first dynamite blast May 7, 1965, to begin excavation of the former government parking lot at Government and Belleville as the site of the complex.

Earlier, Works Minister Chant had announced the total project would be completed in time for the July 1, 1967, Confederation centennial celebrations.

In May, 1966, Queen Mother Elizabeth laid the cornerstone of large exhibit hall and the following month the hoarding fence around the site was decorated in a massive paint-in sponsored by officialdom.

But the stark steel skeletons of the high-rise curatorial building and the archives building have been standing untouched since Premier Bennett ordered a work halt later that year.

PLANS REDRAWN

Work on the exhibit hall was resumed last year after the working plans were redrawn to cut all possible costs but the rest of the project has remained dormant.

Mr. Chant said costs and timetable were upset by a 20 to 30 per cent rise in construction prices during the life of the project as it became obvious the Confederation celebration would come and go without opening of the project.

But last May another royal personage, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, brightened government faces as she presided at a ceremony at the site of the carillon tower.

The 40 bells of the carillon, donated by the Dutch community in B.C. as a centennial gesture, began ringing last month.

Scholarship For $10,000 To Victorian

A Victorian studying law at the University of British Columbia has been awarded a $10,000 Commonwealth Scholarship.

Mohan Jawl, 24, will go to England to read for his doctorate at the London School of Economics over the next two years.

The youngest of six children, Mohan was born in Victoria where his family settled after leaving India in 1930.

He attended Mount View high school and spent two years at Victoria College before transferring to UBC where he obtained a bachelor of commerce degree after two further years' study.

VALEDICTORIAN

He will be class valedictorian at UBC's congregation next month after completing his law degree. He won seven scholarships and prizes while working his way through law school, topping his class last year.

Mohan hopes to return to Victoria to practise law. He is particularly interested in company and taxation law but has not yet decided in which he will specialize.

The Commonwealth Scholarship, like the Rhodes Scholarship, stresses the humanities and carries great academic prestige, but many more Commonwealth Scholarships are available.

Awarded annually to students of high intellectual promise who might be expected to make a significant contribution to life in their own countries after studies overseas, the scholarships cover travel, tuition and living expenses abroad.

Commissions in 15 member countries were organized in 1959. Funds are provided and candidates selected by the receiving countries, on recommendations from the countries of the students' origin.

TRAILERS, BOATS

Hearing Set To Air Cover-Up Law

Oak Bay council will hold a public hearing May 2 on a bylaw amendment to ban storing of trailers, boats and derelict cars on improved lots in the municipality.

Mayor Fred Hawes said Thursday the amendment is designed to do away with unsightly junk and vehicle parts lying about on occupied properties.

The bylaw would mean trailers, boats and bodies from camper trucks would have to be in a garage or behind some type of screening, he said.

The changed bylaw will also limit the number of cars parked in the open for more than 72 hours of any week to one per licensed owner.

MUST BE COVERED

No boats over 16 feet will be permitted in the municipality unless covered from public view, Mayor Hawes said.

Another provision of the bylaw will limit the size of boats that can be built on any Oak Bay property to 16 feet.

No one will be permitted to accumulate building materials on his property unless he has a current building permit.

Another bylaw under consideration for amendment would permit day-care homes in areas now zoned for single family dwelling.

Man Admits Having Drug

A View Royal man pleaded guilty in central court today to possession of marijuana.

William Routley, 583 Prince Robert Drive, was remanded until May 3 to allow time for a pre-sentence report.

Court was told police went to Routley's home and found a small box containing the butts of 11 marijuana cigarettes.

Routley told police he had bought the cigarettes for 50 cents each and smoked them himself.

MUST SERVE THREE MORE MONTHS

'Matter of Principle' — Fugitive

A weary and hungry fugitive turned himself in to a Milnes Landing housewife Thursday after escaping William Head prison 12 days ago.

Norman Kenneth Cottrell, 24, of Ontario and Whitehorse, appeared in central court this morning charged with escaping custody and being unlawfully at large.

He was given concurrent three-month sentences when he pleaded guilty to both charges.

"It was a matter of principle. I'd rather not go into it now," he said of his escape.

He had been scheduled for release Oct. 3.

"I could hardly believe what he said he was," said Mrs. Peter Groot of 2450 Dixon Rd. today after Cottrell appeared at her door while she was preparing supper Thursday.

The stocky blonde prisoner first met Andrew Groot, 17, in the yard of the home as the boy was coming home from school.

"Do you want to be a hero?" he asked the boy and then told him who he was.

Mrs. Groot said Cottrell was amiable and polite, asking to use the phone to call police.

FAMISHED

When the party line was busy, he was asked if he would like something to eat. He said he was famished and the Groots gave him a meal of bacon, eggs and toast.

While waiting for police to arrive Cottrell told them he had been taking an electronics course at the minimum secruity prison and hoped he would be able to finish it.

He took some food with him when he and another prisoner fled William Head April 14, he said, and had been hiding in the heavy bush country between Sooke and Colwood. He had been able to buy some more food from some Boy Scouts he met.

"I told him when everything was cleared up to come in and have another meal with us," Mrs. Groot said today.

The Groots live about four miles from the Sooke potholes. Mr. Groot is employed by Sooke Forest Products.

Cottrell had served 18 months of a two-year sentence for criminal negligence causing bodily harm at the time of his escape.

Fleeing the minimum security prison with him was Delmar Lyman Ferguson, 25, of the Vernon area who was in the second year of a three-year term for manslaughter. Ferguson was recaptured in Kelowna a week ago.

Contract Boosts Printers' Wages

A two-year agreement has been negotiated between the Victoria Typographical Union and Victoria Press Limited.

The agreement provides for a total increase of 65 cents per hour spread over the two-year period. Under the terms of the new agreement, which is effective from Jan. 1, 1968, a journeyman printer working day shift, will receive the following rates of pay:

Effective Jan. 1, 1968, $3.94 per hour, an increase of 20 cents; effective July 1, 1968, $4.09 per hour; effective Jan. 1, 1969, $4.24 per hour; effective July 1, 1969, $4.39 per hour.

The new agreement also provides for additional benefits and adjustments.

Negotiations have also been concluded with the remaining three mechanical unions, namely, Stereotypers and Electrotypers Union No. 88, Victoria Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union No. 79, and Victoria Mailers' Union No. 121. Agreements have been reached with these unions providing for similar wage increases and for additional adjustments and benefits.

Negotiations are now in progress between the American Newspaper Guild Local 223 and Victoria Press Limited, pertaining to a proposed new contract, covering the editorial departments and business office employees.

Firemen Extinguish Log Fire on Beach

City firemen were called to a beach fire near Beacon Hill Park at about 4 p.m. Thursday and doused burning logs for about 55 minutes.

Department officials suspect someone had a fire on the beach that got out of control. City bylaws forbid fires on Victoria beaches.

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

There's a time in every girl's life—whether student, career girl or housewife—when a full-course, head-to-toe beauty treatment is not only a treat but a necessity!

Perhaps a special occasion is in the offing. Maybe you've let your usual grooming routine go awry. Possibly you feel you just must take some extra time off for yourself.

Many beauty salons offer a "day of beauty" to fill these very needs. But you can create your own beauty siesta at home. Simply set aside three hours—be sure to take the phone off the hook! Now then, remove makeup, tie up your hair and you're all set to go.

Step one: Lights, camera, action! . . . The first phase of your beauty breather is to limber up. Place a large mat or towel on the floor and do some informal "animal" stretches. Kick, reach, bend and give all those muscles a good S-T-R-E-T-C-H. Do any form of free exercise that makes you unwind. It's nice to dress for exercise in loose, comfortable attire.

Time: 10 minutes.

Step two: Moisture, Maestro, please . . . There's face value in a moisturizing treatment. You may use a facial sauna or the tried-and-true barber shop method of hot towels. Even 30 hot water splashes following an extra-special face wash will do the trick.

Time: 10 minutes.

Step three: Facial feature . . . Whip up a super facial by mixing outmeal and buttermilk into a thick paste. Apply it to your face except for the under-eye area where cream is in order. (You may give your neck an extra "treat" by smoothing on some cream before covering with the oatmeal pack.)

This is also a good time for hands, elbows and feet to partake of a "CREAM COURSE." Then, rest in the beauty angle—feet higher than head—for 15 minutes.

Now, rinse off the facial, first with warm water, then cool. Follow with astringent or witch hazel.

Time: 30 minutes.

Step four: Beauty and the bath . . . Add a little softening oil to your bath water or concoct a never-fail skin smoother of 1 tablespoon emollient oil mixed with ½ cup of milk.

While you're enjoying your beauty soak, do the preliminary work on your manicure and pedicure by removing polish and rubbing in cuticle cream. Now is the time to wield that pumice stone, giving special attention to the bottoms of your feet and the backs of your heels.

After 10 minutes, turn on the shower and use a loofah or rough-textured washcloth to scrub away all those dead skin cells.

You may prefer to try a coarse or sea salt to make your body glow. Rinse off under hot, then cold water.

Next, wash your hair and finish with a vinegar, lemon or camomile tea rinse.

Time: 30 minutes.

Step five: Hair's how . . . Set your hair in your usual fashion, defuzz underarms and legs. While drying your hair, complete your manicure and pedicure,

Time: 60 minutes.

Step six: The finale: . . . Comb out hair, apply makeup to your beautifully radiant face and your favorite fragrance to your gloriously refreshed body, and dress.

Time: 40 minutes.

Whether or not you're going anywhere it's important to enhance this beauty breather by wearing your most becoming lounging outfit. Half the fun of a "day of beauty" is revelling in how great you look, even if THE NEW YOU is your own best admirer.

JUST FOR YOU: Enjoy a beauty breather weekly for ever-rewarding results.

HELD THIS WEEK

Bridge Tea For OXFAM

Victoria committee of Oxfam of Canada is always looking for more people with more ideas about raising money to help alleviate famine and suffering in the world.

Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Alice MacLeod convened a bridge tea, in the Douglas Room of the Hudson's Bay Company, with many non-bridge players dropping in for tea after play.

Mrs. H. G. McWilliams and Mrs. William Herbert were in charge of tickets, and money raised will be used for famine relief.

While preparing tea, Mrs. MacLeod pointed out that the local committee would welcome volunteer workers to help pack clothing.

They would also be delighted if anyone could organize a money-making affair, such as the performance by a boys' band which was arranged by Dr. Victor Rogers.

Donations may be sent to Norman Stephens at 795 Meaford Street.

HELD ON THURSDAY

St. Mary's Bridge-Tea Is Dieters' Downfall

There couldn't have been a dieter in St. Mary's Church hall Thursday afternoon strong enough to resist helping herself to at least one of the luscious desserts tempting them as they arrived for the Women's Parish Guild annual bridge tea.

Two huge tables were covered with dozens of the loveliest cakes, squares, pies and puddings imaginable, all looking very much like illustrations for a magazine.

The desserts represented favorite recipes of Guild members, each one different, and there were enough to fill a cook book. Mrs. S. Petley Jones and Mrs. J. H. W. Pope were in charge of refreshments.

Adding to the colorful scene were masses of daffodils, jonquils, narcissi, tulips, iris and greenery banked from end to end between the two refreshment tables. The flowers were arranged by Mrs. K. Dixon and her committee.

Mrs. H. J. Jones, the rector's wife, received guests with Mrs. G. A. Ewart, guild president.

Mrs. H. A. Brown was general convener of the tea, at which 60 tables of bridge were in play. Mrs. T. W. Kensington was in charge of tickets, and treasurer Mrs. A. H. Bamford was at the door. Mrs. G. A. Ewart was in charge of publicity.

Door prizes were drawn by Mrs. C. J. Bunbury.

Proceeds were $450.

Dr. Miroslav Zemla, ambassador for Czechoslovakia in Canada, and his wife, are seen in their suite at the Empress Hotel. Currently on an 11-day trans-Canada tour, they're impressed by the diverse locales and attitudes they have encountered on their trip. (Bill Halkett photo.)

For Czechoslovakian Women, Says Visitor

WAR BROUGHT ADVANCES

By PAT DUFOUR

The chaos and destruction of the Second World War is the reason why Czechoslovakian women are so far advanced in status, compared to Canadian women.

This is the opnion of Liba Zemla, wife of Dr. Miroslav Zemla, Czech ambassador in Canada, who is visiting Victoria with her husband.

While hundreds of women across Canada are attending hearings of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women, urging assistance for working mothers, easing of abortion laws and other measures, many of these are already an everday fact in Czechoslavakia.

NEW BEGINNING

Says Mrs. Zemla, "My country was almost virtually destroyed during the war and economic necessity has eased the path of women's emancipation.

"Women make up 45 per cent of the working force and are an important part of the economic structure. So, with such a situation, problems must be treated with logic."

Nursery schools and education are both free in Czechoslovakia and mothers are encouraged to continue their careers. Pregnancy, which is often used as an employer's excuse for not hiring young mothers in Canada, is no threat to Czech industry and business.

MATERNITY LEAVE

Mrs. Zemla reports that her government pays a 26-week maternity leave, and once the child is born there is no frantic readjustment of family life.

"Large factories and businesses share the cost of nurseries with the state and each woman is given the written legal right to return to the same job at the same pay."

A drastic shortage of housing, says Mrs. Zemla, is mainly responsible for her country's attitude toward abortion which has been legal in her country for the past eight years.

She describes how this is accomplished. "The woman must first see her doctor, who examines her and makes a recommendation to a commission. Both male and female doctors serve on this commission. Reasons are given for the woman's request for abortion.

"If the board decides in favor of the abortion, the married woman may have the service without charge. Single women must pay."

Both married and single women may obtain birth control pills through their doctor.

Mrs. Zemla, who worked as an associate editor for a large publishing company before her marriage, reports that there is no prejudice against Czech women in the working field.

EXCEPT POLITICS

She feels that the only area in which women do not take an equal role is politics. In her country's National Assembly, only one third of the members are women. There is only one woman minister, who holds the portfolio of minister of consumer goods. She's not convinced that this is evidence of prejudice. She explains that when women combine dual roles of mother and worker there is less time for politics.

There is little time, either, for clubs.

"I'm always impressed by the amount of time and work that Canadian women lavish on club work. In my country, as you know, the cultural life is very high. In Prague, alone, which has a population of one million people, there are 20 big theatres and two opera houses. Perhaps, when Candian cities have the same facilities, Canadian women will turn more to the arts for fulfillment."

Mrs. Zemla feels that Canadian women's clubs have accomplished a great deal, especially the Consumers' Association of Canada. "Prices very so much and the CAC has done a great deal to keep prices down."

She, herself, has joined one club since the Zemlas came to Canada in 1964. "I belong to the Canadian Club and attend whenever I can get away from my official duties."

The Zemlas have a seven-year-old daughter, Hanah, and her mother feels that North American life is harder on mothers.

"At home you are only away when the child is in school. Here, with so many social commitments, I find it hard to have to leave her when she is home in the evening,"

With all the privileges accorded Czech women, Mrs. Zemla admits that Utopia is still not quite in sight.

"We are still struggling for equal pay for equal work."

Plan Spring Tea

Mrs. F. West, president of Happy Valley Women's Institute, will open a spring tea and bazaar to be presented by Colwood Women's Institute Wednesday in the Colwood Hall.

Mrs. E. H. Emery is general convener.

SAYS VANCOUVER PLANTATION OWNER

African Reaction Yet to Begin

"The African reaction to the twentieth century hasn't started yet," Mr. A. W. S. Mortifee of Vancouver told the Women's Canadian Club Thursday in the McPherson Playhouse.

The president of Mortifee-Munshaw Limited spoke from his own experience in southern Africa where he has spent much time, both as a child growing up on his father's sugar plantation, which he still owns, and later, when he had finished his education in England and on the continent.

"It is a courtesy there that when you ask a question of an African, he will reply as he thinks you hope he will," said Mr. Mortifee to point out the difficulty of knowing what is happening in Africa. He himself spoke Zulu better than English as a child. "Having had ready communication with the Zulus has made him one of the few who can give an accurate analysis of African reactions.

Pointing out that little was known about South Africa today, the speaker took a quick look into the history of Africa.

EUROPEAN INFLUENCE

"The African continent has only been touch with Europe over a short time," he said.

The first Europeans to travel around the Cape of Good Hope were Portuguese sailers from the school founded by Henry the Navigator, who, as Mr. Mortifee pointed out, never went to sea.

"Africa has rivers that are not easily navigable, hence the first contact of Africans with white people came on the coast." Disease also played a part in isolating the 'dark continent' as most European contact was through traders passing through.

The African tribes who were originally in the south of Africa are not there today, the speaker explained. "The people who were there, the Hottentots and the Bantus, have disappeared, little is known about them. The present Africans come from Ethiopia."

They are a nomadic people who measure wealth in women and cattle. "And these are interchangeable," said Mr. Mortifee. "Having four daughters I would be wealthy there!"

LITTLE CHANGE

"In four thousand years their mode of life had hardly changed. They had no written language and little building. Nature kept the numbers down. Medicine didn't exist in Africa. There was a limited number of human beings who in time of wealth increased and in time of trouble almost died out.

"They were a warring people and fought for wives and cattle. That is why there is widespread polygamy. The males were killed off making a surplus of females."

The early European advent was not for conquest but for trade said Mr. Mortifee. The traders were raided and appealed to their home governments for aid.

The African tribe is based on families. "The chieftain has life and death authority over the tribe and he is a fighter, a dictator. None can be an orphan short of his whole tribe being wiped out and he being left alone on the veldt," the speaker said, explaining that each person belonged to the chief figure in his family unit.'

"The only group of permanent settlers, the Boers arrived in South Africa before the present day African in 1652," said Mr. Mortifee. "The present day negro wasn't in the area for another hundred years. He was still travelling down the continent looking for pastures.

"The African reaction is devoid of color prejudice," the speaker said.

"The African had always been subject to dictatorship. The idea of the white man as a different type of dictator didn't enter his head.

"The emergent countries in Africa are only geographical areas, not nations . . . not homogeneous groups. When the Africans were suddenly told they should have countries they were bewildered. They went back to the tribal groups which had never died." Mr. Mortifee said.

South Africa is the only African nation with a really strong industrial life, said the speaker, and this has resulted in an unhappy situation.

"Except for the few that have gone overseas, this is the only real contact the Africans have had with the 20th century."

Mr. Mortifee feels the Africans have the ability to adapt, but up to now they have pulled the European into their outlook.

Mrs. H. H. Youson introduced the speaker, and he was thanked by Mrs. Fred. M. Corbett.

Labor Saving Devices Secret of Success?

By PENNY SAVER

I have mentioned my friend Gladys several times in this column. She never ceases to amaze me. She has twin daughters who take ballet while she takes modern dancing (her exercise course proved effective but "dull after a while"). She sews constantly and makes all the family's clothes except for her husband's suits. She knits and has invented her own patterns. She cooks like a charm and keeps her house neat as a pin. I just don't know where she finds all the time! I asked her the other day and she let me in on at least part of her secret — labor saving devices.

She was joking of course, but only in part. "Some women are afraid to resort to modern technology in a pinch," she said. "Take the freezer as an example. Frozen and dried foods are somewhat sneered at by most of my friends, but they have eaten 'emergency rations' at my house many a time and then praised my cooking." At least part of Gladys' secret must be learning to take the credit.

Gladys' emergency rations consist in part of a fine line of frozen desserts. To prove her point she brought me a slice of German chocolate cake. The jummy cake came already iced with a caramel, pecan and almond icing that I could never re-create in my kitchen. "This cake is 89 cents and weighs 13½ ounces. It was frozen as soon as it came out of the oven," Gladys told me. "What more can I ask?"

Never Has to Push Panic Button

The more of course is that this cake hides in her freezer until she needs it. When out-of-town guests phone to say they will be along in an hour or two, Gladys can just pull out the goodies to thaw while she cleans house — no hectic mixing, baking and washing or running to the store to make sure there is something for them to eat.

Other delicious cakes in this line are a cream cheese cake at 69 cents, a chocolate cake ready iced for 89 cents, a plain pound cake for 89 cents and pineapple cheese cake for 98 cents. These cakes come in foil dishes that make them easy to pack away in the refrigerator if there is some left over.

Don't think that these items need to have the chill of the freezer still on them. I served my family a cherry Danish coffee cake the other night that was piping hot. I just warmed it according to directions in the oven. This tasty treat is 89 cents. I would also be inclined to warm the iced Danish cinnamon rolls I have hidden in the freezer. A nine-ounce package of these rolls is 79 cents. I wouldn't want to warm up the iced chocolate brownies I saw however. These tasty looking squares are studded with pecans. A package is 89 cents.

Please call me at 382-3131 if you would like to know where these time-saving treats may be found.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. What causes ridges on the nails and what can be done about them?

A. These can come from an injury, or poor nutrition may play a part. If these appear suddenly talk to your doctor about it. I do not know what you can do about these except cover them with nail polish.

Lowman

Q. I have very large veins in my hands. What kind of nail polish should I use?

A. Avoid any that have blue in them. The clear reds are best.

Q. What can I do about hair on my upper lip? It is very unfeminine.

A. Use one of the facial depilatories and follow directions carefully. Even better, have the hair removed by electrolysis.

Q. Do eyebrows become thinner as one grows older? Mine are much thinner than they were 10 years ago.

A. This is the tendency. However many women keep thick eyebrows all of their lives. Makeup will be a great help if applied subtly. The brush-on type of brows is especially effective.

Q. I feel sure that I will not have any hair left a few years hence if I wash it as often as I have to to have it look halfway decent. It is very oily. I must wash it at least two times a week. Three is better or it is so oily that it just practically drips oil. It looks okay for a couple of days after a shampoo and that is all. Tell me what to do.

A. It will not harm your hair to shampoo it two or three times a week if that is necessary. Use a mild soap. Also cut down on rich, fat, greasy foods. Massage your scalp once a day or every night. This may help normalize the little oil glands in your scalp.

Q. I want to pierce my ears for earrings and my mother will not let me do it. I think she is just old-fashioned. What do you think?

A. While many young people do this, without any resulting problems. I think your mother is right. I believe that it is safer to have your doctor do it.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Hubby's Hairpiece Causes Confusion

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I never cared much for wigs on men, but lately I have been changing my mind. Although my husband is only in his early forties, he's been bald for some time. Not only that, but his head comes to a decided point on top. Lately his head has taken on a "polished" look, which makes the point on top all the more conspicuous.

I am so tired of people asking me, "What happened to your husband's head?"

Wouldn't a wig be less conspicuous? If I say to get one, he says he'll get one.

Another question: If my husband does decide to get a wig, will he have to have new passport pictures taken in the wig? And where it says "Hair," should he put down "bald" or the color of the wig? Thank you kindly.

MRS. F. IN LAS VEGAS

DEAR MRS. F.: If your husband would be happier with a "wig," he should certainly get one. And since the hairpiece will change his appearance considerably, if he plans to wear it constantly, he should update his passport pictures. And where it says "hair" he should put down the color of his "wig." (P. S. I hope your husband doesn't "flip his wig" abroad or he may have trouble getting back in the country.)

DEAR ABBY: I have a rather well-to-do uncle who is in his late seventies now. About 12 years ago, this uncle asked me if I would be "executor" of his will. I told him I would and that was the end of the conversation. As such, I don't have the faintest idea what I am supposed to do. Should I write and ask him?

I don't want him to get the idea that I am waiting for him to die because I'm not, but shouldn't I know where to find his valuable papers and so on in case of his death? I didn't sign anything and am wondering if he has changed his mind and asked somebody else or what.

How should I go about getting this information?

UNINFORMED

DEAR UNINFORMED: If you don't have a lawyer, get one, and ask him to handle it for you.

CHRISTINE FOX

She Has Accepted Many Challenges

By ELIZABETH FORBES

At the end of this month, Christine Fox, well-known and well-respected assistant provincial librarian, retires.

She's been with the legislative library since 1941 and in that time has moved from the reference desk up to her present position.

Forbes

In the normal course of expansion she has seen increased use of the library by University of Victoria students and through the fact that the general public has become more aware of its good reference department.

She has watched microfilming come into use; increased ways of photo copying and the newer method of zeroxing accepted.

The time is not far off, she believes, when computers will be "a must" for indexing. And she adds that "in some ways" she is glad she will not be there when it happens. "I don't think I'd understand them."

Quietly and with little outward emotion, this dedicated woman looks ahead to the future. But ask her to glance back and tell you something of the years she has worked for this province and she becomes very reticent.

Much of that work has been confidential. Much has been in the straight line of duty. All of it was done with a never-lagging sense of loyalty and service.

One facet has been to see that new books and phamplets were acquired for the library. According to Mrs. Fox this simply meant going through all the catalogues that came to her desk and making an educated selection.

Delve deeper and you find it is much more than that. Price of books and the fact that hers is a small and specialized library make it imperative to buy carefully and always with an eye on that speciality.

Governmental papers of all kinds must be gathered. British sessional papers. Hansards, too. And when it is something of vital concern to the government (like the Columbia River, for instance) everything possible has to be acquired and kept ready for use.

Through her extraordinary memory and an ability to keep her cool, Christine Fox met such challenges easily. According to her colleagues, it was a rare occasion when she could not fulfil a request for reference material that came "on the run" from the floor of the House and often during the heat of debate.

A personal project that she has worked on diligently during any spare time she had in the library, is a detailed index of journals of the Legislative Assembly.

This is "an invaluable reference" I was told by her boss, provincial librarian and archivist, Willard Ireland.

Over the years, well-known journalists and authors have relied on her to delve into the backgrounds of their particular subjects and research historical data for them. Her extraordinary memory for events and people in this province made her "a natural" for such work.

Ask her, however, if she has any thought of writing a book herself, and she'll tell you she doesn't think so. There was a time when she had that dream but "never got at it." Now, she doesn't think she could settle down and concentrate on a book.

At the same time, she doesn't rule out the possibility that she will continue research work, if needed, and let others do the writing.

She also expects to catch up on her personal reading. Something that has "fallen behind" in recent years. "By the time I get home from work, I find I cannot concentrate on reading."

Eventually she and husband Les expect to travel a bit. And, of course, they will continue a shared love for "the ponies."

Evidence of the respect that Mrs. Fox has gained in the Legislative Buildings came at a luncheon given for her by Speaker Murray in the government dining room shortly before the House prorogued. Representatives from each of the political parties were there and a presentation of a Brian Travers-Smith painting was made on their behalf.

There is also Mr. Ireland's statement that major qualifications for a position in a legislative library are loyalty and a pronounced sense of service.

"You don't always find those traits in people," he told me, "but in Christine Fox they are very highly developed."

PERRAULT

Grit Leader Studies Bid Federally

Provincial Liberal Leader Ray Perrault Thursday said he has not made any decision yet to leave B.C. politics although he has had three specific requests from ridings to run federally since the June 25 election was called Tuesday. Mr. Perrault would not confirm that he is seriously considering the switch to the federal field although he added the words "at this time."

Asked about speculation that he might be named to the Trudeau cabinet during the campaign if he does throw his hat into the federal ring, Mr. Perrault would only say "no comment."

If Mr. Perrault decides to make the move, he would be following the footsteps of his predecessor Arthur Laing who stepped into federal politics from the provincial liberal leadership and became a cabinet minister.

Mr. Perrault, who has been B.C. leader since 1959, achieved some national prominence last year and this in his role as one of the sparkplubs behind the western Liberal conferences which have had an impact on the national party's stance.

He planned to support Mitchel Sharp as the new federal party leader but switched to Mr. Trudeau at the request of the former finance minister during this month's convention.

'PAYING LIP SERVICE', SAYS MAYOR LEE

B.C. Gov't Should Aid In Financing of Sewers

Central Saanich Mayor Gordon Lee said today the provincial government should join the federal government in the area of financing municipal sewage schemes.

"The provincial government has indicated it is giving top priority to the problem of pollution, but as yet is offering no assistance whatsoever," he said. "It's paying lip service to the pollution problem."

Of concern to the mayor is Central Saanich's proposed $1,500,000 sewage scheme designed to overcome a serious pollution problem at Brentwood Bay and in other growing urban areas.

The project awaits the approval of the regional district board, presently studying methods of financing and the technical aspects of the scheme.

CHIEF OBSTACLES

Municipal officials admit the chief obstacles towards implementing the project is the matter of financing — the question of borrowing money at reasonable interest rate.

The mayor said some assistance was available through Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation which provides loans for main sewer trunk lines and outfalls. The interest rate on loans averages out to approximately 6¼ per cent.

This would finance about 40 per cent of the sewage scheme. The remainder of the money would have to be raised on the open market at a higher interest rate.

The mayor felt the federal government through CMHC should make it still easier to borrow money to overcome pollution problems.

"But the provincial government should also help in financing sewage schemes," he added. "It should join the federal government in establishing a new program for financing such projects."

"At present it is disregarding the whole thing — doing absolutely nothing," he said.

Some technicians have suggested that Central Saanich reconsider the smaller Brentwood scheme instead of the present project to serve a large area of the municipality. It would be less costly and would serve as a temporary measure.

But the mayor and council are opposed to the Brentwood project on the grounds that its usefullness would be limited to a about 10 years.

"The proposed scheme with an outfall installed in waters on the east side of the municipality would be of service for all time," said the mayor.

He said even with today's high interest rates it would be more economical to go for the larger project.

"There is no indication that the interest rates will go down in the near future," he pointed out. "Costs for installing the project will also go up if we delay it much longer.

NEW APPROACH URGED

Garbage Dumps 'Health Hazard'

A group of Victoria women went on a garbage dump tour and didn't like what they saw.

A new approach to garbage disposal stressing health safety and salvage of economically useful waste is called for in a report issued Thursday by the Association of Women Electors.

The women minced no words on conditions at garbage dumps in the area.

Two Millstream Road dumps —Rant's and Scafe Road—were described as hazards to the environment and potential health hazards to people.

The Hartland Road dump used by Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, the navy base and Sidney "belongs .... to the middle of the 19th century."

At the Millstream dumps, serving Saanich, the unorganized areas and B.C. Forest Products, "air pollution caused by burning is extremely high, the odor profoundly obnoxious.

"Additionally, the rats and flies engendered by open garbage pits can—and may very well with increasing population density—cause epidemics of typhus, tapeworm, typhoid, bacillary and amoebic dysentery, diarrhea and cholera."

The report described the Victoria dump as "reasonably well controlled" but a cause of air pollution.

The system of burning garbage, turning it over by tractors to salvage metal and later filling it in is badly out of date, the report said.

The report was prepared by the association's standing committee on pollution.

It will be forwarded to the chairman and members of the regional district board.

SEWERS NEXT

A second report on sewers is expected from the association next week, a spokesman said.

"The Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health recommended measures to alleviate the pollution caused by present methods of disposal in 1966.

"Since then no action has been initiated by any of the municipalities concerned," the report said.

It asks urgent consideration of better disposal methods including:

- The activated composting method which eliminates air pollution, the problem of seagulls distributing refuse and of rats and flies distributing disease; and which is capable of utilizing sewage sludge and returning organic material, in the form of top-dressing, to the soil.
- The sanitary land filling system, which could be adopted if the first method proves too costly, and which allows only one dumping area to be used at one time. This system does away with air pollution and allows some control of the gull, rat and fly problems and allows land to be reclaimed more quickly.
- Underground incineration at controlled temperatures, which should be studied as a possible solution "to the growing problem of automobile junkyards."

The composting method is used in some U.S. centres, the report says. Material left after bacterial processes can be used in many ways.

The composting process breaks down rubbish by bacterial action, "is not terribly expensive and can be a fairly clean, odorless process," an appendix to the report states.

WICKETT

'Idealism Clouded'

Youth Seeks Dedicated Service

Young people today are looking for some kind of dedicated service, says Garry Wickett, leader of the Inter-School Christian Fellowship on Vancouver Island.

"Youth is inherently idealistic but very often this idealism is clouded by the materialistic spirit of the age. They may affect a kind of cynicism but, underneath, they are looking for something worth serving."

Young Mr. Wickett has a background worthy of the job he is trying to do. He returned here recently after two years' service as a qualified social worker in India with CUSO (Canadian Universities Service Overseas).

He was accompanied by his wife, Adele, a graduate in nursing at the University of British Columbia.

"It was a tremendous experience," Mr. Wickett said, "an experience in human relations. We gained a new perspective of the difference between the haves and the have-nots.

"My wife taught nursing students. I used my training as a social service worker among the students and the patients."

Mr. and Mrs. Wickett worked at Mysore, South India, and found that about one in every 15 of the native inhabitants were suffering from tuberculosis.

"This was the result of malnutrition and poor sanitation," Mr. Wickett said. "Many wanted to leave hospital too soon and returned a while later with a recurrence of TB."

'DO UNTO OTHERS'

"CUSO," he said, "is the most tangible expression of youth service in Canada today. It is matched by the Peace Corps in the United States, and both are working towards a practical expression of the Christian ethic—Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

Mr. Wickett is promoting this idea among the 30 Inter-School Christian Fellowships which have been formed among the junior and senior secondary schools of Vancouver Island.

Their motto is: "Know Christ and make Him Known."

HOME GARDEN

Only Difference Is Quantity

By JACK BEASTAL

Home gardeners often ask whether a dwarfed apple or pear tree is better than a standard tree, or vice versa.

Such a question implies doubt as to whether a dwarfing rootstock has a good or had effect on the fruit the tree will produce.

Jack

The only difference will be the quantity of fruit the tree will be able to carry, the dwarfed tree being considerably smaller at maturity than its standard counterpart.

Quality is a factor determined by the fertility of the soil, its moisture retaining ability, and the amount of air and sunlight that reaches each fruit.

It also depends on the number of leaves the tree is bearing, since a leaf is the factory that converts soil nutrients and gases from the air into foods for growth and seed production, the conversion taking place in full sunlight.

The number of square inches of leaf surface necessary to produce one top quality apple or pear has been determined, although the figure is of little consequence since the average gardener is not going to measure and count the leaves on his tree.

But this fact does indicate that the more leaves and less fruits there are on a tree, the better the quality of each fruit. Reducing the number of fruits by "thinning" after the June drop is the gardener's way of improving quality.

Whether to buy a dwarfed or a standard tree is decided by the space available, the number of trees necessary (some must have pollinators) and what else the gardener wishes to grow in his limited space.

The better of the two will be the tree that best suits the existing conditions.

Surgery Should Be Avoided

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

What is a hiatus hernia? Hiatus refers to a hole in the diaphram—the partition between the chest and the abdomen. Down through this hole goes the gullet, to make connections with the stomach. Hernia means a rupture.

Alvarez

During the years from 1912 to 1950, we doctors saw with the Xray thousands of people who on straining, could push up a little of their stomach through an oversized hiatus into their chest. Most of them had no symptoms, or no symptoms that could definitely be attributed to the little hernia. These persons, of course, were not operated on.

Then, some 20 years ago, many surgeons became convinced most of the hernias should be operated on, and then, after 15 years or so, judging from the fact that the mass of letters I used to receive on this subject quit coming, I concluded the surgeons had become satisfied that only an occasional one of these people really needs the operation, and hence they are now operating on only a few.

But here today comes a letter typical of those received around 1950. It is from a man of 70 who says that when an Xray man found he had a hiatus hernia, his doctor told him, "Forget it—it isn't bothering you." But as happens with so many people who cannot tolerate the thought something is wrong inside of them, he remained uneasy, and soon he went to see a surgeon. The surgeon said, "Sure, you had better have it fixed." But not quite satisfied, the man went to another surgeon who said, "No, it isn't producing enough trouble to warrant my performing a big and dangerous operation."

Another doctor said, "Yes, you have a little trouble swallowing; that could be due to the hernia, and so perhaps we had better operate." Now the man, puzzled, writes asking me to clarify what I have said in this column several times before—namely, that I would not think of having such an operation unless I had a good deal of distress in my lower chest or upper abdomen; or much trouble in swallowing which I was sure was being caused by a hiatus hernia.

As I will say here again, I am old enough to remember how several times in the last half century able surgeons found some abnormality in many of their patients, and promptly started operating on thousands of them—to repair the "defect." I can remember when around 1916, fine able surgeons were operating every day to raise "dropped stomachs." Then I stirred up a professor friend of mine at the University of California to X-ray hundreds of the school's best athletes, and when he found that two in three had a "dropped stomach" — really just a long stomach—the surgeons quit treating this "disease."

Similarly, for many years it was very fashionable to have one's appendix removed, and millions of patients were operated on for chronic appendices, many of which showed no disease when examined under the microscope. Today in the finest hospitals, after a surgeon has been warned not to operate for "chronic appendicitis," if he continues, he is denied the privileges of the operating room floor. One of my friends who did not heed this warning when he received it, had to give up a big practice and leave town. As I must keep saying, many nervous or mentally disturbed persons almost demand an operation, trusting that this would cure them in a week.

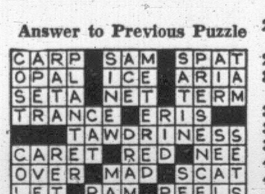
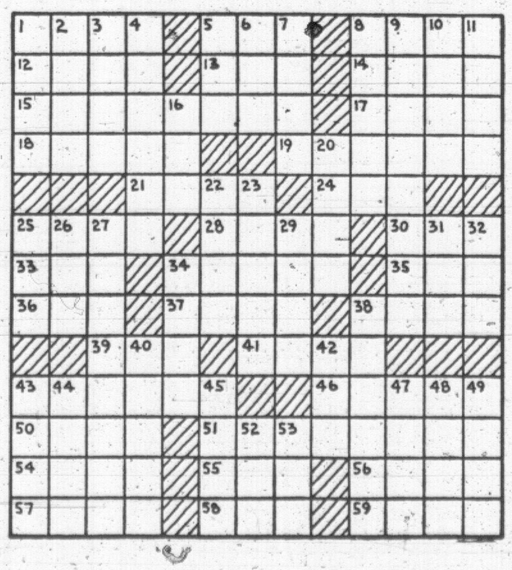
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Average time of solution: 24 minutes.



ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Scott Radell, age 9, of Richmond, Virginia, for his question:

What exactly is propane?

Propane can help cook your dinner or keep you dry in the rain. It can help to clean your paint brushes or to put you painlessly to sleep while the doctor takes out your tonsils. Propane works with other substances to do dozens of other workaday jobs. Yet we never see it.

People who live way out in the country often used bottled gas. The pipelines that carry cooking gas to cities and towns do not reach their homes. So they use this bottled gas instead. It comes in a heavy tank with a valve to connect it to the gas pipes in the house. Inside the tank, this fuel is a liquid. It turns into invisible gas just as soon as it can escape, bit by bit, through that valve. Bottled gas may be sold as LPG—liquid petroleum gases. Most of it is a mixture of propane and butane gases. Sometimes it is mostly butane and sometimes it is mostly propane.

Propane and butane are brother chemicals. At ordinary everyday temperatures they are both invisible gases. You cannot see them. Both of them are fuel gases, eager to burn and give off lots of heat. And both propane and butane are related to petroleum. This is that precious oil from which we get gasoline and thousands of other everyday items. It is a mixture of many chemicals called hydrocarbons. All hydrocarbons are molecule packages made from atoms of hydrogen and carbon. The hydrocarbons in petroleum were created in the bosom of the earth from the buried remains of little creatures that once lived in the seas.

The earth can make large or small molecules from hydrogen and carbon. One of the smallest is methane or marsh gas. Each of its molecules is a package of four hydrogen atoms and one carbon atom. The propane molecule has three carbon and eight hydrogen atoms. Butane is made of molecules that have four carbon and ten hydrogen atoms. These three hydrocarbons are lightweight gases. They tend to float to the top of petroleum and escape into the air. When trapped and sealed below ground, they rise and form pockets of natural gas sitting on top of the oil.

Used for Plastics

Some of the propane in the light mixture is piped off with this natural gas. But we cannot afford to burn up all of it as a fuel. Lots of propane is needed to perform dozens of useful chores behind the scenes of industry. It performs most of these duties with the help of butane and ethane and often other light hydrocarbons from petroleum. Propane is one of the invisible ingredients needed [illegible] make acetone for removing [illegible]nt and to make antifreeze for [illegible]utos. It also helps to supply hospitals with ether and chloroform and to make certain inks. Propane also is used to make dozens of up-to-the-minute plastics. It is used to make the vinyl on the kitchen floor and in your plastic raincoat.

In the past, most of our precious propane was burned as fuel gas. It is easy to chill it to its liquid state and ship it around sealed in sturdy metal bottles. Then our clever chemists began discovering new recipes for making more and more fascinating 20th Century plastics. They found many of their ingredients among the hydrocarbon chemicals. And one of the most useful plastic-making ingredients is propane.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Bruce Olson, age 13, of Selma, Alabama, for his question:

How did the Mississippi River get its name?

People of other countries often boggle at the name of our Big River. But we North Americans are used to it. We like the sound of it and our history is woven with magnificent memories about it. But once in a while, even we wonder about the big word Mississippi. It does not seem to be related to the other words of our native language. And this is true. The settlers from the Old World borrowed the name Mississippi from the Ojibway American Indians. In their language, "misi" meant "big" and their word for "river" was "sipi." You must agree that Mississippi was the very best name in the world we could have chosen for our Big River.

In early days, the numerous Ojibways roamed throughout eastern United States and around the Great Lakes. They were related to the Algonquins and their tribe was the largest in North America. They were skilled at hunting and trapping, building canoes and weaving mats. The poetic legends of the Ojibways inspired Longfellow to write the story of Hiawatha.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Indiscretion at the bridge table should be punished, but once in awhile it turns out to be highly profitable. Board eight of the nationwide charity game is a case in point.

Opening lead—♠ 4

East's one spade overcall is a good example of indiscretion. With five high card points and a rather poor suit, East should pass quietly and let his opponents bid along.

Left to themselves, North and South would play the hand somewhere in hearts—possibly in game, more probably at two or three. West would probably open the five of clubs and South would make 10 tricks.

The bidding in the box is what took place when one East player did stick in a spade overcall. South was crowded into a two heart bid and from then on there was no stopping below game.

East won the spade opening with his jack and went over all possibilities. He didn't think much of his chance to defeat the contract. It was apparent from the bidding that South held more than five hearts. Then South saw one chance that might defeat the contract or at least prevent an overtrick. It depended on finding his partner with the king and one heart.

East led his 10 of diamonds! South won with dummy's queen and saw the danger of a diamond ruff. He did the best he could to stop it by playing ace and one heart but that did him no good. West took his king of hearts and led the king of diamonds. East ruffed dummy's ace and West waited for the setting trick with his jack of diamonds.

Crime at the bridge table had paid once more.

"CYCLE" Magazine road-tested the 350 Honda. . . . THIS is what they had to say:
—Probably the most technically advanced motorcycle built to date.
—The 350 engine (racing mills excepted,) is the most sophisticated power plant that has been produced to date.
—A lower end that a Chrysler Hemi would be proud of.
—The 350s are among the smoothest four stroke motorcycles we have tested.
—Cornered with razor sharp precision regardless of the angle at which they were heeled over.
—They've got plenty of punch and are easily capable of cruising speeds in the 80-85 m.p.h. range.
—Everywhere you look, mechanical perfection. The 350s are without flaw.

Board to Take Another Look At Holiday Rule

The Board of Industrial Relations will reconsider last year's statutory holiday regulation in British Columbia.

It will hold a hearing Tuesday May 28 at the Hotel Georgia in Vancouver. Any person or group may attend or submit written opinions.

A spokesman for the board said restaurants complained of the new regulation and representations were also made by service station operators.

The board decided to allow submissions for and against a change in the regulation, he said.

Most restaurants in the Victoria area closed last Labour Day saying it was uneconomic to remain open under the new regulation which came into effect Aug. 1.

The regulation provides eight paid holidays a year, except for employees covered by collective union agreements.

Under the regulation, employers must give their employees:

- A holiday with pay;
- Where the employee works, time and one-half plus a holiday with pay later.

The eight holidays are New Year's Day, Good Friday, Victoria Day, Dominion Day, Labour Day, Thanksgiving Day, Remberance Day and Christmas Day.

ROUND of desk-thumping greeted Liberal Eric Kierans when he returned to the Quebec legislature Thursday. It was his first time in the legislature since his unsuccessful whirl in the Grit leadership race. He was noncommittal on his future plans.

'I'll Never Wash My Lips'

TORONTO (CP) — Linda Cooper, 17, says Pierre Elliott Trudeau kisses better than boys she knows but Janice Cohan, 16, who got only his autograph, says the prime minister can't write.

The Toronto girls returned from Ottawa Tuesday night after meeting Mr. Trudeau on Parliament Hill.

His kisses are "just great — that's all, just great," said Linda.

"I just asked him ~~if he'd~~ kiss me, so he opened the car window and did. He kisses . . . better than boys. I'll never wash my lips."

Linda said she would join the Young Liberals to work for Mr. Trudeau.

Janice didn't get kissed but she shook Mr. Trudeeau's hand and got his autograph.

"See that!" she said, waving a piece of paper in a reporter's face and pointing to a scrawl. "That's his name."

Small Crabs Bring Fines

NANAIMO — Ronald Leigh, Leonard Chevrier, Colin Arsenault and Allan Williams, all of Nanaimo, were fined $20 each Wednesday in magistrate's court here for being in possession of crabs under 6.5 inches across the back.

Such crabs are often females and are protected as a conservation measure.

Chinese Requisite For Job in Galley

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ability to speak Chinese is a prime prerequisite for working in the galleys of provincial government ferries, personnel manager A. T. McLaughlin said Thursday.

He said the reason for the qualification is that Chinese is the common language of the galleys and work goes smoother when employees know what everyone else is talking about.

The Chinese qualification came to light when a University of British Columbia student went to the manpower centre here looking for a summer job and learned the ferries wanted galley help.

The student later abandoned his plans of a summer afloat when he found he had to speak Chinese to earn $395 a month as a pantryman or $340 a month as a dishwasher.

A manpower centre spokesman said the qualification was set by the B.C. Ferry Authority but the service does not regard it as discrimination.

"If it had been that an applicant must be Chinese it would be discrimination," he said. "But it is for a man of any race who can speak Chinese —just as a vacancy for a typist might stipulate she had to type at a certain minimum speed."

HOBBY SHOW

Rink Area Glitters With Precious Stones

By ALAN WHITE

The lights of the Curling Rink shone down Thursday on counter upon counter laden with precious gemstones and jewelry made of burnished stone.

They also shone on a huge collection of rare and beautiful stamps, displays of polished wood carvings and carved and lacquered tree-stump furniture.

And these were just a few of the collections on display at the hobby show sponsored by the Victoria Lapidary and Mineral Society.

The show, open until 11 tonight and from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday, includes 50 carefully-designed displays.

Entering the door from Quadra Street, the visitor is faced by a table of cut and polished stone from all over the world.

Just inside the door stands a lamp made of a tree limb, with a shade cut from the stump of a dead tree. The work on the shade is so carefully and thinly done that the light shines through.

Craftsman C. H. Bacon said he spent long hours working on the one-piece shade, with a light behind it to show him when he was cutting too thin.

On the floor near the lamp sits a footstool made in the same fashion — out [illegible] tree stump.

The far west wall [illegible] the rink is taken up by a display of tropical fish. Here the Albino Clarias from Indochina was shovelling the gravel in his aquarium with his feathered nose Thursday.

Past the stature of a water maid pouring from a jug into a small pool, the Jack Dempsey fish was hiding his belligerent jaws under a large rock.

Towards the centre of the hall, hobbyists were working gold wire and polished stones such as jade into intricate jewelry.

Other displays showed work already done, and varieties of cut and polished stone, some for sale.

The walls abound with paintings and displays of weaving, woodcarving and petitpoint.

Other groups represented at the show include the World Ship Society, local astronomers, cave explorers, cyclist, archers, potterers and china painters, shortwave radio operators and leather workers.

Lawyers, Jurists Welcome New Member to Bench

Alan B. Macfarlane, former Liberal MLA for Oak Bay, was sworn in as Mr. Justice Macfarlane today and told he can expect to carry a heavy load.

The 43-year-old Victoria lawyer was sworn in and welcomed to the bench of the B.C. Supreme Court by Chief Justice J. O. Wilson before a standing-room-only legal gathering of about 120 at the Victoria Law Courts.

"I think we need young men on the bench," Chief Justice Wilson said. "Young men bring a viewpoint that older men might not have . . ."

Chief Justice H. W. Davey of the B.C. Court of Appeal said the case load of judges in this province is as heavy as in any Canadian province "and heavier than most."

"If we are to keep abreast of the load we require the presence of younger men."

Mr. Macfarlane, who was highly praised by six speakers at the half-hour ceremony in the court of appeal chamber, replied in a witty speech that he had received a telegram from a fellow judge who had an assize coming up "somewhere near the north pole."

The telegram said, "Wish you were here . . . You will be."

He said the title Mr. Justice Macfarlane still seemed properly to belong to his father, the former Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane, who attended the ceremony.

The new judge said he regrets having to leave Victoria and all his friends here but was looking forward to Vancouver.

He drew a laugh when he said the speed with which he had been appointed to the bench this week was such that the telegram he received from Ottawa said: "You have been appointed a judge of the Supreme Court of British Columbia. Stop. Please send us your full name."

Chief Justice Wilson, commenting on the youth of the new member, said that "in the natural course of events he will reach the age of 75 and retire in the year 2,000."

He said Mr. Justice Macfarlane had done "all the things that a good Canadian ought to" in his career and said it is fortunate good legal men can still be found who will "abandon more lucrative positions as leaders of the bar to come on the bench."

Also bringing praise and congratulations to the new judge were D. J. Lawson, QC, for the B.C. Law Society; Gerald Cross, QC, for the Canadian Bar Association; John C. Cowan, for the Victoria Bar Association, and Tony Sarich, for the Nanaimo County Bar Association.

On the bench for the ceremony besides the Chief Justices were Mr. Justice A. E. Branca, Mr. Justice R. A. B. Wootton, and Judge Montague Tyrwhitt-Drake.

Bruch Stands By Reunion Statement

The four-man federal Social Credit caucus and a national vice-president involved in the split between the Socreds and Real Caouette have joined to denounce national president Herb Bruch's efforts to effect a reconciliation.

But Mr. Bruch, a provincial MLA for Esquimalt, Thursday night ignored the attack and said he stood by his statements that the Socreds and Raillement des Creditistes may re-unite in a few days to field 200 candidates in the June 25 federal election.

National vice-president Orvis Kennedy, of Edmonton, said he was surprised by Mr. Bruch's statements.

Mr. Kennedy, who also is president of the Alberta Social Credit League, said a committee was established by the national council last year to discuss reunification.

But he added "no such union has been considered by the national council or, to my knowledge, by any of the provincial Social Credit leagues affiliated with the national association.

"As far as Alberta is concerned, the Alberta Social Credit League will not be part of any union brought about in such a manner."

In Ottawa, Socred caucus chairman Howard Johnston said the caucus chairman "regrets" Mr. Bruch's statements and added they were made without consultation or agreement of the party's federal executive or caucus.

"Under these circumstances, the members of caucus wish to dissociate themselves from this announcement," he announced.

Earlier, acting-leader Alex Patterson and ex-leader Robert Thompson both criticized Mr. Bruch from Ottawa.

CAUCUS IGNORED

Mr. Patterson said he had not heard from Mr. Caouette and Mr. Thompson accused Mr. Bruch of trying to go behind the back of the caucus to deal with the Creditistes.

"I don't want to get into a fight with Mr. Thompson," Mr. Bruch replied here.

"But I would say that I'm not dealing with the caucus but with the national council of the party.

"The caucus has been kept advised of our moves toward reconciliation. I still stand by my (Wednesday) statements."

Last week, Mr. Caouette expressed similar hopes of an early reconciliation and earlier this month he made a one-day sidetrip to Victoria during a brief "vacation" in B.C.

Well-known Victoria sailor and sports fisherman Commodore V.S. Godfrey died Thursday.

He was 69.

Commodore Godfrey suffered a heart attack while at Lake Cowichan and was taken by ambulance to Duncan. He was transferred to Victoria and died in St. Joseph's Hospital emergency ward at 5 p.m.

Commodore Godfrey was born in London, England. He came to Canada as a child and was attending Ashbury College, Ottawa when his application for entry as a cadet at the Royal Naval College of Canada, Halifax was accepted in January, 1913.

He served during the First World War in surface ships and submarines of the Royal Navy. In December, 1941, Commodore Godrey was appointed to command the auxiliary cruiser HMCS Prince David in both the Pacific and Atlantic.

Later he commanded the infrantry landing ship HMCS Prince Henry which helped carry the first wave of Canadian troops to France on D-Day.

He was civil defence coordinator in Victoria for five years after retiring in 1957.

Bungling Burglar Slept on Job After Foot Cut

A Summerland man who broke into a Government Street insurance firm and fell asleep Thursday night pleaded guilty in central court today to breaking and entering with intent to commit theft.

Police said they found 21-year-old Walter Lock in a rear office of the firm. A foot patrol constable had found the door of the premises kicked in, about 4:40 a.m.

CUT FOOT

Lock was seated in a chair asleep. He had cut his foot when he kicked in the door and a large pool of blood was on the floor, police said.

He required five stitches to close the wound.

Police said Lock had been drinking and showed a reading of 12 per cent on a breathalyser test at 6:15.

"I can't imagine a more inexpert burglar," Magistrate William Ostler said. "He cut himself getting in and fell asleep."

Lock was remanded to May 3 for sentencing.

Field Trip

The intermediate section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Douglas and Hillside for a field trip to Cloak Hill off Lands End Road, North Saanich.

There will be conducted trail tours at Francis Park during Sunday commencing at 10:30 a.m.

Guards Stop Mayor

BERLIN (Reuters) — East German border guards today denied West Berlin's governing mayor, Klaus Schuetz, the right to travel on the road from West Germany. West Berlin officials and the three western allies here immediately went into consultations on the incident.

HE WAS TOLD TO SHOOT AT 'HEAD'

DORCHESTER, England (UPI) — Cpl. Ronald Heath took aim at the army rifle range, fired and shot his commanding officer through the head, killing him, an inquest was told Thursday.

At the inquest, a verdict of accidental death was given for Capt. Michael Kelly, 37. The troops were told to fire at a moving target in the shape of a man's head which popped up intermittently.

Lt. Howard Lowndes testified that Kelly had raised his head above the firing revetment to see if the troops were ready, when he was shot.

LOFFMARK, BLACK SHIFTED

Skillings Appointed To Cabinet

Premier Emotional At Ceremony

SKILLINGS

. . . health

With lips quivering and blinking back tears, Premier Bennett Thursday afternoon watched his personal friend and bridge partner, Waldo Skillings, of Victoria, take the oath as the province's new minister of industrial development, trade and commerce.

It was part of a provincial cabinet shuffle involving three ministers.

Ralph Loffmark was moved from the trade and industry assignment and sworn in as minister of health and hospital insurance.

He replaces Wesley Black who took over the highways department portfolio which Mr. Bennett held himself since March 21 when Phil Gaglardi resigned the post to become a minister without portfolio.

After the brief ceremony in Government House, Mr. Bennett told reporters he will make more cabinet changes after a "little general election" later this year.

He said he expects "two, three or four more" MLAs to follow Randolph Harding (NDP — Revelstoke-Slocan) into the June 25 federal election race.

Added to the vacancy created by Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane's elevation to the bench this week, the openings would mean there "will be a number of by-elections this summer, the premier said.

He would not identify which month the votes would be held but said he intended to make further cabinet changes after they are over.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, in Nanaimo, commented that Mr. Bennett must know who the potential new dropouts will be and suggested they will be Esquimalt Socred MLA and national president Herb Bruch and Mr. Gaglardi.

Commenting on the cabinet shuffle, he said it represented no change because "Mr. Skillings has been an ex-officio member of cabinet for some time as a close personal friend of the premier."

Liberal Leader Ray Perrault, in Vancouver, said he hoped the further changes this summer would at least introduce new blood into the cabinet and added that the biggest question is whether Mr. Loffmark will bring needed improvements in the health field.

Highlight of the swearing-in conducted by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, was the surprise appointment of Mr. Skillings.

The 61-year-old Socred whip's appointment makes him the 16th minister in the cabinet and the second from Victoria. The cabinet is now the largest in B.C.'s history.

He has been a running mate of Public Works Minister W. N. Chant in Victoria in 1960, 1963 and 1966.

Mr. Bennett beamed when the other two men took the oaths of their new offices but he almost shed tears as Mr. Skillings was sworn in.

Almost aggressively, he defended the latter's appointment when talking to reporters.

"Mr. Skilling is a man of great experience on municipal governments, on school boards, in business and he's been elected (MLA) three times," he said.

"Perhaps because he's a close friend of mine he's been held back," the premier added. "He

U.S. Explodes Big H-Bomb Under Desert

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — An experimental hydrogen bomb, most powerful tested in the United States, exploded under a desert mesa today and sent shock waves rolling for hundreds of miles.

There were no reports of damage or vented radiation from the underground blast, despite more than a week of protests from scientists and others that the shot was potentially dangerous.

The shot, delayed an hour until 10 a.m. EST due to fears that if there were radiation leaks wind might carry contaminants off the test site, was felt lightly if at all in major cities of the West.

In Las Vegas tall buildings swayed, as in an earthquake. Chandeliers in a hotel swung. Motion was clocked for 90 sec-

POSTAL UNIONS WANT BOARD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Council of Postal Unions has made formal application to the public service staff relations board for establishment of a conciliation board.

A board spokesman confirmed in an interview today that the council—representing about 22,000 union members—applied for conciliation late Thursday afternoon.

'Stop Or Risk War'

Times News Services

Sharp fighting broke out today between Israeli and Jordanian troops across the Jordan River. Israeli Defence Minister Gen. Moshe Dayan warned Jordan his country would carry the war to Jordanian territory to settle the matter once and for all if Arab guerrilla attacks continued.

It was the sharpest Israeli warning since the June war ended with an uneasy cease-fire broken frequently by Israeli-Egyptian clashes along the Suez canal and in recent days by tank, mortar and machinegun duels across the Jordan River. There were 10 such clashes this week.

USED TANKS

(Jordanian military spokesmen said the Israelis opened fire with medium machineguns on Jordanian positions south of the Sea of Galilee and that Israeli tanks then rumbled onto the scene and the machinegun and mortar barrages began again.)

Previous Israeli warnings have been followed by massive Israeli retalitory attacks. Today Dayan said if the Arab guerrilla attacks continue in the Jordan and Beisan Valleys Jordan will "have to pay the price" and the Jordan Valley will become a battlefield.

The latest guerrilla attacks came Thursday night and Israel reported its forces killed six Arabs in a fight north of Elath at the southern end of the country. A spokesman said the fight broke out near Beer-ora, 30 miles north of Elath.

TALKS BATTLE

Meanwhile, President Nasser called upon Egyptians to mobilize for decisive battle against Israel to erase and avenge the defeats of last summer.

He declared Egypt will not negotiate with Israel for a solution of the Middle East crisis as Israelis have been demanding.

He said this would be tantamount to surrender to Israeli ambitions for an eventual empire stretching from the Euphrates to the Nile.

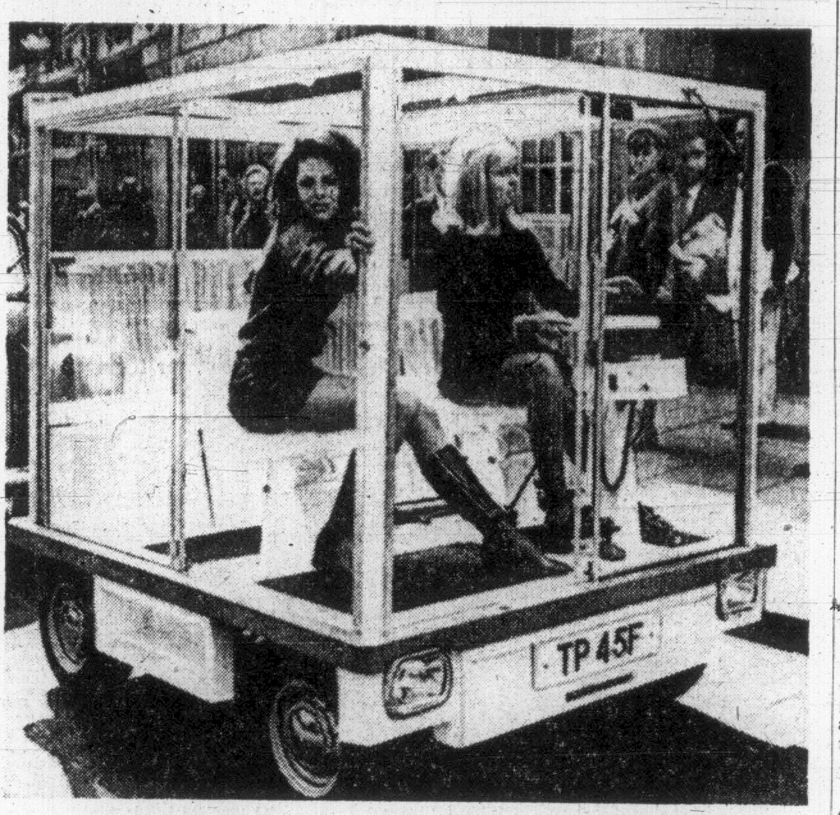
Nasser several times asserted that the United States has been giving Israel full support with armaments, funds and diplomatic backing within the United Nations.

He drew applause when he paid tribute to political and military assistance Egypt has received and is receiving from the Soviet Union.

Byrne Not Running

CRANBROOK (CP) — James A. Byrne, 57, Liberal member of Parliament for Kootenay East, announced today he will not be a candidate in the June 25 federal election because of ill health.

U.K. Race Protest Spreads As More Dockers on Strike



—AP Wirephoto

EYEBROWS were raised on streets of London when this glass car was given demonstration. It can turn in six-foot parking space. It will carry six and travel at 50 mph using four-speed automatic drive.

Take Petition To Parliament

LONDON (AP) — Thousands of London dockers went on strike today and started a march on Parliament in Britain's growing racial storm.

Strikers shouted down a Roman Catholic priest and an Anglican clergyman who were introduced by a Communist union leader in an attempt to persuade them to go back to work. Scores of ships were left idle.

At Tilbury, the port's deepwater section handling liners for the Far East and Australasia, only 65 men reported for work out of the usual 2,000. All work stopped on 12 liners.

Up river at the Royal Group, a dock gate meeting of 2,000 voted to quit work and started assembling at Tower Hill for the march on Westminster.

POWELL SUPPORTERS

Only three men voted against the strike resolution, which affirmed dockers' support for last weekend's speech of Enoch Powell demanding a ban on colored immigration. Powell's speech earned him immediate dismissal from the inner councils of the Opposition Conservative party.

The strikers said they would take to Parliament a petition signed by 3,000 dockers and ships' crew demanding an immediate immigration ban and protesting the government's Race Relations Bill.

This bill, which won approval in principle in the Commons Tuesday, extends to housing and employment a previous act's bar on discrimination in public places such as theatres and restaurants.

Any individual who claims he has been tied down for a job or as a tenant or house buyer because of color will be able to take his complaint to a tribunal and seek damages.

PRIVILEGED MINORITY

Opponents of the bill charge that it makes colored immigrants a privileged minority and that the previous act's penalties against incitement conflict with traditional freedom of speech.

When the marchers arrived at the House of Commons they were split into groups and allowed to enter the House 30 at a time to talk to MPs.

Marchers waiting outside chanted "Keep Britain white" and sang Bye-Bye Blackbird.

Down in the East End dockland striking longshoremen crowded into cafes and pubs.

Outside the Surrey commercial dock, longshoreman Harry Butler sat back, mouthed a few obscenities about colored immigrants and said he was out in support of "Knocker."

"Knocker" is the dockland nickname for Powell.

"Mind you," Butler confessed, "I'm not quite keen enough to go tramping half way across London.

"But Knocker has only said

B.C. Gets Another Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Jack Davis, 51-year-old Vancouver engineer-economist and Liberal MP for Coast-Capilano, today was appointed to the federal cabinet as minister without portfolio.

His special duties are to be announced "in the near future."

Mr. Davis' name has been mentioned recurrently in speculation about cabinet appointments since he first entered the Commons in 1962.

But his promotion today was regarded as a response to criticism of the makeup of Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet list announced last Saturday when he took office.

The so-called "caretaker" cabinet included only one member from British Columbia "Indian Affairs Minister Laing—and only one other from west of Ontario—Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet.

Prime Minister Trudeau attended the swearing-in ceremony at noon today at Government House.

Mr. Davis is the seventh minister without portfolio in the cabinet. Six ministers hold double portfolios.

MOST FROM QUEBEC

Eleven of the 25-member cabinet are from Quebec, eight from Ontario, two from British Columbia and one each from Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Manitoba.

Thirteen of the 23 portfolios are held by Quebec ministers. The eight Ontario ministers have six portfolios among them.

NEAR TAHSIS

Five-Mile Oil Slick Along West Coast

TAHSIS (CP) — A five-mile long slick of heavy bunker oil has spewed from the tanks of a Dutch freighter which sank near this community Jan. 4.

D. L. Abernethy, manager of Tahsis Company mill here, said Thursday the oil stretches from Bligh Island, where the freighter grounded and sank on a reef, to Gore Island in Zuciarte channel.

He said the 7,594-ton freighter Schiedyk slipped off its perch on the reef and went down in about 600 feet of water.

The oil slick "appears to be breaking up in some coves but the little bays on Bligh Island are thick with the oil.

"The ship had been visible from the air at low tide with the keel showing above water," he said. "now there is nothing showing of the ship."

There was no immediate report on the effect on birds and wildlife.

J. V. Christensen, president of Tahsis Company, said most of the oil had been removed from the hulk except an unknown amount in an inaccessible part of the ship.

Mr. Abernethy said two tugs were attempting to sweep the oil out to sea while another two vessels are spreading emulsifier on it to combat pollution.

W. R. Hourston, director of the federal fisheries department's Pacific region, said a department boat is in the area to keep track of the oil.

"We are not happy about the situation but there does not seem much that we can do now," he said.

Mr. Abernethy said a raft of logs from Gold River to the Tahsis Mill had to be turned back because the oil would have made them useless for pulp.

The mill has enough logs stockpiled to keep it operating for some time.

Guns Found Aboard Junk

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese police today ordered all boats and vehicles entering Saigon searched for arms and explosives after thwarting a Viet Cong attempt to smuggle guns into the capital on a river junk.

American infantry, meanwhile, fought a series of small battles Thursday around Saigon. U.S. B-52 bombers pounded North Vietnamese positions in the A Shau Valley, in the northern part of the country, again and again.

Help Stragglers

MANILA (UPI) — Red Cross workers today called for gas masks to help evacuate stragglers threatened by fierce volcanic eruptions from Mount Mayon. Some 30,000 families already have been moved from 35 villages in the volcano's danger zone but some had not left. The masks were needed for protection from the thick smoke and fine ash in the air.

APPOINTMENT of George W. Ball, left, as United States ambassador to the United Nations was announced Thursday by President Johnson. Ball, 58, succeeds Arthur Goldberg, who is resigning to return to private life. Goldberg denied that policy differences were behind his quitting. Ball is known as a moderate on Vietnam. MISS BLODGETT SUPPORTED IN BULGE 'IMAGE' BATTLE

LARKSPUR, Calif. (AP) — Elizabeth R. Blodgett, 41-year-old physical education teacher, prepared to battle for her job today as students and friends rallied to her "overweight" cause.

Miss Blodgett weighs in at 220 pounds and her high school principal, Donald Kreps, contends she must be dismissed because she doesn't "fit the image" for her line of work.

Miss Blodgett has been an instructor at Redwood high school for 12 years and she has retained a lawyer for a hearing next Monday at which an effort will be made to end her tenure.

Standing five feet, seven inches, Miss Blodgett—who holds a master's degree in physical education from San Francisco State College—weighed 170 pounds when she joined the faculty.

Then her weight increased, topped 253 last January when she visited a doctor who, she said, found a thyroid condition.

Since then, Miss Blodgett said, she's been shedding two pounds a week.

Support for Miss Blodgett has come from 89 girls who signed a petition in her behalf, and a number of parents who have had glowing words of praise.

DECIMAL SYSTEM GOING TO SEA TOO

Royal Navy Drops Fathoms From Its Charts

LONDON (AP) — The Royal Navy decided today to abolish the fathom.

The admiralty concluded the world is in the decimal age. The next deep-sea charts it issues will give the oceans' depths in metres instead of fathoms.

It's seemingly part of Britain's shift to decimals, including coinage, by 1971. The first decimal pennies appeared this week as a sort of trial for more than 50,000,000 people who have been counting in sixpences, shillings, half crowns and crowns for ever so long.

The navy planners also believe they'll sell a lot more charts in metres than in fathoms. Last year, the Admiralty sold nearly 2,000,000 charts—in fathoms.

The fathom goes back to ancient Greece, where it represented the distance between the hands of a man standing with his arms outstretched. That came down finally to an even six feet, which now makes the fathom 1.8288 metres.

The shift to metres means work for manufacturers of depth sounding equipment. It also involves drills between the man calling the depths and the man at the chart to make certain they're using the same unit. Or else there'll be the horrid screech of steel on rock.

Small coastal vessels always have used feet and inches rather than fathoms in order to be more accurate, so charts for them will continue as of old.

By 11 a.m. almost 1,000,000 shares had changed hands.

Oils and industrials were up but mining issues showed some losses.

Neon in the industrials jumped .87 to $22.37 from Thursday's close. White Pass gained $1.62 to $34.50.

Among the oils Sunlite was up .25 at $3.15. Peace River edged up .01 to 33 cents.

In mining action, TC Exploration dropped .02 at $2.32 on a turnover of 65,000 shares, the largest of the day. Torwest added .02 to .50 Alwin was up .05 to $1.60, Lytton jumped .13 to $1.93.

AT TORONTO—In industrials, Hudson's Bay Mining rose 2¾ to 57¼, White Pass and Yukon Corp. 1¾ to 34¾ and Nachurs Intl. 1½ to 21½. Fruehauf Trailer dropper 1¼ to 14.

Pine Point Mines was up 2 to 42½ and Dome 2 to 64½.

Among oils, Scurry-Rainbow jumped 2 to 23 and Dome Pete 1 to 59¾.

Final volume was 3,401,000 shares compared with 3,278,000 Thursday.

AT NEW YORK a mood of hesitancy due in large part to lack of concrete developments on the Vietnam peace talks enfolded the market.

McDonnell-Douglas paced the list on volume, showing a 1-point loss as profits were taken on its strength generated by United Air Lines choosing it to build the huge air bus passenger planes.

Prices were generally higher on the American Stock Exchange.

AT MONTREAL prices weakened in moderately active trading today.

Among industrials, Southam Press retreated 1½ to 43, Oshawa A and Velcro ¾ each to 32 and 54¼ and CPR ⅜ to 52. Canadian Tire A advanced one point to 41 on only 25 shares.

Hudson Bay Mining bucked the downtrend and climbed two points to 57, Calgary Power 1¾ to 23½ and Union Oil one point to 49.

Price changes in senior mines, oils and utilities were mainly fractional but generally lower in light trading. In papers, B.C. Forest edged up ¾ to 15 and Fraser ½ to 16¾.

AT LONDON industrials encountered some profit-taking today, but numerous stocks made further progress.

Dollar stocks improved. The dollar premium edged higher. Inco, Imperial Oil, Central del Rio, Consolidated Paper and Cominco did well in Canadians. Hudson's Bay Oil, however, was dull.

Encouraged by American buying, and by today's peak gold price in the London market, gold shares moved higher after a slow start, and later showed gains of 5 shillings and more.

B.C. Denies Mines Taxed Too Heavily

Premier Bennett and Mines Minister Donald Brothers today denied the provincial government is taxing mines too heavily.

"Of course he's wrong," said the premier in reply to Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. president Dr. H. J. Fraser, of Toronto.

Dr. Fraser told shareholders at the company's annual meeting that B.C. tax policy had "reverted to the same philosophy which drove mining out of the province before."

He cited the increase from 10 to 15 per cent in assessment under the Mining Tax Act and other changes that effectively double the rate of taxation for new mining endeavors in the formative years.

And he referred to an estimated 1968 school tax of $294,000 which would have to be paid by the company to Queen Charlotte School District for its iron-copper mining complex, industrial layout, deep-sea shipping dock, community buildings such as hotel, apartments, houses, store, hospital and school located at Tasu.

$11,000 PER CHILD

The three-room school has 27 pupils, and on that basis the tax amounts to about $11,000 per child, Dr. Fraser said.

The mine and community are operated by Wesfrob Mines Ltd., wholly owned subsidiary of Falconbridge.

Dr. Fraser said considerable money had been spent on housing, recreation, school and medical facilities for the isolated mine and community on the west coast of Moresby Island, whose total pre-production cost was about $40 million.

"It is rather discouraging when a province seizes on this situation as another form of indirect taxation," he said.

Premier Bennett said mining companies receive a federal allowance for provincial taxes paid.

Mr. Brothers said school taxes are "a cost of operation."

He added: "I think plans are for the provincial government to pay a portion of the cost. I intend to look into it.

"It is not our intention to penalize new industry coming into B.C."

The premier also said, "Our resources belong to the people and I expect development to continue and expand. Our people are entitled to a fair return from our resources. Every person is entitled to a dividend. Our taxation is very fair."

With no Expo to divert holiday traffic eastward this summer, the signs point to a bumper tourist crop for Vancouver Island. Such an influx would be all to the good, especially in a year when our economy appears to have developed a slight sag. Visitors spend, and if they feel they've received full value, the chances are that they will return to spend again.

If they go home disappointed, the result is word-of-mouth bad advertising that no amount of high-colored propaganda on our part can overcome.

With the competition for the tourist dollar nothing less than savage, this is a risk that not even an Island so well-endowed as ours can afford to take. What baffles me is why we go right on taking it.

I do not suggest a flunky approach. After all, this is our turf, and as year-round residents, we know the tourist to be largely a seasonal phenomenon.

But in your own travels, have you ever found yourself in a city where you were required to search for an open restaurant on a national holiday? I hope before the first of July hordes pile off the ferries, that silliness has been brought to an end.

Victoria has much to offer in addition to her setting and her far-famed if amiably phoney "Bit of Old England" atmosphere. But there are certain lacks, and I think they need filling.

One of them is a family ticket or pass that will let visiting parents and their children make the rounds of our local attractions for a reasonable sum.

Another lack — and how this has gone unfilled so long, I have no idea — is a briskly-scheduled bus transport to Butchart Gardens. Everyone who comes here wants to see those gardens, and each year, the plaint is the same:

"I haven't a car. I want to go out there without a lot of waiting around, and I don't intend to take a taxi that distance. Isn't there any regular service?"

The visitor will also search in vain for a golfing brochure that tells him where he can play, what the rates are, and when is ladies' day. Surely the clubs that take in out-of-town golfers could get together on this one!

We also badly need more tourist accommodation. This city and its immediate environs aren't keeping up with the demand. Last summer — which, as you may recall, was not the best of seasons — the Visitors Bureau sometimes worked till 10 at night or later, searching out private homes to accommodate the overflow.

The greatest need, however, is for trailer parks. They should be large, modern, and close in, and we don't have them. The chances are that we won't, either, until we have cleared up our pollution mess, and installed an adequate sewer system in the fringe areas where such parks belong.

This lack isn't confined to Victoria. Vancouver Island has been caught drowsing by the boom in trailer and truck camper travel. We don't have enough private oases to accommodate the home-on-wheels crowd. Areas in some provincial parks have been worked over for trailer use, but these don't come anywhere near filling the demand.

This is one for the provincial authority: It should be acted on promptly.

We have a lot here that pleases the tourist, but we do need to look to our assets. One of these is our much-vaunted salmon fishing, an attraction that packs the resorts each summer.

It's waning, and unless both federal and provincial governments move strongly to protect it, may be forced into a permanent decline. Ironically, Lake Michigan, where coho plantings have taken hold with fantastic success, is now a fishermen's hotspot ... and don't think the tourist-wise state of Michigan isn't cashing in on the fact.

This Island has always taken its very valuable tourist trade for granted. I'm not sure how much longer we can afford to indulge ourselves in this dangerous complacency.

Arm in arm, Tom and Lyn Hancock close their eyes on the world.

Pity the Cougar! Victim of Smear, He's Really a Dear

By DON VIPOND

When it comes to woodland friends, Lyn Hancock has a chum named Tom who's terrific!

Although he's only 15 months old, Tom weighs 150 pounds. He's happiest when he's snoozing, preferably while cuddling his mistress. That way he's in a good spot to lick her face when he wakes up.

Could this be the fearsome cougar, the spitting, snarling villain of many a backwoods legend?

SMEAR CAMPAIGN

But, she claims, Tom and almost all of his kind are victims of a smear campaign of tall tales which over the years have built the image of cougars as wicked wildcats.

It isn't so, says Mrs. Hancock, and Tom is living proof.

One of five kittens given to the Hancocks, Tom spends his weekdays in a Duncan zoo. Two of the others went to Australia and two to California.

Tom is so fond of Mrs. Hancock he'll even stop eating to welcome her when she comes to visit. In the animal world, that's a high compliment indeed.

Sometimes the sleek and contented cat joins them for weekend outings. Then he's the soul of gentleness, keen on drowsing in the sun, cool on swimming in the saltchuck although he has taken brief dips.

'HE'S WRONG'

All of which leads Mrs. Hancock to take exception to a coment of Times columnist Arthur Mayse who wrote recently that all cougars "have vile tempers."

There are many American owners of pet cougars who would join her in quarreling over that, she says.

Rogue cougars are the rare ones, she says, and tells of a friend on a mainland hunting trip last year who sat down to rest. It was 15 minutes before he spotted a cougar resting amiably in the bushes alongside him.

When newspapers sensationalize the rare exploits of an abnormal cougar, they tar the entire tribe of timid and secretive animals with the same brush.

T'ain't right or fair, says Mrs. Hancock.

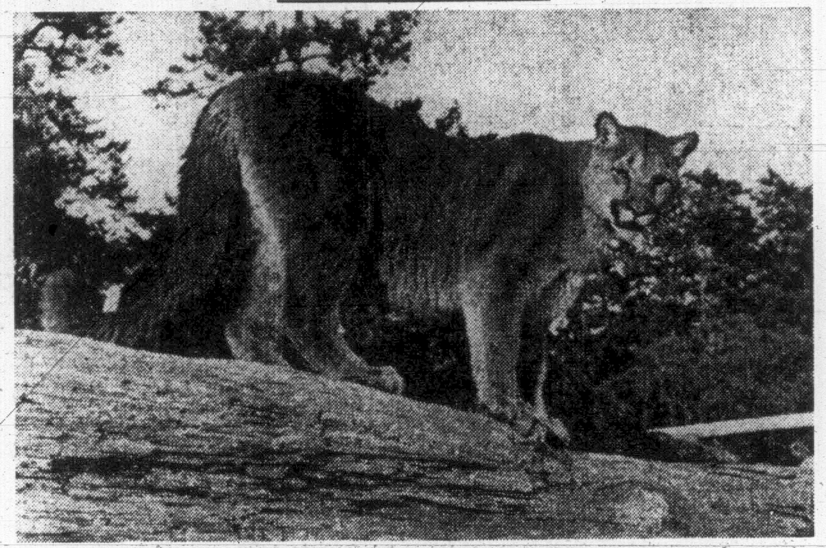
'DRAMATIZED'

In an article he wrote for Canadian Audubon entitled The Cougar on Vancouver Island he said:

"The public is led to believe that the cougar is an insatiable monster, prowling the forests seeking man and beast to maim and kill. At such times the few authentic records of attacks on man are enlarged upon, distorted and dramatized. Thus a myth builds up vilifying one of our most colorful and often beneficial mammals."

Within any population of large animals, domestic or otherwise, there exists a small percentage of dangerous individuals, wrote the respected biologist.

The cougar is no more dangerous to man than are dogs, range cattle or goats, for example.



He'll pause for traditional pose but he prefers to snooze.

Final Contract Let On Museum Complex

STUDY ASKED ON INCREASED BUSINESS TAX

Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors today were asked to support an in-depth study of Victoria business tax before it is increased to pay for convention promotion.

The proposal was put forward by chamber president William Armstrong at a regular directors' meeting. It followed a brief statement that supported in principle a proposed business tax boost made to city council two weeks ago.

Mr. Armstrong said that although the chamber is fully for a convention facility and agrees that advance promotion is necessary, directors have not had a chance to study the brief asking for a higher business tax submitted by former alderman Geoffrey Edgelow.

$2.2 Million Job To Burns-Dutton

By JOHN MIKA

The final contract for the Centennial museum-archives complex was announced today — assuring its completion no more than two years late.

And it will be finished almost exactly a decade after Premier Bennett first announced, on December 10, 1959, that a new museum and archives would be built next to the Legislative Buildings after the Law Courts were completed.

Public works department announced that the lowest of five bidders, Burns and Dutton Construction (1962) Ltd., has been awarded a $2,242,000 contract to complete the 11-storey curatorial building, the one-storey archives building and the landscaping.

It was estimated the work would be finished in about 14 months.

Final cost of the project — to which the federal government contributed $2.5 million as a centennial gift to B.C. — is expected to be just under $8 million, double the original estimate Mr. Bennett gave when he formally announced a go-ahead for the project May 16, 1963.

Current work on the main museum exhibit building is expected to be completed in about two months by Farmer Construction.

SLOW MOTION

Victorians have watched the slow-motion start-stop construction program since Premier Bennett touched off the first dynamite blast May 7, 1965, to begin excavation of the former government parking lot at Government and Belleville as the site of the complex.

Earlier, Works Minister Chant had announced the total project would be completed in time for the July 1, 1967, Confederation centennial celebrations.

In May, 1966, Queen Mother Elizabeth laid the cornerstone of large exhibit hall and the following month the hoarding fence around the site was decorated in a massive paint-in sponsored by officialdom.

But the stark steel skeletons of the high-rise curatorial building and the archives building have been standing untouched since Premier Bennett ordered a work halt later that year.

PLANS REDRAWN

Work on the exhibit hall was resumed last year after the working plans were redrawn to cut all possible costs but the rest of the project has remained dormant.

Mr. Chant said costs and timetable were upset by a 20 to 30 per cent rise in construction prices during the life of the project as it became obvious the Confederation celebration would come and go without opening of the project.

But last May another royal personage, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, brightened government faces as she presided at a ceremony at the site of the carillon tower.

The 40 bells of the carillon, donated by the Dutch community in B.C. as a centennial gesture, began ringing last month.

MUST SERVE THREE MORE MONTHS

'Matter of Principle'—Fugitive

A weary and hungry fugitive turned himself in to a Milnes Landing housewife Thursday after escaping William Head prison 12 days ago.

Norman Kenneth Cottrell, 24, of Ontario and Whitehorse, appeared in central court this morning charged with escaping custody and being unlawfully at large.

He was given concurrent three-month sentences when he pleaded guilty to both charges.

"It was a matter of principle. I'd rather not go into it now," he said of his escape.

He had been scheduled for release Oct. 3.

"I could hardly believe what he said he was," said Mrs. Peter Groot of 2450 Dixon Rd. today after Cottrell appeared at her door while she was preparing supper Thursday.

The stocky blonde prisoner first met Andrew Groot, 17, in the yard of the home as the boy was coming home from school.

"Do you want to be a hero?" he asked the boy and then told him who he was.

Mrs. Groot said Cottrell was amiable and polite, asking to use the phone to call police.

FAMISHED

When the party line was busy, he was asked if he would like something to eat. He said he was famished and the Groots gave him a meal of bacon, eggs and toast.

While waiting for police to arrive Cottrell told them he had been taking an electronics course at the minimum secruity prison and hoped he would be able to finish it.

He took some food with him when he and another prisoner fled William Head April 14, he said, and had been hiding in the heavy bush country between Sooke and Colwood. He had been able to buy some more food from some Boy Scouts he met.

"I told him when everything was cleared up to come in and have another meal with us," Mrs. Groot said today.

The Groots live about four miles from the Sooke potholes. Mr. Groot is employed by Sooke Forest Products.

Cottrell had served 18 months of a two-year sentence for criminal negligence causing bodily harm at the time of his escape.
escape.

Fleeing the minimum security prison with him was Delmar Lyman Ferguson, 25, of the Vernon area who was in the second year of a three-year term for manslaughter. Ferguson was recaptured in Kelowna a week ago.

Contract Boosts Printers' Wages

A two-year agreement has been negotiated between the Victoria Typographical Union and Victoria Press Limited.

The agreement provides for a total increase of 65 cents per hour spread over the two-year period. Under the terms of the new agreement, which is effective from Jan. 1, 1968, a journeyman printer working day shift, will receive the following rates of pay:

Effective Jan. 1, 1968, $3.94 per hour, an increase of 20 cents; effective July 1, 1968, $4.09 per hour; effective Jan. 1, 1969, $4.24 per hour; effective July 1, 1969, $4.39 per hour.

The new agreement also provides, for additional benefits and adjustments.

Negotiations have also been concluded with the remaining three mechanical unions, namely, Stereotypers and Electrotypers Union No. 88, Victoria Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union No. 79, and Victoria Mailers' Union No. 121. Agreements have been reached with these unions providing for similar wage increases and for additional adjustments and benefits.

Negotiations are now in progress between the American Newspaper Guild Local 223 and Victoria Press Limited, pertaining to a proposed new contract, covering the editorial departments and business office employees.

Firemen Extinguish Log Fire on Beach

City firemen were called to a beach fire near Beacon Hill Park at about 4 p.m. Thursday and doused burning logs for about 55 minutes.

Department officials suspect someone had a fire on the beach that got out of control. City bylaws forbid fires on Victoria beaches.

TRAILERS, BOATS

Hearing Set To Air Cover-Up Law

Oak Bay council will hold a public hearing May 2 on a bylaw amendment to ban storing of trailers, boats and derelict cars on improved lots in the municipality.

Mayor Fred Hawes said Thursday the amendment is designed to do away with unsightly junk and vehicle parts lying about on occupied properties.

The bylaw would mean trailers, boats and bodies from camper trucks would have to be in a garage or behind some type of screening, he said.

The changed bylaw will also limit the number of cars parked in the open for more than 72 hours of any week to one per licensed owner.

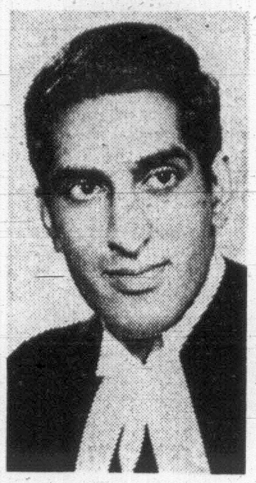
MUST BE COVERED

No boats over 16 feet will be permitted in the municipality unless covered from public view, Mayor Hawes said.

Another provision of the bylaw will limit the size of boats that can be built on any Oak Bay property to 16 feet.

No one will be permitted to accumulate building materials on his property unless he has a current building permit.

Another bylaw under consideration for amendment would permit day-care homes in areas now zoned for single family dwelling.



MOHAN JAWL

Scholarship For $10,000 To Victorian

A Victorian studying law at the University of British Columbia has been awarded a $10,000 Commonwealth Scholarship.

Mohan Jawl, 24, will go to England to read for his doctorate at the London School of Economics over the next two years.

The youngest of six children, Mohan was born in Victoria where his family settled after leaving India in 1930.

He attended Mount View high school and spent two years at Victoria College before transferring to UBC where he obtained a bachelor of commerce degree after two further years' study.

VALEDICTORIAN

He will be class valedictorian at UBC's congregation next month after completing his law degree. He won seven scholarships and prizes while working his way through law school, topping his class last year.

Mohan hopes to return to Victoria to practise law. He is particularly interested in company and taxation law but has not yet decided in which he will specialize.

The Commonwealth Scholarship, like the Rhodes Scholarship, stresses the humanities and carries great academic prestige, but many more Commonwealth Scholarships are available.

Awarded annually to students of high intellectual promise who might be expected to make a significant contribution to life in their own countries after studies overseas, the scholarships cover travel, tuition and living expenses abroad.

Commissions in 15 member countries were organized in 1959. Funds are provided and candidates selected by the receiving countries, on recommendations from the countries of the students' origin.

Man Admits Having Drug

A View Royal man pleaded guilty in central court today to possession of marijuana.

William Routley, 583 Prince Robert Drive, was remanded until May 3 to allow time for a pre-sentence report.

Court was told police went to Routley's home and found a small box containing the butts of 11 marijuana cigarettes.

Routley told police he had bought the cigarettes for 50 cents each and smoked them himself.

Rio Tinto-Zinc Operating Profit Shows Big Gain

LONDON (CP) — Operating profit of the Rio Tinto-Zinc Corp. rose to £40,352,000 last year from £23,914,000 in 1966, Chairman Val Duncan reported Monday. The pound is worth about $2.60 Canadian.

Of this total, £7,111,000 were earned in North America—mainly Canada—up from £4,459,000 in 1966, Duncan said in his annual report.

Rio Tinto-Zinc has major holdings of minerals, metals and chemicals in Canada, Australia, Britain and South Africa.

The corporation estimated group net profit, after taxes, increased to £36,953,000 from £23,018,000.

Among its 1967 highlights was the signing by its Canadian subsidiary, Rio Algom Mines Ltd., of new sales contracts with Japan for £10,000,000 of uranium oxide over a period until 1978.

"The total quantity of uranium oxide committed for future delivery by Rio Algom under its various contracts now is over £40,000,000 and will require that two mines and two mills be in operation by the early 1970s," Duncan said.

The corporation is continuing uranium exploration in Canada, the United States and Australia.

"Diamond drilling continued around Elliott Lake. In northern Quebec a major uranium exploration project has been planned for 1968 in association with Soquem, a Quebec government-sponsored exploration company."

B.C. Denies Mines Taxed Too Heavily

Premier Bennett and Mines Minister Donald Brothers today denied the provincial government is taxing mines too heavily.

"Of course he's wrong," said the premier in reply to Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. president Dr. H. J. Fraser, of Toronto.

Dr. Fraser told shareholders at the company's annual meeting that B.C. tax policy had "reverted to the same philosophy which drove mining out of the province before."

He cited the increase from 10 to 15 per cent in assessment under the Mining Tax Act and other changes that effectively double the rate of taxation for new mining endeavors in the formative years.

And he referred to an estimated 1968 school tax of $294,000 which would have to be paid by the company to Queen Charlotte School District for its iron-copper mining complex, industrial layout, deep-sea shipping dock, community buildings such as hotel, apartments, houses, store, hospital and school located at Tasu.

$11,000 PER CHILD

The three-room school has 27 pupils, and on that basis the tax amounts to about $11,000 per child, Dr. Fraser said.

The mine and community are operated by Wesfrob Mines Ltd., wholly owned subsidiary of Falconbridge.

Dr. Fraser said considerable money had been spent on housing, recreation, school and medical facilities for the isolated mine and community on the west coast of Moresby Island, whose total pre-production cost was about $40 million.

"It is rather discouraging when a province seizes on this situation as another form of indirect taxation," he said.

Premier Bennett said mining companies receive a federal allowance for provincial taxes paid.

Mr. Brothers said school taxes are "a cost of operation."

He added: "I think plans are for the provincial government to pay a portion of the cost. I intend to look into it.

"It is not our intention to penalize new industry coming into B.C."

The premier also said, "Our resources belong to the people and I expect development to continue and expand. Our people are entitled to a fair return from our resources. Every person is entitled to a dividend. Our taxation is very fair."
